Undeclared War Begun, Capper Says, Urging Unity

Isolationist Asserts Nation Has No Choice But to Back Policy Roosevelt Initiated

A Republican critic of Administration foreign policy, Senator Capper, of Kansas, last night told Congress and the Nation they "must support" President Roosevelt in his order to the Navy to shoot on sight at Axis war craft in American defensive waters.

Another Republican, Senator Nye, of North Dakota, declared the President's order would involve the United States Navy and air force actively in the war within four months, an assertion that was challenged by Administration leaders on Capitol Hill.

As both houses prepared to reassemble today after a month of relative inactivity, facing storms over the international situation, a new lend-lease program and a fight over the record-breaking defense tax bill, Senator Capper was delivering a transcribed address over Station WIBW, Topeka, Kans.

See "Undeclared War"

He declared the President had initiated an "undeclared war."

"Shooting on sight is not short of war," he charged. "Shooting on sight is war, and no carefully chosen words in explanation can make such an order anything else."

However, the Kansan cautioned the public, "for weal or woe the United States and the people of the United States are involved to whatever extent President Roosevelt has gone to implement his policy of national defense.

"My own position is simply this: 'For myself, I will support the national defense program, as I have been doing. The United States cannot be kept a free and independent and powerful Nation at all costs. The President having acted, the Congress of the United States and the people of the United States must and will support that action. There is no other course of action open to us."

Tension Growing Here

To a Capital rather tense over the recent series of Axis attacks on American ships, President Roosevelt returned late yesterday after a weekend Chesapeake Bay cruise and conference with several of his advisers on defense. The conferees included Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend administrator; William S. Knudsen, OPM director; Leon Henderson, price administrator, and Floyd B. Odlum, head of the new OPM division to spread subcon-

U. S. Conciliators Will Parley Today In Truck Strike

Washington's truck strike goes into its eighth day today with opposing sides scheduled to carry on negotiations before a three-man conciliation board at the Labor Department.

Representatives of the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union, Local 639 and of the truck companies will meet at 4 p. m. The session is expected to be conducted by Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the Labor Department's Conciliation Service.

Hope for an early end to the strike was felt yesterday by a spokesman for the carriers, who expressed belief that "the drivers may be back at work this week."

The 600 strikers, who walked out last Monday, are demanding $35 a week for drivers and $30 for helpers, plus a 44-hour week. Union scale is now $31 and $25.50, with a 48-hour week.

The railroads yesterday reported their warehouses are reaching their storage capacities.

Movies Feature Week's Bill Of 4 Congressional Inquiries

Four war-born investigations will be under way on Capitol Hill this week as legislators seek further information on the Greer shooting incident off Iceland, charges of movie war propaganda, proposed price control and an "unusual" defense plant contract.

The highlight, from a popular interest standpoint, will be resumption of the inquiry by a Senate Commerce Subcommittee into allegations that the motion picture industry has engaged in propaganda for American participation in the European conflict.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, has called Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood columnist, as its first witness for the week, but later will hear Charles Chaplin and heads of some of the major film companies.

Wendell Willkie, as counsel for the producers, is expected to continue his clashes with isolationist members of the committee. Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, co-author of the resolution calling for the inquiry, engaged in a duel of statements with Willkie throughout last week.

The torpedo-depth charge exchange between the United States Destroyer Greer and a German submarine is to result in Secretary of Navy Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, being called before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee about the middle of the week. Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, non-interventionist chairman of the committee, said he would seek more information on the incident from the Navy chieftains. President Roosevelt has asserted positively that the submarine fired its torpedoes first. Germany has charged that the Greer was the aggressor.

In addition, the Senate Defense investigating committee, has called Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, the Associated Press reported, to

18 Are Injured In Traffic, 12 In District

Auto Accidents In Nearby States Account for Others

Eighteen persons were injured in traffic accidents yesterday in the metropolitan area, six of them in accidents on the roads of nearby Virginia and Maryland.

Injured in Maryland were George Talton, 40, Negro, of 1428 Eighth Street Northwest; Alfred Proctor, 18, Negro, of Oxon Hill, Md., and James C. Deboe, 63, of Riggs Road, Prince Georges County, Md.

Deboe was injured in an accident near his home and was treated for a fractured right arm and left leg at Casualty Hospital. Talton received his injuries in a crash near West Lanham, Md. Also taken to Casualty, he was admitted with possible fractured ribs. Proctor fell from a truck at Oxon Hill, Md., requiring first aid treatment at Providence Hospital.

Charles W. Hupp, 67, of 71 F Street Southwest, was struck by an automobile in the 600 block of F Street Southwest, requiring treatment for a possible fractured hip at Providence Hospital. John Johnson, 21, of 660 H Street Northwest, was treated for a lacerated scalp at Providence as result of an accident on Eighteenth Street Northeast.

Bicyclist Injured

George Washington, 32, Negro, of 1248 Tenth Street Northwest, was struck while riding his bicycle in the 300 block of Kennedy Street Northwest. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for injuries to the left leg and released.

Two passengers were injured when the driver of a car attempted to light a cigarette and it collided with a tree at Naylor Road and Alabama Avenue Southeast. Injured were Sarah Thompson, 22, of 26 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, and Elaine Hill, 21, of 617 M Street Northeast. Treated at Providence Hospital, Miss Thompson was admitted with a fractured nose and head injuries while Miss Hill was released.

Warrenton Accident

Joseph Keeler, 45, of 3812 Twelfth Street Northwest, was injured when a wild car collided with a parked car waiting for a light at Seventh and D Streets Northwest, then glanced off the parked car, ran through a safety zone and across D Street against the red light, striking the pedestrian. Police said driver of the car was Porter H. Taylor, 39, Negro of Alexandria,

D. C. Citizens To Tell Budget Desires Today

Fowler and Wilding Ready to Answer 'Any And All Questions'

Organized citizens today will tell the District Commissioners how they want their taxes expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943.

A record-breaking budget estimate of $64,829,754, representing the total sought by municipal department heads, will be aired at a two-day public hearing beginning at 10 a. m. in the board room of the District Building.

City heads have made careful arrangements to handle the large delegations expected at today's hearing, which will be highlighted by the attendance of a brand new Board of Commissioners and a new budget officer.

Ready With Answers

The new Board of Commissioners consists of Chairman John Russell Young, who had little experience in this work last year; Guy Mason, who has had no experience in budgetary matters and had attempted to withhold the budget estimates from the public, and Engineer Commissioner Charles Kutz, who served on the Board of Commissioners more than 20 years ago.

Walter L. Fowler, former assistant corporation counsel and now budget officer, and his assistant William Wilding, a veteran in budget affairs, having served the late Maj. Daniel J. Donovan for a number of years, are prepared to answer "any and all" questions by citizens at the hearings.

Representatives of civic, citizens, business, automobile, church and welfare bodies have all requested time for statements at the hearings. In all about 32 organizations will be heard. A public stenographer will be on hand to record their recommendations.

Young to Be "Very Attentive"

The groups today will undoubtedly oppose an increase in taxes to meet the high demands of the department heads, and probably will oppose a hike in water rates as proposed by the water department officials.

The hearings today and tomorrow, probably the most colorful in the municipality's annual affairs, will be conducted by Commissioner Young. It is expected that several spokesman will criticize the action by Commissioners Mason and Kutz for first voting to keep the estimates a secret.

Department heads are usually not present at the public hearings. They

D. C. Program Starts Drive

First Lady, Models to Help Retailers Open 'Defense Week'

Hundreds of Washington merchants, Mrs. Roosevelt, and 20 Powers models from New York, will open "Retailers for Defense Week" with ceremonies beginning at noon today in the Mayflower Hotel.

A dinner, beginning at 7:30 p. m. at the hotel, will culminate at 10 p. m. with an address by Donald Nelson, executive officer of the Supply, Priorities and Allocations Board.

Object of the "Retailers for Defense Week" is several-fold. The Nation's merchants will sell defense stamps in their stores today through Saturday and will press forward their 14-point creed, calling for cooperation in the national defense program.

Ceremonies at the Mayflower today will include the purchase of defense stamps from Nelson by Mrs. Roosevelt. This is scheduled for noon.

A 2 p. m. a stamp clinic will be held in the hotel's grand ballroom, with the Powers models assisting. Methods to be used in the mass sales of stamps will be demonstrated to the retailers.

From the hotel, the models will go at 4:30 p. m. to the office of Vice President Wallace at the Capitol for a greeting.

Speakers at the clinic will include Sam J. Watkins, National Association of Retail Druggists, and Frank M. Mayfield, president, National Retail Dry Goods Association. The clinic was arranged by the Treasury retail advisory committee. The dinner meeting will be presided over by Fred Lazarus, jr., Columbus (Ohio) merchant.

Five hundred thousand stores were expected yesterday to cooperate in the retailers' program.

Raider Preys On Shipping Off Panama

Arriving Vessels Report Calls for Aid; Dutch Craft, Overdue At Canal, Given Up

By C. H. Calhoun
Copyright by New York Times

Balboa, Canal Zone, Sept. 14. Reports of the presence of an Axis commerce raider in the waters off the Pacific approaches to the Panama Canal, known for two weeks to marine authorities and shipping circles here, were confirmed today by a reliable source. Vessels arriving from the Pacific reported picking up radio messages from other ships advising that the latter were being attacked.

The messages were very faint and the names of the ships involved were not revealed. However, it is understood that one of them was the 7300-ton Kota Nopan, a motorship flying the Netherlands flag, en route to the United States via the Panama Canal. The Kota Nopan is now long overdue and was reported lost in a Dutch navy communique from Batavia.

Navy Gets Report

[In Washington, the Navy Department last night said it has received information to indicate that there may be an Axis raider, believed to be a German vessel, operating in Pacific shipping lanes leading to the Panama Canal, and possibly in the vicinity of the Galapagos Islands. The Navy was without positive confirmation and lacked details. Editor's note.]

According to a report, the Dutch ship was sunk near the Galapagos Islands, 1000 miles from the canal and off the coast of Ecuador.

The possibility of the Nazi raider basing on the Galapagos Islands has been considered since the islands are not adequately protected or controlled by Ecuador, which owns them. The islands could furnish fresh water and some food including fresh meat of wild cattle, which are abundant on some of the islands.

Several Ships Overdue

Well informed sources here believe that a raider is operating in sea lanes from Australia, New Zealand and the Netherlands East Indies converging on the Panama Canal. So far as is known no ship from the east coast of South America or the United States is missing or overdue, but it is known that a number of British and Netherlands vessels bound from New Zealand or the Indies are now overdue here.

There are no reports of any trace of the Kota Nopan or her crew, which is believed to have been taken aboard the raider. It is believed that the raider may be carrying prisoners from other ships which have reported attacks and that the crews of them may have suffered the same fate.

Leningrad Buildings Blown Up For Last Stand, Soviets Admit Withdrawal Southeast of Kiev

Moscow Reveals Enemy Has Crossed The Dnieper Below Ukraine Capital

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Monday), Sept. 15. The Russians acknowledged today a retreat by Red army forces from Kremenchug, on the east bank of the Dnieper River, before German units lengthening the southern jaw of a giant pincer movement against Kiev.

Kremenchug is a rail junction 173 miles southeast of Kiev and 85 miles northwest of Dnieperopetrovsk, already abandoned hydro-electric power and industrial center on the Dnieper.

The abandonment of this town followed by four days the announcement last Friday that Russian forces had withdrawn from Chernigov, 80 miles north of Kiev between the Dnieper and Desna Rivers.

Fighting Is Fierce

In extending the northern jaw of their pincers aimed at Kiev, the Germans drove southeastward to increase this threat to the Ukrainian capital.

With these two fiercely fought operations the Germans apparently are trying to form a junction behind Kiev to force the distant right and left flanks of the city, which has held firmly against the fierce German offensive.

Details of the loss of Kremenchug were lacking, but today's early communique spoke of prolonged and bitter fighting in this middle Ukraine sector.

Elsewhere, there was the usual report of stubborn fighting along the entire Russian front.

The German navy was reported to have lost two destroyers in its first attempt to penetrate Soviet waters off Leningrad.

A Leningrad dispatch said the destroyers and an auxiliary cruiser were met in the Gulf of Finland by the Red fleet and that one was sunk by Soviet war vessels and the other by aerial bombs. The cruiser escaped.

Duel Over Leningrad

The fall of Kremenchug brought the first Russian acknowledgement of a Nazi crossing of the Dnieper below Kiev. Farther down the river beyond Dnieperopetrovsk incessant German attempts to force a crossing were said still to be checked by Marshal Budyenny's Ukraine armies, inflicting heavy losses upon

Decisive Battle Expected

Nazis Halt Black Sea Shipping, Zero Hour at Hand, Turks Say

By the Associated Press

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 14.—Unofficial reports said tonight that Germany had ordered a standstill of all commercial shipping in the Black Sea ports of Rumania and Bulgaria.

The report was taken here to indicate that large-scale Axis Black Sea operations were at the zero hour stage.

These operations under German direction would be aimed at Russian troops on the Crimean Peninsula. The Germans were said to be impatient with the progress of the Rumanian land drive.

Foreign quarters in Ankara heard that Gen. Ciupercu and several other Rumanian officers were shot for refusing to advance beyond the Dniester River.

That point marks the outer boundary of Bessarabia, which the Rumanians ceded to Russia under German pressure a year ago.

It has been reported repeatedly from Rumania that the army and public, bitterly discontented with continuance of the war, was against going beyond Bessarabia.

The Black Sea, bounded by Russia, Turkey, Bulgaria and Rumania, seems to have been chosen as the setting for a decisive battle between the Axis and the Allies for control of the Ukraine.

When Vyacheslav Molotov told Bulgaria, as disclosed last week, that she had exceeded the bounds of neutrality in permitting German naval preparations in her harbors the Russian foreign commissar apparently meant that the Germans were planning to land Axis forces behind the present Ukraine front along the Dnieper River.

Such an advance into the Black Sea, which with the Sea of Azov arm is about double the size of the Great Lakes, would turn that landlocked sea into a naval battlefield, perhaps straining Turkey's stand as a non-belligerent ally of Britain and diplomatic friend of Germany.

Ruin Spreading

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Monday), Sept. 15.—The Russian defenders of Leningrad—the St. Petersburg of the czars—were reported blasting away huge blocks of buildings to clear spaces for battle today as the Luftwaffe ranged the skies and Nazi armies in great strength squeezed the great city tighter.

Adolf Hitler's command informed the German nation that strong Nazi forces had broken through the city's "defense front" and were continuing their pressure in the face of a resistance of the most desperate character.

Advance on Flat Terrain

Precisely what was meant by Leningrad's "defense front" was not clear, but observers assumed it meant that at least the outer fortifications of one of the world's most stoutly defended cities had been pierced.

[The New York Times reported that German troops, meeting ferocious resistance, had moved to within 13 miles of the metropolitan perimeter of Leningrad.

Advancing from the southwest, the Nazis are said to have only perfectly flat terrain for the assault on the city.]

Numbers of Leningrad's three million or more citizens and most of Marshal Klementi Voroshilov's northern army were reported to be within the defense zone.

Air Force Hammers Roads

Germany's supreme military authority, which always is either silent or optimistic, chose to strike an optimistic note in its communique and declared that operations are going on so successfully that the way is being prepared for "new successes in battle."

The "closer encirclement of the city continues without interruption despite bitter defense," it added.

It was obvious from German reports that the air force was playing

Nazi ShipSunk; 8 Axis Vessels Hit in Convoy

Supply Ship Sent Down Off Norway; African Bases Raided

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 14—Setting afire and damaging at least eight Axis ships in a Mediterranean convoy, sinking of a German supply ship off Norway, and possible further damage to the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst were claimed today in official British accounts of weekend air and naval raids from the Norwegian coast to Ethiopia.

Heaviest of the attacks appeared to be that made by British naval and R. A. F. planes upon a Tripoli-bound convoy in the central Mediterranean last night.

Navy planes located the rest of the convoy, which had been previously attacked Thursday night and Friday, together with their destroyer escort, were said to have stopped and set fire to one medium-sized merchantman, halted another from which clouds of smoke were seen to pour, and possibly to have hit a third.

None Escapes Damage

Later the same night heavy R. A. F. bombers took up the attack. An R. A. F. communique said two more ships were left burning and three others hit.

"None of the ships in the convoy escaped damage," the communique said.

A strong British attack also was reported made last night by a large force of British aircraft against the naval base at Brest in Nazi-occupied France. Explosions were seen close to the drydocks where the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst are berthed, the air ministry said.

The docks at LeHavre and German airdromes in northern France were also attacked. One German plane was reported shot down dur-

Wing of R.A.F. Aiding Russia On East Front

First 1000-Mile Fighters From U. S. Arrive in England

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 14.—A wing of the R. A. F., with planes, pilots, ground crews and materials has arrived in Russia to open a British air war on two fronts with Germany, it was announced by authoritative quarters today.

This expansion of Britain's battle front was accompanied by the disclosure that the first group of American-made long-range fighter planes had reached England. These may permit Britain's bombers, with fighter escorts, to reach as far as Berlin in daylight precision attacks.

Fighters to Defend Cities

The strength of the R. A. F. detachment in the U. S. S. R. was not disclosed, but informed sources said a "wing" is an elastic term applied to a self-contained unit of two or more squadrons with full flying and ground personnel.

It was assumed that all the planes were fighter aircraft rushed to participate in the defense of Leningrad, Moscow, or Kiev, just as Hurricanes and Spitfires formed the first line of defense in the deadly Battle of Britain a year ago.

There were hints that some of the R. A. F. units may already have participated in some of the fighting on the eastern front.

Arrival of the units was expected in political quarters to quiet some of the clamor in the English press and in Parliament for more tangible aid to the Russians.

Americans to Ferry Planes

Gen. von Schobert, Nazi Commander, Killed in Russia

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 14.—The death in action of one of Germany's foremost generals, Col.-Gen. Eugen Ritter von Schobert, was announced today by Adolf Hitler's headquarters. He fell two days ago on the Russian front.

Von Schobert, 58, was one of the Kaiser's distinguished World War commanders who carried over into the Hitler regime to win renown in the present war.

The speed with which he drove his army corps of 1940 into French fortifications between the Maas River and Chiers, the taking of an armored fort west of Margut and his drive through the northern front of Verdun won him the knight's cross of the iron cross and promotion from lieutenant general to the rank of colonel general.

Von Schobert was born in Wuerzburg in 1883. At 19 he entered the first Bavarian infantry and fought with it as an adjutant in the first World War.

Harriman, Aides Land in Britain, On Way to Soviet

London (Monday), Sept. 15 (U.P.)—W. Averell Harriman, head of the American mission which is going to Moscow for a conference with representatives of Britain and Russia, arrived in Britain yesterday aboard a bomber along with the Duke of Kent, returning from a visit to the United States and Canada.

Earlier in the day Constantine Oumansky, Soviet Ambassador to the United States and junior members of the American mission arrived by plane.

'Pirate Airfield' And Nazi Radio Found in Mexico

Mexico City, Sept. 14 (AP).—Discovery of a "pirate airfield" and clandestine Nazi propaganda radio station near Las Palmas in the State of Chiapas was reported today by the newspaper, Excelsior.

The newspaper said it had learned the Communications Ministry and the Senate had been informed of the discovery.

The newspaper's account said the radio station, located in Chiapas, long rumored a center of Nazi activity because of the state's numerous German residents, had been spreading Nazi propaganda through southeastern Mexico and Central America.

From Senate sources the newspaper said it learned the station had both short and long wave facilities and used the call letters, XAGX.

Axis to Let U. S. Warships Shoot First, Gayda Says

Rome, Sept. 14 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, said today Italy and Germany would wait for American warships to fire first in order to place war blame on the United States.

The Axis powers are not afraid of Mr. Roosevelt's challenge, which they accepted, Gayda wrote in La Voce D'Italia, but will not "play into his hands" by causing an incident. Once American war craft start shooting, he said, Axis ships and planes will "answer fire with fire."

La Stampa, of Turin, asserted the Axis powers "know the best reply is in hitting sharply and hard, as their submarines will continue to do in the Atlantic.

With Benefit of Prayer

Sessa's Mate Tells of Burying Sub's Victims From Raft

Associated Press Staff Writer

Reykjavik, Iceland, Sept. 10 (Delayed).—The story of how three men on a raft, victims of a submarine's torpedo in the chill waters off Iceland, buried three comrades at sea was told today by one of the survivors.

One of them was able to remember snatches of the burial service which he recited in casting the bodies into the ocean.

He was the Danish mate of the S. S. Sessa, torpedoed, shelled and sunk by a submarine while carrying supplies to the Iceland Government.

In halting English and between drinks of the liquor Icelanders call "black death," the mate recalled how he and two other seamen, a Portuguese and a Swede, watched the other three survivors die from exhaustion and exposure to sleet, rain and icy winds as a storm tossed them about.

"I remembered what I could from the service for burial at sea," the mate said today. "I said it and threw them into the Atlantic."

The Swedish seaman will lose two toes from freezing but vigorous massages of all their feet and legs by the Danish mate probably saved the lives of the three survivors. The mate said he remembered an admiralty order to do that in case of shipwreck and tried it on his protesting mates.

"We all hollered when I did it," he said today. "It hurt like hell."

Once the men on the raft heard an airplane and once they saw smoke on the horizon but days went by before British seamen picked them up.

Tanner Implies Peace for Finland Is Not Far Off

Helsinki, Sept. 14 (AP).—Finland has "good hopes of peace in the nearest future," it was announced tonight by a government spokesman, who declared this nation is Germany's ally "only by accident and will not continue the war any longer than Finnish interests demand."

In a broadcast to the nation, Vaino Tanner, minister of trade and communications and leader of the dominant Social Democratic Party, denied, however, that Finland would make a separate peace with Russia.

"It is for us an entirely defensive war, a defensive war with the aid of which we desire to secure our frontiers and lasting peace," Tanner said.

Logical to Stop, Says Legation

Copyright by New York Times

Because the Finnish army, in its war with Russia, has nearly reached a line which it will best be able to defend "it seems logical to us to stop the war with Russia," a spokesman at the legation of Finland said last night.

But this spokesman was not able to give any of the mechanics by which actual peace with Russia could be achieved.

Finland Charges Russia Fired First

War Sidelights

Living Bombs Wreak Havoc Among Nazis

Stockholm, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—A squadron of Russian "living bombs"—old airplanes loaded with dynamite which crash onto their targets with the pilots still at the controls—has sunk 12 German ships off the Russian Kronstadt naval base, the Soviet radio said today.

The radio report, published here by the newspaper Aftonbladet, said that "the Red Army sacrificed 12 old planes, several thousand pounds of dynamite and 12 pilots, but the Germans lost thousands of men and 12 ships and a large amount of war material."

The radio said a German assault on the Kronstadt area was beaten off largely due to the heroism of the suicide squad.

Nazis Turn Blitz On American Jazz

Berlin, Sept. 14 (AP).—Germans were urged today to discard all phonograph records of "English-inspired or Negro music"—meaning American jazz.

"It is high time they disappear," declared the Hamburg Fremdenblatt.

It complained especially of restaurants and cafes so "undignified" that after two years of war with England they still entertain guests with hundreds of such records.

Nazis Like 'Snake' Term

New York, Sept. 14 (INS).—Germans like the name, "Rattlesnakes of the Atlantic," given to their submarines by President Roosevelt in his radio address a few nights ago, the Berlin radio said tonight in a broadcast heard by Columbia Broadcasting System.

The German announcer declared: "Herr Roosevelt called our submarines 'rattlesnakes of the Atlantic.' This comparison is not so bad after all, as our submarines are used to defend themselves, if attacked, just as vigorously as rattlesnakes do."

Submarine Saga

London, Sept. 14 (AP).—The British admiralty belatedly told today the story of the submarine, Triumph, which had 18 feet of its hull blown away and its plating cracked by a mine explosion and lived on to torpedo ten enemy ships.

The Triumph hit the mine on a North Sea patrol in December, 1939, but limped through the Skagerrak minefields to its base in the Firth of Forth, 300 miles away.

Since being repaired, the Admiralty said, it has torpedoed five warships.

Potatoes for French

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Sept. 14.—Potatoes will supplement the insufficient supplies of meat and bread in France this winter, Paul Charbin, secretary of state for supplies, promised in a broadcast to the nation tonight.

He said by October 15 the potato ration for October would be established and, it was hoped, enough would be available to make up to the inhabitants the admitted deficiency in meat, bread and other commodities.

Procope Makes Public 'Blue, White Paper' Outlining Charges

The Finnish government charged yesterday that Russia plotted for 15 months during the peace between them to destroy Finland's independence and finally launched an unprovoked attack on the Finns at the outbreak of the Russo-German hostilities.

The accusation was made in a Finnish government "blue and white paper" describing relations between Finland and Russia between March 12, 1940, when Finland signed a peace treaty dictated by victorious Russia, and June 25, 1941, when the second Finnish-Russian war began. It was made public by Hjalmar J. Procope, the Finnish minister.

Nazis Only Source of Aid

In a foreword to the compilation of papers, Procope said that Russia's plotting and hostilities threatened Finland with "annihilation" and, referring to the fight alongside the armies of Germany, he contended:

"Getting help from the only quarter that could and would help her in her present deadly struggle into which she was forced by Communist aggression, Finland is fighting for her liberty, her security, and the right to her place in the world, free from constant threat."

Procope said that Finland and the United States always have maintained "the very best relations," and that he was hopeful the documents made public would "contribute toward preserving and promoting the understanding and sympathy" between the two nations.

Says Russians Fired First

Procope asserted that on June 22 "only a couple of hours after the Russian-German hostilities had broken out, Russia began to bomb and shell peaceful Finnish territory," but that it was not until June 25, after Russian had launched a general attack upon the country, that "Finland decided to use all military force at her command in order to defend her country and her people."

"Thus Finland did not begin the war," he said. "She was forced to defend herself. She had no choice."

Among the allegations made were these:

That Russia forced upon Finland a secret agreement to permit Russian troops to cross Finland and that, only after that, Finland allowed German troops to be transported across its territory.

Revolution Plot Charged

That through diplomatic channels the Soviet supported a revolutionary group "bent on fostering disorder" and also attempted to interfere with the election of the President of Finland.

That the line of the new frontier was fixed so as to weaken Finland's possibilities of defense and place the U. S. S. R. in an advantageous offensive position.

That Soviet forces occupied Finnish territory in advance of treaty time schedules and prevented the removal of Finnish property not involved in the treaty.

That Russian troops and planes committed 109 violations of Finland's frontier, including the shooting down of a passenger plane carrying, among others, an American.

and American-made planes to the Russian front would be stepped up greatly through a ferry service partly manned by American pilots.

The routes might be across the southern Atlantic, Africa and Iran in the Middle East, across Alaska and Siberia, or by way of Iceland and Murmansk. The question is expected to be one of the details studied in the forthcoming Moscow conference on British-American aid to the Soviet.

Arrival of the first new Lockheed Lightning long-range fighters from the United States brought forecasts from some aeronautical circles that the R. A. F. soon will attempt big daylight raids deep into Germany possibly even as far as Berlin.

These quarters said the Lightning (known in the United States as the P-38 interceptor plane, a P-38E version of which has been ordered in large numbers by the United States Army) is armed with both cannon and machine-guns and has a top speed of more than 400 miles per hour.

Can Fly 1000 Miles

The Lightnings, single-seaters, powered by twin 1000 horsepower Allison liquid-cooled motors, can fly nearly 1000 miles with full armament. They thus would be able to escort bombers nearly to the suburbs of the German capital.

The lack of fighter escort has been the greatest deterrent to large-scale bombing operations in daylight over Germany. Such daylight raids as have been made often have involved substantial losses because bombers were forced to go it alone against swarms of Messerschmitts.

That British aid to Russia will not be confined to aircraft was indicated in a speech today by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, who declared "there are many ways in which naval help can be and is being given Russia, but I am not going to help the enemy by going into details of what is being done."

Attack Off Norway

The admiralty announced one exploit at dawn on Friday, however, in which naval planes from a carrier attacked shipping and military objectives in the region of Bodo, in Norway, south of Narvik.

The attack was described as a successful foray to cripple German supplies and sea communications with Nazi forces in the Arctic front in Russia. A 2000-ton supply ship was sunk and others damaged, the communique said, while an aluminum works was set afire and a power station hit.

Informed sources said intensification of such naval raids could be expected as Britain throws her navy into an autumn drive to give the pullest possible support to Russia.

In this connection it was recalled that surface craft on September 9 battled a German convoy supplying the Murmansk front, and succeeded in sinking a destroyer, the escort ship Bremse, an armed trawler and another ship and damaged others.

The fact that an aircraft carrier ventured into waters where the aircraft carrier Glorious was sunk earlier in the war, to make the attack at Bodo led observers to believe that the navy is using heavy forces to clear the northern seas and keep intact the Artic link with the U. S. S. R.

Alexander, speaking at Nottingham, said new British exploits could be expected "as new construction comes along," but warned that great fleet actions on the Russian front could not be expected because the navy's big job is to win the Battle of the Atlantic.

a destructive role in hammering Leningrad. One flier reported that bombers were "raining death and destruction" on the highways leading into the city.

He observed that Russian columns were moving toward the city, rather than outward to meet the German thrust, and from this observers assumed that the Soviets were withdrawing under pressure or as a strategic move were preparing for a decisive stand on a line smaller than the ring about the city where fighting has been going on about the city for several days.

Russians taken prisoner in the Leningrad sector in the last few days were reported to have told lurid tales of what is taking place within the city.

Germans said they had learned from these prisoners that the Russians were blowing up great numbers of buildings to make open places for a last stand, presumably so their machineguns would command a sweep of strategic points. Such places were reported being cleared especially around important government buildings, offices, schools and factories.

[Leningrad has many fine government buildings used by the Czars when the city was the capital of Russia.]

"Leningrad may be rubbish and ashes," even "if Germans manage to spare the city itself," said one commentator.

Aside from sweeping over the Leningrad area, the Luftwaffe ranged as far westward as Oesel Island off the Estonian west coast. Defensive works on the north shore of the island (where the Russians are reportedly basing their fleet for action against German sea reinforcements) were subjected to particularly concentrated assaults.

At another spot on the sea, near Leningrad, German fliers said they smashed a seaplane base, destroying at least 15 machines at anchorage in one place.

Railways, bridges and cannon emplacements were said to be other Luftwaffe objectives.

[A British broadcast said Germany was "flinging every available plane into the graveyard battles over the approaches to Leningrad," C. B. S. reported. "She is using her latest fighters, the Messerschmitt 115, and she is also using obsolete types to fill the huge gaps that have been made in her squadrons."

[London dispatches, announcing the arrival of R. A. F. units in Russia, said there were hints that British fliers already may have seen action, possibly in the Leningrad area.

[The Soviet communique, quoted one captured German pilot who said his group has lost 75 per cent of its aircraft. Replacements were not satisfactory, and the new pilots are young and inexperienced, he was quoted as saying.]

There were few details available concerning the action on the other fronts, but such reports as there were indicated it was lively.

The air force reported bombing expeditions in force in the region of Priluki, southwest of Bryansk, around the mouth of the Dnieper in the Black Sea region, and about the Crimea in the south.

These reports said 10 troop trains, two armored trains and two locomotives were blasted from their rails, two gunboats hit on the lower Dnieper, and a 3,000-ton steamer set blazing off Crimea.

ing these operations, while all British planes returned safely.

The 2000-ton supply ship was sunk early Friday when carrier-borne aircraft of the British navy attacked German shipping in the Bodo area of Norway. The Admiralty indicated the sunken vessel was carrying supplies to the Germans on the North Russian front.

In the same operations the British planes were said by the Admiralty to have hit an aluminum works and an electric power station and to have damaged other vessels.

In the Mediterranean and African areas British and Empire airmen were reported to have raided the airfields of Canada and Malemi on the Island of Crete, the airdromes of Gerbini and Catania in Sicily and Italian positions south of Gondar. South African air force planes were reported to have attacked the landing grounds at Gambut and Gazala in Cirenaica Friday while British naval flyers raided the Bardia and Gambut landing grounds Friday night. One aircraft was reported hit on the ground at Gambut and others damaged.

All these operations were carried out within loss of a single British plane, official British sources said.

Little German air activity was reported over England last night. A communique from the air and home ministries said bombs were dropped at only a few points and did only "slight damage." No casualties were reported.

Nazis Raid Suez

Berlin, Sept. 14 (AP).—Oil refineries at Suez and dock facilities at Suez and Port Taufik were hit in a German bombing attack last night, D.N.B. reported today.

One large fire and a number of smaller ones appeared in the refineries after the raid, the agency said.

Los Angeles, Sept. 14 (AP).—Senator Maximiano Errazuriz, industrial leader of Chile, is en route to Washington to appeal to Secretary Hull and President Roosevelt for release of industrial supplies to his country.

"It is very essential," he said in an interview, "that the defense program does not prevent us from obtaining machinery.

troop concentrations, of dozens of small, medium-sized and large ships into Bulgaerian ports and of recent movement of German legions from Rumania were declared in the main by Molotov to be established facts, justifying the sharp protest Russia delivered to the Bulgarian envoy to Moscow.

Facts and rumors concerning German military activity in Bulgaria have been trickling into Turkey for many weeks.

[From Sofia it was reported a partial mobilization of the Bulgarian army has been ordered effective today.]

[The class of 1921 and youths of the classes of 1922 and 1923 who have finished their secondary studies are being called to the colors.

[The government also is putting into effect decrees to suppress all subversive activities and may impose the death penalty for sabotage. These decrees are under the laws for civil mobilization and defense of the state.]

The first effect of these reports was to arouse nervous tension here over the possibility that the Axis might strike next in this direction. Recently, however, evidence has accumulated that whatever operation is contemplated it apparently is aimed not immediately at Turkey but at Russia across the Black Sea.

Where or how Germany could direct sea action against Russia from Bulgarian ports has aroused interested speculation by war observers.

For it is known that the Russian fleet is more powerful than the combined fleets of all the Black Sea, although many ships, including most of the larger ones, are seriously outmoded. Of five cruisers, a dozen or more destroyers and a score of submarines, only three destroyers and a few of the undersea craft are considered good by modern standards.

All the Russian ships are reported to be seriously short in anti-aircraft guns. For this reason they are believed scarcely to have ventured from well-protected bases since the start of the fighting along the Black Sea. They have landed some forces in an attempt to ease the siege of Odessa.

With sufficient air power Germany might convoy a fleet along the coast past Rumania and the southwestern Ukraine to strike back of the Dnieper. But the Crimean peninsula, probable goal of such a thrust, is considered strongly fortified and a landing there would be extremely hazardous, even with air support.

Nevertheless some such operation directed immediately back of the Russian lines or daringly clear across the Black Sea at Batum is considered likely. A Batum thrust might put the Germans in the Baku oilfields and as well rupture Russia's communications with her forces and the British in Iran.

Only piecemeal information is available here. Foreign military observers at Sofia are said to have been forbidden to leave that Bulgarian capital and travelers through military zones in Bulgaria are carried in "blind automobiles."

Axis political observers at Istanbul say that it is highly possible that Russia will declare war on Bulgaria in eagerness to destroy the Bulgarian ports of Varna and Burgas, Germany's naval concentration points.

Russians Closing In on Smolensk

the Reichswehr.

With the battle for Leningrad growing in intensity on the Northern Front, the Russians said 100 planes participated in the latest duel between the Luftwaffe and the Red air force in the sky above that Baltic port, and the Germans fled after losing 17 planes.

Marshall Semeon Timoshenko's western Red army, counterattacking on the central front, appeared to be closing in on Smolensk, on the old Napoleon road to Moscow, where the Germans are said to have been thrown back without having done as well as the Little Corporal.

On the Leningrad front, massive concentrations of Soviet artillery, one of the strongest arms of Russian forces in the war, kept up an unceasing cannonade to defend the approaches of that cradle of Bolshevism.

Soviet dispatches admitted that the Germans, in the face of riddling fire, took several settlements on the bank of a river "I" on the approaches to Leningrad, but said infantry counterattacks resulted in the recapture of three of them.

Naval aviation from the Red fleet in the Baltic has entered the battle at Leningrad, it was reported officially, showering with bombs and machinegun bullets the massed columns of German tanks, trucks and infantry and creating immense losses among them.

Following the recapture last week of Yelnya, 50 miles southeast of Smolensk, this advance in the Soviet counterattack meant Russians were closing in from two sides upon the German positions in the Salient.

Yartzevo is on the Minsk-Smolensk-Moscow railway.

A number of German prisoners were reported taken near Yartzevo and at the town of Dukhovschchina, only 30 miles north of Smolensk.

Soviet dispatch did not give details of the operation, but some advanced Russian units were reported within 12 miles of the battered city and Russian artillery was reported shelling German positions around it.

The Germans were said to be offering stiff resistance to the continuing Russian push.

Red Star, the army newspaper, said the Germans launched repeated counterattacks to stem the Soviet march in the last few days on the "CH" sector, but were beaten back. The Germans left many dead and 40 tanks and six field guns behind them, this dispatch said.

The start of the thirteenth week of the war also found Kiev and Odessa, two other major objectives of the German offensive, holding out in the face of raging battles at their approaches.

The Soviet press reviewed three weeks of action in the northwest, about Leningrad, describing the joint action of the Red army and peoples army in checking the assaults.

Izvestia, the government organ, described what it said was a typical tank battle in which Russian machines laid an ambush and stopped the advance of Nazi tanks followed by infantry. Thirteen of the German machines were destroyed in a three-day battle it was said.

In another action a Russian flier was said by Tass official news agency, to have destroyed a pontoon bridge. Scouts established that the Germans lost about a battalion of of infantry and 15 antiaircraft guns on this bridge, Tass said.

A Red Star bulletin said one Red army unit in this sector beat off repeated assaults and then in a counterattack destroyed a German battalion and captured ten guns.

Behind the German lines in this sector, guerrillas were said to be constantly harrassing the Germans. One band of 27 was reported to have recaptured two villages and held them for a day. Another guerrilla band was reported in the official communique to have smashed headquarters of a large German unit and killed 300 Germans.

Yet another band accounted for 124 German men and officers, the communique said.

One woman guerrilla, "Olga," a former parachute-jump instructor, was officially reported to have killed 14 German officers and men with an automatic which she captured from the Germans.

Fierce fighting with the Finns on the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad also was reported in Red Star, which said two Finnish regiments attempting to force a river left more than 200 dead when repulsed by two Russian infantry battalions.

On the southwestern front, a Soviet bulletin said the Red air force on September 11 destroyed 30 tanks and 50 trucks

One extraordinary action on this front was reported by Tass which said ten "Soviet patriots" stood their ground in the face of an overpowering attack by ten tanks and armored cars covering infantry. The Russians died in their tracks, Tass said, but they destroyed three tanks and 100 of the opposing soldiers.

Tokyo Calls Home Leaders in China

Concessions to U. S. In 'Co-Prosperity' Sphere May Result

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Tokyo, Sept. 14—Coincident with the return of a number of high army, navy and government officials to Tokyo from China, it became increasingly apparent today that Japan may consider American participation in the so-called co-prosperity sphere in the Far East. Although the stand of both countries may still be too far apart to warrant optimism, observers believe it noteworthy that the two have found a common ground on fundamentals.

Japan has frequently said that she does not intend to exclude the economic activities of third powers from the Far East, and it is now deemed possible here that she is willing to share the sphere with America as long as she may be the host and America the guest at the "co-prosperity table."

President Roosevelt was expected last week to make a conciliatory gesture toward Japan in view of the smooth-running negotiations going on between the two governments. But some unexplained difficulty materialized and he did not so much as mention Japan or the Far Eastern situation.

Japanese Still Hopeful

Nevertheless, the Japanese believe that further discussion is going on, with the United States awaiting more favorable consideration before taking definite action.

Among high Japanese officials returning from the Chinese war zone today were Maj. Gen. Teisho Kazesa, military adviser to the Nanking puppet government, who flew here soon after the arrival of other officials from Shanghai. Gen. Katora Nakamura, a member of the supreme council, reached Kobe yesterday after a month's inspection tour of China and was expected to come on to Tokyo at once.

Significance was attached to the return of Nakamura, inasmuch as he was, until the military shakeup on September 7, commander of the garrison in Korea. Two other important military officials returning unexpectedly from China were Lieut. Gen. Naojiro Amaya and Maj. Gen. Yoshi Hara.

Wakasugi Returning to U. S.

Kaname Wakasugi, special adviser to the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, Kichisabura Nomura, is scheduled to sail tomorrow from Yokohama for America. He has been in Tokio in consultation with government leaders little more than two weeks. Domei, the Japanese official news agency, in revealing his scheduled departure, did not give the name of the ship on which he would sail.

It is indicated strongly here that the government has a growing belief that the Chinese problem must be solved by the Chunking regime of Generalissimo Chang Kai-chek and the puppet government of Dr. Wang Ching-wei. The official news agency has reported that, to start conversations along this line, the Nanking Ambassador to Tokio, Dr. Chu Min-yi, left Kobe today, while Kazuo Aoki, economic adviser to the Nanking government, arrived with Vice Admiral Taiji Ohta, chief liaison officer of the Chinese office of Tokio's China affairs board.

Regarding reports that Japan is seriously considering the recognition of American economic rights and interests in the Far East, a Japanese government spokesman, Koh Ishii, said that proof of Japan's accord with American freedom of the seas demands was demonstrated by the fact that American ships carrying supplies to Russia were permitted to reach the Soviet port of Vladivostok unmolested.

"No Appeasement," Says Fraser

Auckland, New Zealand, Sept. 14 (INS).—Prime Minister Peter Fraser returned to New Zealand aboard a clipper today from his visits in England and the United States and declared "there will be no appeasement" in the Pacific, voicing the hope that "Japan will accept that fact."

He told newspapermen he had engaged in a "full discussion" with President Roosevelt on Pacific problems and was convinced that "the United States would not stand idly by if New Zealand and Australia were attacked or endangered."

Fraser acknowledged that the Pacific situation was "extremely critical" but expressed belief a basis for maintenance of peace still exists.

Referring to the consultations he had with Prime Minister Churchill, Fraser voiced satisfaction with Britain's war effort, saying:

"We are winning the battle of the Atlantic and have been winning it for the last three months."

Legion Group Hits Overseas Ban on Army

By International News Service

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 14.—The American Legion's National Defense Committee tonight recommended lifting the limitation which forbids use of American troops outside the Western Hemisphere and advocated permanent, universal military training.

The committee, in its report to be submitted to the Legion's twenty-third annual convention which will open in Milwaukee tomorrow, also assailed lags in the national defense program and demanded that defense authority be centralized to eliminate red tape.

It further asked permanent maintenance of a two-ocean Navy, complete fortification of all United States islands and possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific and maintenance of adequate garrisons in them, and acquisition through peaceful negotiation of other islands to be used as bases.

The Army and other armed forces, the committee stated, must be kept large enough so that "no aggressor nation will dare to invade the country," and must "always be ready to carry the war to the enemy."

The report advocated "a strong Navy, air force and Army to fight, if it is necessary to engage in war, on land away from the United States."

'Independent Group' Denounces Speech

By the United Press

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Gen. Robert E. Wood, national chairman of the American First Committee, announced tonight that an "independent group" of 58 prominent Americans" had united in a public condemnation of President Roosevelt's address last Thursday as a "grave threat to democratic principles of majority rule."

The group included former Governors William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma and Philip La Follette of Wisconsin; Alice Roosevelt Longworth; Charles A. Beard, historian; Irvin S. Cobb, writer; President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Leland Stanford University; George N. Peek, former chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"The President has decreed that shooting shall begin," the group's joint statement charged. "His edict is supported neither by Congressional sanction nor by popular will."

Mr. Roosevelt's speech was an open challenge to the authority of Congress, the statement said, and the committee called upon Congress to "reassert immediately in unmistakable terms, its historic guardianship of our lives and liberties . . ."

Unless Congress acknowledges the challenge, the group said, it must "submit to the imminent prospect of an undeclared war."

Wheeler Says Only War Will Silence Him

Polson, Mont., Sept. 15 (AP).—Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, a critic of the Administration's foreign policy, told a group of his home state folks today: "I'll stop talking only when Congress actually declares war as provided by the Constitution."

Wheeler reiterated that "when the President says to start shooting, then he is, in my opinion, violating the Constitution.

"Only Congress can declare war, and the President says that convoys mean shooting and shooting means war."

Saying that many had charged him with being a traitor, Wheeler asserted: "If I, Senator Clark, of Missouri, Senator Nye, of North Dakota and others opposing entry into the war are traitors, then 80 per cent of the people in the United States are traitors, because 80 per cent of them oppose our entry into foreign conflict."

Lindbergh Abused Rights, Says Dewey

Goshen, N. Y., Sept. 14.—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, speaking today at a picnic of Orange County Republicans at the historic half-mile track here, charged that Charles A. Lindbergh had been guilty of "an inexcusable abuse of the right of freedom of speech" in his recent speech at Des Moines, Iowa.

"Lindbergh, in a national broadcast, injected religious and racial prejudice into a discussion on foreign policy," Mr. Dewey said. "That, I declare, is an inexcusable abuse of the right of freedom of speech which 130 million Americans, regardless of their views, will wholly reject.

Bombs Cripple Croat Phones; Six Nazis Hurt

By the Associated Press

Zagreb, Croatia (via Berlin), Sept. 14.—Four time-bombs exploded in Zagreb's central telephone exchange today, injuring a German major and at least 13 other people.

In another quarter of hte city of Crotia six Croat soldiers were wounded by machine-gun fire.

[A British German-language broadcast picked up by C. B. S. in New York said that "patriots" in former Yugoslavia had destroyed an ammunition factory and a gasoline dump near Belgrade and wrecked an airplane factory whose location was not given. The broadcast declared that "Montenegro is completely in the hands of the patriots." Montenegro is the section of the former Yugoslav state which borders northern Albania.]

The first bomb in the telephone office, located in the main post-office building, exploded at 12:30 p. m. Three other blasts occurred 20 minutes later.

Telephones Crippled

The explosions crippled Zagreb's telephone system and made calls within the city or to outside points impossible. There was no indication when communications again would be restored.

Maj. Moehring, German signal corps officer, was wounded in the head. He is assigned to the staff of Maj. Gen. Edmund Glaise Horstenau, German liaison officer at Zagrib.

A Croat named Reikovic, who is local head of the Croat secret police, Ustachi, lost a leg.

A German lieutenant, four German soldiers, a German telephone operator and six Croats also were injured.

Communists Blamed

There was no official announcement, but informed sources said they believed Communist saboteurs were responsible.

As a result of the blast government offices temporarily were cut off from the rest of the country.

The six Croat sentries wounded were found lying in the street as the result of machinegun fire from a rooftop at a street corner in another part of Zagreb.

A systematic search of houses in the neighborhood was instituted and soldiers and gendarmes controlled the streets at the outskirts of the city.

Reports meanwhile reached Zagreb that the railway line connecting Brod with Srajevo in Bosnia was blasted for the fourth time the night of September 12.

Reds Help Solve Tanker Problem

Los Angeles, Sept. 14 (INS).—The Soviet cargo ship, Komilies, got aboard 1,540,000 gallons of aviation gasoline in drums today and prepared to depart for a Russian Pacific port.

She will be the first of a series of such gasoline-carrying vessels, harbor officials said, and will supplement shipments in tankers. The Komilies was set to sail early in the week for the Orient.

Wiedemann Lands in Buenos Aires, Finds Argentina's 'Dies Committee' on His Trail

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Sept. 14. (AP).—Capt. Fritz Wiedemann arrived by plane from Rio de Janeiro today on a mysterious new mission for Adolf Hitler, and immediately was put under surveillance by detectives of the Argentine Congressional "Dies Committee," which seeks to question him about Nazi activities in the Americas.

Simultaneously with Wiedemann's appearance, German Ambassador Edmund von Thermann, who is having troubles of his own, declared bluntly he has "no intention of withdrawing" from his post, as requested in a resolution now under debate in the Argentine Congress.

The mystery surrounding Wiedemann's visit was heightened by von Therman's announcement that Wiedemann, Hitler's close friend and World War commander, would leave "within a few days" on a special diplomatic assignment in the Far East, although this story has been circulated and denied before by Germans.

May Alter Plans

It may be that Wiedemann's plans were changed as a result of the extensive publicity attending his comings and goings in South America and that he now may go on to the Orient.

Raoul Damonte Taborda, chairman of the Congressional committee investigating subversive activities, admitted that if Wiedemann does not attempt to stay in Argentina "we have no right to detain him," since he holds a transit visa to cross Argentina to Chile.

"But if he attempts to stay he will be detained," he added firmly. Taborda earlier had called members of the committee together to determine possible procedure for calling Wiedemann, former consul-general at San Francisco, who was among about 500 Axis consular officials and others expelled from the United States last July.

The committee's detectives kept an eye on him from the time he stepped out of his plane and its members said he would be watched every minute of his stay in Argentina.

A Diplomat Now

Von Theremann, meeting Wiedemann at the airport, said the Argentine committee "is fussing without reason." He declared further that the committee had no right to question his colleague since he "is a diplomat on his way to an assignment on another continent."

[This was the first intimation that Wiedemann had been raised from consular to diplomatic status. A consul does not enjoy diplomatic immunity unless he happens to serve both as a consul and embassy attache.]

The ambassador said it was undecided yet whether Wiedemann would take a snip to Japan from Buenos Aires or would fly to Chile, thence by ship across the Pacific.

As for himself, von Thermann told interviewers that charges made against him by the congressional committee are "ridiculous and do not constitute a reason for my withdrawal." He said he had been subjected to personal insults by the chairman of the committee, which has accused him of "overstepping the bounds of a diplomat and abusing his privileges."

The ambassador said he would issue a statement at the close of the current congressional debate on a resolution censuring him or at the close of Congress—"otherwise the discussion would be endless." His statement followed a second protest to the Argentine foreign office over statements made about him in the house of deputies.

50 G.A.R. Veterans Will See Review Of Modern Arms

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 14 (AP).—A half a hundred Civil War veterans accompanied by members of five affiliated societies opened the Grand Army of the Republic's Diamond Jubilee National Encampment here today, their meetings made more colorful by presence of the United States Marine Band.

The silver-haired veterans, leaning on the arms of relatives and friends, attended ceremonies dedicating a sun dial, two memorial tablets and four trees in the State House yard. The annual memorial service in honor of deceased comrades was held tonight.

The veterans who fought with Smooth-bore cannon and cumbersome muskets will see Uncle Sam's most modern equipment in the annual parade.

The 751st Tank Battalion from Fort Knox, Ky., motorized units of the General Reserve Depot here, and other military units will rumble along in the line of march while fighting planes from Wright Field, Dayton, wheel overhead in salute to the marchers.

Lutherans to Quit Japan Missions

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (AP).—Dr. George Drach, administrative secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Lutheran Church, announced today that all Lutheran missionaries in Japan, with the exception of three at Tokyo, will withdraw from the country and return to the United States.

Ten U. S. Plants Bring Machinegun Output Up to Need

Ten plants are now producing machine guns, the Army reported today, adding that output had increased 460 per cent since August, 1940, and is regarded as sufficient for present estimated needs.

Only two plants were producing machine guns 14 months ago. Eight private plants placed under contract last year, some of which originally produced spark plugs, refrigerators and steering gears, all turning out both .30 and .50 caliber machine guns.

Four are General Motors Corporation units: the Brown-Lipe-Chapin Division, at Syracuse, N. Y.; the A. C. Spark Plub Division, at Flint, Mich.; the Saginaw Steering Gear Division, at Saginaw, Mich., and the Frigidaire Division, at Dayton, Ohio.

The others are the High Standard Manufacturing Co., New Haven, Conn.; Savage Arms Corporation, Utica, N. Y., and Buffalo Arms Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Clippers to Carry Freight

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Pan American Airways announced today it would inaugurate September 23 the first transatlantic air express service between the United States and Europe.

Shipments to Europe will not be accepted, however, the airline said, unless accompanied by "aircerts" from British consular officials certifying they contain no war contraband.

Delivery will be made by the giant clippers which maintain thrice weekly schedules between New York and Lisbon. Pan American officials said that hitherto mail and passenger demands had left no space for cargoes, but that in recent weeks the traffic "bottleneck" at Lisbon had been reduced.

Air express rates were set at $2 a pound with a $5 shipping minimum. The railway express agency has been appointed official receiving and delivery agent in the United States for the new service.

Conforming to government postal regulations, Pan American said it could not accept for air express to Europe packages containing money, securities, checks, drafts, payment orders, dividend warrants or any other negotiable instrument, assignment, bills of lading, certificates of destruction, patents and licenses, or debit and credit slips.

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 14 (AP).—Paul Patterson, publisher of the Baltimore Sun, and 25 other passengers, including Tomas Le Breton, Argentine Ambassador to London returning to Argentina on leave, took off today by transatlantic clipper for New York.

2000 Norse Under Arrest In Nazi Purge

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 14.—In four days 27 Norwegians have been court-martialed by the Germans—including five death sentences—and about 2000 have been arrested. From the list of victims it is quite evident the Germans are ruthlessly "purging" not only labor circles but everyone suspected of not approving of their and Vidkun Quisling's "new order" and those who might become a center of resistance.

Of the 12 men court-martialed yesterday it is not the two death sentences (later commuted to hard labor for life) which attracts attention. The reason, function and intent of the court-martial is much better revealed by the condemnation to 15 years at hard labor each to two of the most prominent Norwegian newspapermen—Frederick Ramm and Olav Gjerloew.

The first one is particularly well known for having followed Amundsen in his flight to the North Pole in the dirigible Norge. In recent years, however, he was one of the leaders of the Norwegian Oxford movement, now forbidden by Quisling, and it was probably because of his influence in Norway's Christian and youth circles that he has been "eliminated."

His colleague, Cjerloew, was the chief editor of Oslo's Morgenbladet and since the moment of the occupation he has shown complete fearlessness in his opposition to Quisling's regime. His popularity was such that when the newspaper was fined 3000 kronen by Quislingists the sum was immediately paid by an anonymouse reader.

Little is known about those who are being arrested. It is learned, however, that 300 trade unionists have been put behind the bars. It is also learned that the rector of Oslo's University, Aarup Seip, who was deprived of his post two days ago, has been arrested, as was also the former chief of Oslo's police, Mr. Welhaven.

Meanwhile, the "synchronization" of Norwegian labor continues. Because after Wednesday's events trade union officials and workers began to desert the unions en masse, the new Quisling "leader" of trade unions, Odd Fossum, published an order yesterday strictly forbidding trade union officials from abandoning their posts or workers from leaving their jobs and ordering the workers to pay their membership fees.

The workers were further informed that they would have to work overtime for every hour lost during air raids and also, despite their demands, that their pay would not be increased.

Reports from Norway said that radio sets would be confiscated throughout the country.

Despite these drastic measures which have transformed all of Norway into a concentration camp, or maybe precisely because of them, the Germans are greatly preoccupied by the opposition. An indication of it is seen in today's announcement by the chief of German SS and police in Norway recalling the decree of the twenty-second of September, 1940, forbidding Norwegians from possessing any kind of arms, stating that the authorities are aware that a great quantity of arms is still in the hands of Norwegians, and demanding their immediate delivery to the authorities, repeating that the penalty for keeping arms is death or long terms of hard labor.

3 Anti-Nazi Incidents Reported From Paris

By Ralph Heinzen

United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, Sept. 14.—Three more anti-German incidents were reported from Paris tonight on the eve of a busy week for special courts set up throughout France to handle cases of terrorism and subversive activity.

A German army officer was shot from behind as he left the Port Dauphin subway after the last train at midnight Friday. The bullet lodged in his thigh, and he was reported recovering at a hospital.

It was an attack on a German officer that precipitated the Nazi warning on August 15 that thereafter hotages in custody would be shot in number proportionate to the gravity of such acts.

Also on Friday night the bolts were removed from a rail, causing a railroad accident at the main freight terminal at Juvisy, south of Paris.

Another German officer was attacked with a blackjack outside the Ambassador Theater in Paris on the same night. So far as reports from the capital indicated, there had been no reprisals nor any arrests in connection with the new outbreak.

The government's legal repression campaign was due to swing into wholesale action this week.

The new political and terrorist courts will function at Paris, Nancy, Rennes, Bordeaux, Rouen, Dijon and Poitiers in the occupied zone and at Lyons, Marseille and Clermont-Ferrand in the unoccupied area.

More than 150 persons accused of communistic activity were expected to be tried within the week. The most important case appeared that of Gabriel Peri, one-time editor of the French Communist organ Humanite and the only real party leader who has been taken so far.

The terrorism courts held five sittings last week. They sent 27 persons convicted of Communist activity to prison and sentenced two to death but the extreme penalties were promptly annulled by pardons from Marshal Petain.

testify regarding what one member of the committee described as an "unusual" contract signed between the Defense Plant Corporation and the Aluminum Corporation of America.

Chairman Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, said Jones had been asked to appear tomorrow to explain provisions of an agreement under which the Government would advance $52,100,000 for the construction of three aluminum plants, in Massena, N. Y.; Tidewater, Wash., and Arkansas, as well as an alumina plant in the latter State. All are to be operated by Alcoa.

Committeeman "Surprised"

While Truman declined to comment, a committee member who asked to remain anonymous professed "surprise" at some of the terms of the agreement, both as to the methods of fixing prices to the Government for the finished product, and as to determining the amount of production during the 5-to-7-year life of the contract.

The committee summoned Arthur Bunker, OPM official, for testimony today on the general aluminum situation.

The House Banking and Currency Committee is to resume hearings on the Administration's price control bill, which was given a cool reception while it was being considered in August, and it has been suggested that the special Senate Committee investigating the gasoline and oil situation in the East may reopen its inquiry to hear Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and defense petroleum coordinator, who is returning from a vacation in the Northwest.

Director Contradicts Nye

Hollywood, Sept. 14 (INS).—Movie director Frank Borzage today denied charges of Senator Nye that he had been removed from direction of the motion picture "The Mortal Storm."

Nye, testifying before the Senate Subcommittee investigating charges of motion picture "war propaganda," said Borzage was removed because "he was not sufficiently brutal in directing the production."

Borzage informed Wendell Willkie, counsel for the accused producers, that:

"Senator Nye's statement is incorrect, as I started and finished the direction of 'The Mortal torm,' and at no time was I ever removed from my directorial duties.

Mrs. America, 19, Issues Challenge To Miss America

Palisades Park, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP). Mrs. America, crowned 1941 queen of married women in a Palisades amusement park contest, offered tonight to match charm for charm and measurement for measurement with Atlantic City's Miss America.

Without too much modesty, red-haired Mrs. Ruth Licklider, 19—Mrs. America—issued this challenge after a brief consultation with the park's press agents:

"I think I'm as beautiful as Miss America and I challenge her to a contest."

Miss Rosemary La Planche, of Los Angeles, won the Miss America title at Atlantic City a week ago. Mrs. Licklider, wife of a New York advertising man, was chosen here last night.

have already had an opportunity to justify their estimates during closed hearings, held last week.

Commissioner Young said yesterday he would be "very attentive" to the demands and suggestions by the citizens. He said they must realize, however, that it is impossible to grant the department heads "everything they request" and still remain within the bounds of the expected revenues.

"That is unless they are willing to pay increased taxes," he added.

Citizen spokesmen generally are not expected to recommend a boost in taxes at this time because of the added burdens of national defense.

Discrimination Of Noncitizens Laid to Services

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt was urged today by the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born to eliminate discrimination against noncitizens in the armed forces. Hugh de Lacy, national chairman of the committee, pointed out that 6300 noncitizens have been drafted into the Army but are denied the right to train for promotion or officership.

Noncitizens, de Lacy pointed out in his letter to the President, are not accepted for voluntary enlistment in the Navy or Marine Corps, although both are reported to be in need of recruits.

He urged that such enlistment be thrown open to them and that when drafted they should be allowed to study for and be promoted if fitted to officerships in the army.

Wright was held in the Hyattsville jail in default of $1000 bond. Police were also holding Edward Stevenson, 21, of 1604 Levis Street Northeast; Charles Washington, 19, of 705 Eighteenth Street Northeast, and Alexander Pope, 20, of 613 Eighteenth Street Northeast, all Negroes, as witnesses.

According to Corporal B. H. Police said the truck was driven by Sylvester F. Butler, 21, Negro, of 2559 Sheridan Road Northeast, a next door neighbor of Cook. Butler was not injured.

Cook was taken to Casualty Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

No charge had been lodged against Butler last night.

500,000 Persons Jam Newark To See Air Show

Newark, N. J., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The Newark Air Show, marking the reopening of Newark Airport, almost got lost in the shuffle today when an estimated 500,000 persons crowded into the city to see the spectacle.

Police Commissioner George Kass said the crowd was the largest ever to assemble in Newark and claimed that it probably was the largest ever to assemble anywhere for any single event.

The traffic jam was so great that a 2-mile bus trip from parking lots and depots required between two four hours. As a result, visitors were still straggling into the airport after the show was over.

3 Severe Quakes Felt in California Along Old Fault

Bishop, Calif., Sept. 14 (AP).—Four earth shocks, three of them fairly severe, were felt today.

Boulders were dislodged from slopes of the Sierra Nevada range but no damage was reported in this city. Report from Levining, about 70 miles north, said five shocks had been felt there.

The shocks, believed to have traversed the old Owens Valley fault where in 1872 one of the greatest earthquakes in California's history occurred with the loss of 65 lives, also was reported to have been felt at Fresno, about 100 miles east.

'Terror of Pampas' Killed in Gunfight

Mendoza, Argentina, Sept. 14 (AP). The law caught up today with Argentina's Robin Hood, wastrel son of a wealthy ranch family who spent 20 gun-toting years robbing the rich and giving to the poor.

It took a five-hour gun battle to bring the end of Juan Bautista Bairoletto, mustachioed "terror of the Pampas" who took up the life of a gunman after shooting an officer in a youthful barroom brawl.

War Games Facing Gulf Storm Threat

2 Armies Poised For Big-Scale La. Maneuvers

By the Associated Press

Lake Charles, La., Sept. 14.—A tropical storm swirling in the Gulf of Mexico added uncertainty today to the Army's greatest war games, with two field armies ready for general headquarters' signal to start toward each other in central Louisiana before dawn tomorrow.

The unprecedented field exercises involve about 300,000 men, a greater number than the American Expeditionary Force had in France until the closing months of the World War.

Commanders of the Second and Third Armies hoped for clearing skies. Heavy rain would make field maneuvers extremely difficult over the 30,000 square miles of lowlands with few roads and many swamps.

Second Army Outnumbered

The Third Army, under Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, with headquatrers here, will have a force of some 330,000 troops pitted against the Second Army of 130,000 men under Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear. The latter's headquarters were set up at Winnfield, about 150 miles north of here.

The outnumbered Second Army counted heavily on the battle punch of its two divisions of tanks and other armored vehicles.

Gen. Krueger said "weather or no weather, the Third Army is ready."

Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, General Headquarters Chief of Staff, said the start, generally expected before dawn, might be delayed so that the full effect of the new air task forces, supporting each of the armies, might be utilized.

Planes Flee Storm

A "hurricane warning" from the Army sent 400 planes of the Third Air Task Force scurrying from southern Louisiana fields to Alabama, Mississippi and inland Texas yesterday. Rain and low clouds kept the planes on the ground late today, too far from the Louisiana "battleground" to permit prompt action in support of the Third Army against the second.

All through the day both General Headquarters and Third Army Headquarters professed to know nothing of when or if the war would start. It was not definite that the weather conditions were a real deterrent or whether they were used to add to the uncertainty.

Theoretically, the larger Third Army had established beach heads on the Gulf Coast and was advancing northeastward. General Lear's Army is to check the drive, with columns of tanks and armored vehicles ready to strike at dawn at the Third Army's massed force.

Men Only
Iran Orders Internment Of 400 Nazis

By the Associated Press

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 14.—The Iran government today ordered police to remove 400 Nazi men from the German legation compound to barracks in Teheran for shipment to India and Russia where they will be interned for the duration of the war.

The government order followed long series of excuses by the legation which has delayed surrender of the Germans to the British and Russians.

At the same time, the British said the Iran government has notified the German, Italian, Hungarian and Rumanian Legations to leave the capital, and added the Bulgarian Legation to the list of diplomatic missions which will be closed.

Women To Choose

The British Legation said only a half dozen German women propagandists would be interned and that the remaining 400 German women and children could choose whether to stay here, return to Germany, or accompany the men to India. German Jews crowded offices of the legation to request exemption from the police roundup.

Iran official circles showed concern over the British Broadcasting Corporation's Iranian language broadcasts and the Iranian language programs from New Delhi, India, both of which have suddenly become violently critical of the Iranian government.

They indicated to many Iranian subjects that the status quo no longer had the approval of Britain and that those who forced changes might have received a go-ahead sign from Whitehall.

One broadcast gave extensive figures to show that taxes in Iran had increased 17 fold since 1921. The Delhi radio called for the release of former War Minister General Ahmad Nakhejvan who was arrested in an abortive airforce and army mutiny of August 30.

Jailing Called Illegal

Delhi said the jailing of Nakhejvan was illegal and that no real constitutional government would put a minister behind the bars without disclosing charges.

Reza Shah Pahlavi has indicated that he might receive deputies clamoring for permission for Parliament to exercise powers beyond those it now holds—merely to petition the ruler to institute reforms.

The Finance Ministry replied to a Delhi charge that the crown jewels had been sent out of the country by inviting Parliament to inspect them "in the near future."

National bank notes in Iran are issued against the jewels, which customarily are kept in the palace in Teheran.

U. S. 'Failure' In USO Program Hit by Dewey

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey criticized last night what he termed the Government's failure to build a single service club.

Dewey, chairman of the United Service Organizations campaign which raised 13 million dollars to equip Army and Navy recreational centers, told interviewers that the Government's part in the program had been "a total failure."

Dewey denied metropolitan newspaper reports he was engaged in a controversy with Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, who has charge of building Army recreation centers for the Government.

"I am not interested in who is responsible for this complete failure to the American soldiers and sailors," he said. "I am also not interested in the construction of pleasant mausoleums which will be good for use four years from now."

American Women Urged To Knit for Defense

New York, Sept. 14 (INS).—A million sweaters by Christmas for United States soldiers, sailors and marines was the goal announced today by Mrs. Junius S. Morgan, vice chairman of the Second Region Council of the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy, Inc. She called upon American women to take up their knitting needles and "knit for defense."

Parachute Troops Fail

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Japanese have tried parachute troops in the Chinese war, only to have them mopped up in each raid, a British radio broadcast reported tonight.

Gen. Brett Tours African Front, Sees U. S. Planes in Use

With the R. A. F. in the Western Desert, Egypt, Sept. 14 (AP).—Maj. Gen. George Brett, chief of the United States Air Corps, made a lightning tour of the desert airdromes with a staff of American specialists today.

He saw squadrons of Tomahawks and Glenn Martin Maryland Bombers and the fleet air arm's new Grumman Martlet fighters.

Escorted by Air Vice Marshal G. G. Dawson, he visited air officers commanding the western desert in the underground operations room. Then Brett drove to the airfield forward area and chatted with pilots, air-gunners and maintenance engineers.

Before entering a big Lockheed to fly back to Cairo, Brett said: "American machines seem to be standing up well under the abnormally difficult conditions out here. My job is to study needs in aircraft of both this and other fronts and insure a smooth supply of ships and spare parts so that new machines are not sidetracked or delayed between American factories and the battle front."

Marine Base Election Is Just a Family Affair

Roosevelt Is 'Hope Of World,' Pepper Says

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP). "The hope of the world has descended on President Roosevelt's shoulders," Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, said today at a rally sponsored by the Pulaski Civic League of Middlesex County.

"Seldom does a nation have the same opportunity knocking twice on its door in one generation," Pepper declared. "The last generation offered its lives to throw back the Hitler of 1914 and out of the war came restored countries. This is the time to decide if you are for America or against America."

Virility and Fertility Restored by Vitamin C, Scientist Says After Tests on Humans, Cattle

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 14.—Masculine virility and feminine fertility have been restored through the administration of vitamin C in experiments on cattle at the University of Wisconsin and in two cases similar results have been attained on human beings, Prof. Paul H. Phillips, of the department of biochemistry and animal husbandry, reports. Similar results have been obtained with pigs and rabbits and tests are under way with other species.

This property has not previously been observed in experiments on vitamin C. Deficiency of this vitaman is the cause of scurvy, a disease characterized by nerve inflammation, muscle pains and bleeding of the gums. The vitamin, now known as ascorbic asid, is supplied most plentiful in the diet by citrus fruits, tomatoes and other red vegetables and paprika.

Human diet requires plentiful supplies of vitamin C but cattle do not normally require it as it is normally produced in their bodies. In the study of cows that were difficult to breed it was discovered by an an analysis of their blood that they lacked this vitamin. Of 15 cows in this condition 5 had additional defects but 10 were otherwise normal and merely appeared to have grown oul beyond the breeding stage.

Vitamin C was administered by injection in the vein in the ten otherwise normal cows at the time of service and in each case the cow became pregnant and carried the calf to term, and produced normal healthy offspring.

Treatment of the bulls produced dramatic results. Nearly 80 per cent were restored to potency. These, too, were the ones otherwise normal but which had lost interest in their previous occupation. When the blood of the disinterested bulls was assayed it was found that they too were deficient in vitamin C, which their bodies normally produced.

The vitamin does not postpone the onset of physical old age, says Prof. Phillips. If it were not for their lack of vitamin C the animals were otherwise in condition to function in a breeding capacity. When they reach the age or condition in which they can no longer serve in that capacity the vitamin C will not restore them.

The lack of vitamin C may have been a secondary effect, he explained, as experiments have shown that the production of this vitamin in the animals is dependent upon an adequate supply of vitamin A, which is the only vitamin for which cattle are dependent upon outside sources and which they obtain from grass. Depriving the animals of vitamin A caused a reduction of vitamin C in their blood.

Two human cases were treated by a Madison physician. In each case the husband, in a childless marriage, was treated for impotence. In each case the husband became potent and produced viable spermatazoa and then in each case the wife was found to be sterile so the marriages continued childless. Two other physicians are testing vitamin C for this purpose in human cases. One is in an Eastern university and the other in a Pacific Coast city.

Munitions Boat Explodes, Starts Fires in Helsinki

Helsinki, Sept. 14 (AP).—A terrific explosion in the harbor of this Finnish capital aroused the entire city early this morning and an official announcement said that a depth charge lying on the deck of a vessel evidently had exploded, detonating the ship's whole cargo of explosives.

Burning naphtha was showered over the harbor, setting fire to two nearby vessels. Waterfront buildings were damaged and windows were shattered in a wide area.

Other circumstances of the blast were not disclosed although it is known there were a number of casualties among the crews of the affected ships.

Washington's Budget

There is nothing surprising about the fact that the local budget estimates add up the largest sum ever requested by department heads of the District government. Washington will be a larger city in the fiscal year 1943 than it has ever been before. Merely to maintain existing standards of municipal service will require a substantially larger sum than the local government has ever spent for that purpose in the past. Naturally the new budget will have to be cut according to the enlarged pattern of the city itself.

Yet the task of shaping the District budget is not merely one of increasing funds for each department in the same ratio that population has increased. Expenditures must not be permitted to exceed anticipated revenue, unless the Commissioners are ready to sponsor additional taxes. Commissioner Young has already pointed out, with unassailable logic, that citizens confronted by a sharp increase in Federal taxes and higher costs of living should not be asked to pay stiffer local taxes too. Some of the estimates must, therefore, be trimmed. The community can only hope that the Commissioners will have the good judgment to apply the knife where it will be felt the least. In dealing with such swollen estimates as those of the National Zoological Park and the National Capital Parks Office their task will be easy, but in many other instances a choice between truly urgent projects may have to be made.

One other important factor should enter into the deliberations of the Commissioners, and is certain to be taken into account by Congress. Improvements that would tend to draw scarce materials or skilled labor from the defense industries ought to be postponed wherever possible. Of course, some new schools will have to be built, sewers will have to be laid and streets paved to accommodate Washington's great influx of population. Many such improvements are an essential part of the defense program, as for example the proposed new approaches to bridges leading to the War Department Building about to be constructed in Arlington. But many less essential projects can and should be postponed.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York has set a good example in this respect by instructing his City Planning Commission to put its proposals for capital improvements in an "ice-box" budget for attention at a later date. This spirit of cooperation with the Federal Government in meeting the present crisis ought to guide municipal authorities throughout the country. In the case of Washington, with its great influx of defense workers, however, the problem of delaying nonessential projects is likely to be less troublesome than that of financing those undertakings which have a direct bearing upon the Nation's preparedness effort.

Astute Mr. Willkie

Wendell L. Willkie has let it be known that he will use all his influence to line up the Republican Party behind the foreign policy of the Roosevelt Administration during the 1942 campaigns. His associates say that he will work for the nomination and election of Republicans who favor a strong stand against the aggressor powers, and that where Republicans who oppose the Roosevelt foreign policy are fighting Democrats who favor it he will remain silent. This course suggests that Mr. Willkie's political astuteness was in no way diminished by his defeat in the Presidential race of 1940.

As head of the Republican Party, Mr. Willkie is under obligation to guide it away from the disastrous course many of its representatives in Congress are taking. He knows that in a national crisis blind opposition to Administration policy is not enough to win support for a minority party. Indeed, a merely negative stand at a time like the present is as dangerous for the G. O. P. as it would be for the country. Mr. Willkie is rendering a partisan as well as a patriotic service, therefore, in trying to steer the G. O. P. away from the blind alley of isolationism. But the energetic standard bearer of 1940 does not intend to waste his strength trying to drive isolationists out of the Republican Party. Apparently he plans to build up and strengthen the constructive element instead of working to "purge" the dissenters, as President Roosevelt did without success in 1938. This is good sense as well as good politics. If the G. O. P. cannot evolve a sound foreign policy by this constructive approach, its chance will be small of becoming once more a powerful influence in shaping the destiny of the Nation.

Slow Spending

The American people, faced with the prospect of further Presidential requests for defense appropriations, may well ask what has become of the huge sums already appropriated. We find that only a tithe has already been spent. No matter how much money is voted for defense, there is a definite limit to the amount that can be spent to advantage within any given period of time for defense purposes. Spending is a time consuming process, calling for careful placement of orders. And orders in turn require weeks, months, or even years to execute, depending upon the character of the work, the adequacy of production facilities, the availability of labor and raw materials, etc. It is logical, therefore, to find a considerable gap between the sums Congress has voted for defense purposes and the amounts actually expended to date.

However, the actual difference is so tremendous as to be astonishing. For example, on the basis of incomplete official data, estimates of appropriations and contract authorizations range from 52 billion to 56 billion dollars in the period from July 1, 1940, to September 1, 1941, whereas actual expenditures during that time totaled only $8,132,000,000. That leaves from 44 billion to 48 billion dollars, or approximately 85 per cent of the defense funds appropriated or authorized, still unspent. In reality the amount spent for defense is even less then appears on paper. The reason is that "defense" has become an elastic classification covering a multitude of spending activities that would be carried on (to some extent) if times were normal.

To be sure, the pace of defense spending has quickened recently, and is running currently at the rate of slightly more than one billion dollars monthly. The latest revised budgetary estimates, released the first of last June, placed total defense outlays for the current fiscal year at $15,500,000,000. Later revisions may, of course, boost this estimate. Nevertheless, the poor showing to date makes one wonder why the President is continually asking for more money. The chief reason, no doubt, is that appropriations voted for specific purposes are not available for other uses. Moreover, some appropriations are exhausted quickly, while others are designed to finance long-range programs.

After making generous allowance for inevitable and excusable delays in spending the money voted for defense, the fact remains that the spending record is very disappointing, because it shows how far away we are in point of time from the goal we have set for ourselves. Of course, we can't spend for defense any faster than we can produce, and arm for defense, unless we squander money. For that very reason, the rate of defense spending is the significant index of progress. Appropriations are merely evidences of intention to spend—evidences which may not be translated into action for many months.

Army Shake-Up

Morale, according to Mr. Wookey, is a dirty French word and the less said about it the better. We have to recognize, nevertheless, that spotty morale in the Army has in a number of instances been due to inferior leadership in the officer corps. The War Department has appreciated this, of course, and has been laboring for some time to clear out the unfit. It is apparently a slow business; yet the department has recommended the release of 170 officers whose efficiency is below par. And this is just the beginning. For as maneuvers proceed the ax will presumably fall on a good many more Regular, National Guard and Reserve officers who fail to measure up to newly stiffened standards. All who are recommended for dismissal, however, will be given hearings before a board of "not less than five general officers," so that there should be a minimum of disgruntled charges of discrimination or unfairness.

How extensive will be the impending reclassification and retirement of officers is still in doubt. As of today there are some 15,000 officers in the Regular Army, 22,000 in the National Guard and 69,000 in the Reserve. In the past many critics have felt that the War Department, conscious of political ramifications, has been perhaps over-cautious in its policy toward National Guard officers. But it is perfectly clear that if the Army is to have effective leadership the Guard's officer personnel must meet the same tests that are applied in the Regular Army and the Reserve, in both of which there are admittedly some incompetents.

In stiff military parlance the Army is seeking "to save to the service the commissioned man power of the Nation, where such services can be utilized to the advantage of the Government, and to provide a means of eliminating those who are found unsuitable." Senior officers who are too old for active field service but whose administrative abilities are a matter of record will be given desk jobs. And other seniors who are less distinguished will be retired to make way for younger men who should possess, above all, greater imagination.

In effect the reclassification process will lower Army age levels, thus tending to answer the general criticisms that many in the officer corps are too old to cope with the exacting demands of total war. It is unfortunately late for a thoroughgoing shake-up; unless the Army's weeding-out process is in fact thoroughgoing, however, it never can achieve the maximum efficiency which the present crisis demands of our armed forces.

For The Record

We should like at this point to recall an editorial that appeared on this page on May 5 of this year under the title, "Slaughter of Innocents." It concerned the then current rumor that the Nazi government had quietly put to death some scores of thousands of Germans who, because they were blind, senile, incurably sick, incurably insane or mentally deficient, were deemed unworthy to remain Herrenvolk. The accusation had been openly brought by Mr. Michael Straight. Mr. Straight quoted from the official Vatican Journal (Acta Apostolicae Sedis) in which are published for the guidance of bishops the doctrinal decrees of the supreme Congregation of the Holy Office. The question had been submitted to the Holy Office as to whether the killing of such persons "by order of public authority" is lawful. The reply was, of course, that it is not lawful, since it is contrary to divine law, both natural and revealed. This decree had been formally approved by Pope Pius XII. Mr. Straight said the question had been submitted by a German bishop.

We suggested, that while this might amount to "something less than proof positive" of the rumors of wholesale Nazi "mercy killings," no Catholic bishop would have raised a question upon such an elementary point of morals purely for its theoretical interest. We observed also that, true or false, the rumor "fits logically into the totalitarian concept of the relation of the state and the individual. The right of the state to take this or any other action, without regard to objective ethics, has been explicitly stated again and again in the preachments of Hitler, Ley, Rosenberg and other Nazi theologians."

For all this we were pretty harshly condemned by many of our readers. Some merely thought us naive in having swallowed a clumsy and transparent piece of British war propaganda. Others went so far as to accuse us of disingenuously spreading for ulterior purposes an atrocity tale that we well knew to be false. These readers appeared to believe that a group of leaders which has coldbloodedly undertaken the extermination of millions of Poles and hundreds of thousands of Jews would somehow balk at the extermination of a few tens of thousands of their own countrymen who could be of no possible use to them as workers or cannon fodder. However, the story of Nazi "mercy killings" has now been amply attested. It has been described in great circumstantial detail by Americans lately returned from Germany, including such experienced and reliable reporters as William L. Shirer and Joseph C. Harsch. These not only have confirmed Mr. Straight's account of the vigorous denunciation of these murders by the German Catholic clergy; they have described the courageous opposition by many Protestants, such as Pastor von Bodelschwingh, of Bethel, and the disciples of Dr. Martin Niemoeller. Thanks to the popularity of books like "Berlin Diary" and "Pattern of Conquest," the major details are now known to almost all Americans, and we mention the matter here merely for the sake of keeping the record straight.

QUARRY

Somewhere the quarry has been sprung
And hot along the scent
My neighbor's hound gives lusty tongue
To tell which way it went.

My neighbor's hand can train a gun
And speed a bullet true,
And many a merry chase is run
Before the season's through.

Yet fear flies faster than we guess
And works a craftier charm
For all that pit their helplessness
Against a greater harm.

Oh, shadow dark amid the fern,
These woods will make no sound;
Ever the trail will twist and turn
And not a trace be found!

There will be coverts yet to break
And snares to spoil the kill—
Under the warm flanks' heave and quake
The strong heart beating still!

American Youth

Why make slaves of American youth? Today we find a vote has been cast and a bill passed to lower the income tax deductions. Just how are youths expected to get ahead or to be ambitious, when they must be taxed if they make the pitiful sum of $16 a week. We are helping all countries in Europe if they will fight Hitler. Our American youth should be as important to us as the youth of England or Russia. Is it? I wonder?

Think what a raw deal the American youth is getting. He was called to the colors because Churchill was fighting Hitler. So he trained for war with wooden equipment. He was to serve one year after he was drafted. Then he was forced to serve 30 months. And after he gets out (if he does), he is not to look for anything better than $16 per week or else he owes the Government.

If our Government had the foresight to see the need of a larger man power, then it should also have had the foresight to think what we are going to use for weapons besides broomsticks and welded anti-aircraft guns.

How many of the lawmaking minds think men can be trained for combat without the real McCoy? Remember, when you visit an Army post, you see the best and all they have. If there is not enough equipment to go around, they put extra soldiers to doing something at the barracks. They don't tell you these things, or you don't see this from the receiving stand. I soldiered at Fort Knox, Ky., and I am confident when Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, visited the fort he thought they had something there. But ask the men inside what they had to train with and how long they had to wait in line for a feel of the weapon.

Let's consider the American youth more and Britain and Russia less. Russia made slaves of their youth. Must we follow their footstep because of Europe's conditions?

Washington, Sept. 9.

Awaiting Attack

Talking to a flagman at a country station of the Southern Railway, I asked him what he thought of the war, and what we ought to do. "We ought to go right in and fight," he answered. "I'd rather have the war in their country than in ours, destroying our cities and bombing our women and children." He could see what Wheeler, Lindbergh and others can't see, and he has a wisdom that is not theirs.

Nothing tended more to destroy the morale and efficiency of that great French army than sitting down on that protecting line waiting to be attacked, doing nothing, the fire within cooling, dissatisfaction rising, and as Hitler was sending his reserves to Poland seeing the great opportunity slipping from its hands. Cannot these subversives now vociferously banning disunion among our people and discontent among our soldiers, counselling waste of time and neglecting the advantage of Russia's clinch with Germany, see yet that the calamity that overwhelmed Europe's democracies is awaiting us?

With Japan claiming the Pacific, Germany the Atlantic, Stick-in-the-Mud Mussolini the Mediterranean as his private cake, what is left to the Americans but the icebergs of the North and South poles? The trumpet with no uncertain sound should proclaim our declaration of war and Wheeler, Lindbergh and all that class join with Congress in a mighty shout: "Up, guards, and at them!"

Mr. LaGuardia

Your unnamed editorial writer, in the feature series "Guns for Soldiers," in a recent article laid bare the glaring weakness of the Office of Civilian Defense as at present constituted; and evoked an echo of approval in the mind of this reader.

The Office for Civilian Defense was established by the President as an important supporting reservoir of resources, influenced no doubt by the "time factor," the need of unity of thinking on the part of the populace, as well as unity of effort on the part of all the population in the cause of national defense, and with the idea of formulating a plan of preparedness that will be practical, and ready for use when the time comes.

The appointment of Mr. LaGuardia as national director of the OCD, by the President, seemed to be a happy selection at the time it was made; but, as your editorial writer points out, the dynamic Mayor of New York City has too many irons in the fire, and has shown by his administrative actions since the time of his appointment that his comprehension of the real work of the OCD is a one-sided one—an elaboration of the military plans or an adaptation of those plans for the security of industrial areas and plant protection—rather than a clean-cut plan of operation for the civilian population, distinctive and apart from the military activities of the armed forces.

It does seem as though certain of the existing Federal organizations might more profitably be utilized in the work of the OCD. I refer to the CCC, the NYA, the USPHS and the WPA. Continuing with this line of thought, it does seem as though the utmost value might be obtained from the contributions of these organizations if the present administrator of the Federal Security Agency, having the direction of most of these units, also had a contributing hand in the affairs of the OCD.

This writer is friendly to Mr. LaGuardia (the mayor has recently made known his appreciation of this attitude); but, due to the admitted bogging down of the work of the OCD a change of direction seems desirable if not imperative.

May I offer the suggestion that the mayor be made coordinator of Military and Defense Activities—that ought to be to his liking; that a man of the ability and resourcefulness of Owen D. Young be appointed national director of Civilian Defense; that an Advisory Committee on Civilian Defense be appointed, consisting of Mr. Paul McNutt, Mr. Jesse Jones and Mr. John Carmody, with Mr. McNutt as chairman.

The mayor would not have to get into full speed until after the New York City election. Mr. Young, with the unquestioned loyal support of the three gentlemen named, could by that time have a complete national set-up in working order.

Bad Propaganda

The rather childish investigation of propaganda movies by adults who should have grown out of such habits as name-calling and mud-slinging, will probably contribute little to the defense of a Nation obviously on the skids.

Propaganda in America has seldom been worthy of the name. The movie propaganda for war sunk to a low level in such films as "The Great Dictator" and "Underground." The first, because it was an absurd attempt to destroy dictators by laughing at them, and the second, because of several impossible situations. The average Hollywood movie is produced on the assumption that audience intelligence does not exceed that of a 12-year-old from the Tobacco Road country. Mr. Nye is probably correct when he feels that such films are bad for the people—they are bad for any people, but we have no reason to believe that Leni Riefenstahl is the solution.

Granting the need for propaganda to defend America, and even propaganda to get America into the war, we must be sadly disappointed at the banal statements and posters that slap us in the eye whenever we pick up a paper or look at a billboard. From Farm Security to WPA art there has not come one picture or phrase that would convince the average citizen this country was worth defending against outside aggression. Most of our printed propaganda follows the approved Nazi "Zuruck zur Vergangenheit," or back-to-the-past type of writing. WPA art, as a rule, follows the line of Italian Fascism, a sort of pseudo-expressionism that attempts to escape from so-called bourgeois realism by being preoccupied with color and form for exhibition purposes only. Both Germany and Russia dallied with this type of art, and both nations discarded abstractions and expressionist art because it was not possible to spread political ideas among the masses with pictures that had to be deciphered by the artist. Our defense posters have been especially inept and have about as much emotional appeal as a cake of ice.

It is hard to say whether Mr. Nye and other pro-Axis elements in this country despise us for our inefficiency in politics and propaganda, or envy us for our indifference. The fact remains that, we seem to be a Nation without a program, or at least we have not the courage to put a program into effect. We either do not believe in democracy enough to defend it, or we do not believe in democracy at all and lack the decency to admit that we prefer another form of government. Huey Long predicted that America would have Fascism, but under another name. It appears that the Kingfish was more than a fair prophet.

Our Pal Joey

Poor Mr. Dies! He doesn't seem to have much luck. After putting in so much faithful, fervid work exposing Communists, he misses the bus for lack of timing.

But where has Mr. Dies been that he failed to learn when the schedule was changed? Presto-chango, and overnight a new political timetable went into effect, since when we have gone all out to aid Russia and the Communists, i. e., to sell them a bill of goods, not to denounce them.

It is true that heretofore Russia was the Red Menace, Stalin a bloody butcher, etc., etc., but all that was reversed while Mr. Dies was not looking and Stalin is now our pal Joey.

So now how can we be pro-Communist and anti-Communist at the same time?

Or is that easy for the war-makers, who apparently believe in war for any purpose and at any price.

The Post Impressionist

Little Corporal

In the late 1890's, continuing into the dawn of the present century, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, edited by Joseph B. MacCullough, became the most influential newspaper in the West, and the metamorphosis, from comparative obscurity, was brought about by the strong-brain efforts of the Little Corporal, as MacCullough was designated by his familiars.

He was a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde person; not that there was evil in his Hyde personality, but his opinions and precepts were so at variance with his public expressions that the comparison holds true. Mac was a Democrat; his newspaper militant Republican; when with friends at table or of an evening he was most congenial; at his desk he was a porcupine.

It was the newspaper that counted with the Little Corporal; never the individual employe. To be fired from the Globe-Democrat was no bar against reinstatement; to resign meant the portals were closed forever. It was unthinkable that any person could better himself by severing connection.

That the newspaper as an institution was greater than any or all persons who labored in the old building on Chestnut Street was brought forcibly home to O. R. Lake, night editor, whose efforts resulted in an extra containing a news scoop of national importance. Lake arrived early that afternoon and sauntered into MacCullough's den, where he had reason to expect congratulations. Nary a word about the extra was said by the Little Corporal, until Lake stutteringly brought forth the subject. "Uh, huh!" grunted the editor in chief. "We have the best composing room force in the country."

Harry Whiting, when telegraph editor, asked leave of absence because of ill health. Replied MacCullough, "The Globe-Democrat is not responsible for the condition of your kidneys."

Early in 1899 a tornado whipped a span from the Eads Bridge, demolished many buildings in the vicinity of Tower Grove Park and took a large toll of human lives. I was in Cleveland at the time, having been called home by the death of my father. Two days after the funeral I read in an extra what had happened in St. Louis. My mother agreed that I should return to my job and next morning I hurried into the office of Harry Wandell, city editor.

"Mighty glad to see you," he exclaimed. "I haven't had a wink of sleep since day before yesterday when I looked out that window and saw a smokestack sailing through air. The entire staff has been worked to a frazzle."

I entered the editorial sanctum and reported for duty. The Little Corporal, elbows on desk and only his toes touching the floor as he leaned forward in his swivel-chair, merely grunted and without even looking up from a galley proof he said: "I gave you two weeks' leave. When the time is out show up for work."

It was preposterous for a person to harbor a thought that the great St. Louis Globe-Democrat stood in need of his services!

That same year a slight earthquake shock caused dishes to rattle and a few objects to tumble down from shelves. The tremor was felt throughout the Central West and telegrams describing the occurrence commenced coming in. Handling copy at the time, I asked if these dispatches should be woven into a story.

"No," snapped MacCullough. "Use every line that comes in. Be sure and mark each item 'Special to the Globe-Democrat.'"

"He's gone completely nuts," I muttered as I set to work.

Next morning I changed my opinion, and for the first time realized the greatness of the newspaper. Two pages crammed with six-eight-ten-line items, all of the same tenor, every one of them from a special correspondent. . . . a host of news gatherers greater than employed by any other paper! A more forceful exhibit than could have been presented in a volume of advertising.

Although, as a general rule, the Little Corporal editorially espoused principles of the Republican Party, he would occasionally rip the hides off G. O. P. leaders. A case in point happened when the Republicans, enjoing a majority in the Missouri Legislature, favored an enactment that was not to the liking of the belligerent editor, who published a series of articles which caused their hides to sizzle. So vituperative was the attack that a committee of three was appointed by the lower house to visit St. Louis and remonstrate.

The protestants arrived from Jefferson City on one of the days when temperature in the Mound City was endeavoring to rival that of Phoenix, Ariz.

"Good morning, gentlemen. What may I do for you?" was MacCullough's greeting.

The spokesman announced their mission.

Making no reply, the Little Corporal crossed the floor, closed the windows, then with a pongee coat over his arm and a palmleaf fan in hand, he sauntered down the corridor, entered an elevator and disappeared.

It is related that he beckoned to a friend across the street and went with him to Mack's place, where during the next hour they mopped up several steins of beer and enjoyed free lunch.

Finally, returning to his sanctum, he confronted the three personages, who, having had nothing to do but twiddle their thumbs in a stuffy room where the mercury registered nearly 100, resembled boiled lobsters rather than human beings.

"Ha!" exclaimed MacCullough, "what sort of paper will we have tomorrow?"

The spokesman, bewildered, muttered something about not being able to understand the remark.

"No?" said MacCullough. "It is very simple. For several years I have looked about for someone who might edit the Globe-Democrat better than I, and an hour ago I was led to believe that I had discovered three such individuals."

Japan Reconsiders

By Ernest K. Lindley

Tension Temporarily Eased

HIGH OFFICIALS are seeking to discourage optimism concerning the outlook for a peaceful settlement in the Far East. Tension between the western powers and Japan has eased—temporarily. Signs multiply that, under the guidance of the Emperor, Japan is reconsidering her foreign policy. But our conversations with Japan are still described in high quarters as "exploratory." They have not entered the stage of "negotiation."

LINDLEY

To write, therefore, of "demands" made by the United States would be inaccurate. The word signifies something akin to an ultimatum. Exploratory conversations—feelers—do not proceed on that basis, and neither do negotiations.

WHAT WE would regard as a suitable basis for enduring peaceful relations is, however, well understood by Japan. Japan would have to:

1. Renounce her link to the Axis.
2. Renounce further aggressions in the South Pacific.
3. Refrain from attacking the Soviet Union.
4. Surrender her foothold in Indo-China.
5. Withdraw her military forces from China—at least from central and southern China.

Some would require Japan to go even further: to withdraw from Manchukuo.

This would amount to a complete about-face in Japanese policy. It would mean surrender of the whole Japanese concept of the "new order" or "co-prosperity sphere" in Asia. It would mean admission that the great investment of Japanese blood and money over the last ten years had been a heavy net loss.

IT IS EASY for a distant observer to visualize how much better off Japan would be now if she had never embarked on a policy of military expansion. With shipping and most types of manufactured goods at a premium, Japan, as a friendly neutral, would be coining money during this war. Instead, Japan has scores of thousands of dead, vital shortages of materials, and the growing threat of bankruptcy.

If the Nazis should win the World War, Japan might find a place as a satellite state. But the Japanese vision of an independent empire would vanish. If the Nazis lose, as now almost certainly is going to happen, Japan will be completely sunk unless she cuts loose now.

But a sudden and complete reversal of Japanese policy—which would acknowledge that for almost a decade Japan has been going in the wrong direction at heavy cost—is, admittedly, too much to expect.

One Japanese, avowedly anti-Hitler and antimilitarist, has been telling officials and newspaper men in Washington that the most that can be expected is that Japan will begin to draw away from its Axis tie. Another has indicated that a token withdrawal from southern China is the most that can be expected now; that withdrawal from Indo-China is impossible because the Japanese went there with the "consent" of the Vichy government.

Japan is not yet bereft of bargaining power. She has a good navy, a fair army and a third-rate air force. Together they are immobilizing the major part of our Navy and air and ground forces which could be used to better advantage in the Middle East or the Atlantic.

BUT JAPAN'S bargaining power is steadily weakening under economic pressure. And, it can be asserted with confidence, our Government no longer fears a showdown. For it is sure that if armed hostilities must be resorted to, Japan will be forced to surrender before Hitler could possibly take advantage of the diversion in the Pacific to obtain control of the Atlantic.

That Japan bet on the wrong horse—in the Axis—now seems to be recognized by the Emperor. Whether he recognizes that Japan has been pursuing the wrong policy for years is open to greater question. Whether he can quickly reverse Japanese policy is even more questionable.

Why our high officials discourage premature prophecies of a peaceful settlement is, therefore, readily understandable. And their readiness to contemplate failure is sharpened by the confidence that what might be worse for us would be disaster for Japan.

Civil Plants Feel Pinch.

Have Fighting Chance

By Frank MacMillen

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Little fellows in the manufacturing businesses, already squeezed hard by shortages of materials and skilled labor needed for defense, and likely to be squeezed harder for some time to come, still have elements of hope in a plight which, to many of them, at present appears desperate.

This was one of the important conclusions to be drawn from a Nation-wide survey completed today by the Associated Press.

The survey clearly indicated curtailment for small and medium sized factories making civilian goods was on the increase, that some shutdowns had already occurred and that others appeared nearly inevitable in the near future.

But it also showed:

1. That the smaller plants were getting considerably more defense business than recently, even though individual plants reported they could take from 50 per cent to 10 times more of such work.

2. That Washington authorities were more conscious of the problem of the small manufacturer and his employes. This was signalized by the appointment this week of Floyd B. Odlum, New York financier, commonly considered here both energetic and capable, to head a reorganized division of contract distribution in the newly formed defense super-agency, Supply Priorities and Allocation Board.

3. That in some sections of the country the smaller factories had fared relatively well, because they had foreseen the pinch of some kinds of supplies for civilian manufacture and had turned quickly to seeking defense business, where supply priorities were obtainable.

THE NATIONAL Association of Manufacturers last spring surveyed 18,000 key manufacturing plants as to their ability to undertake defense work.

Recently, in an attempt at a quick recheck of the situation, it took 10 small or medium sized firms in each of 19 key industrial cities, about a one per cent sample of the original check, and queried them about their status in relation to the defense program.

These are some of the results, hitherto unpublished:

Seventy-five per cent of those who had had no defense work at all on May 1 now are working on primary or sub-constracted Government jobs. This group numbered 142 firms.

Forty-seven firms said they had no defense work yet; of these six said their machinery had proved unadaptable; nine that they had not sought defense work; the remaining 32 mentioned various reasons why they had not been able to obtain armament work. Inability to meet low costs of some large producers was often mentioned as a factor. "Cost plus" contracts were suggested as a remedy by many of the replies.

From among these approximately 190 firms came the replies which indicated that half again to 10 times as much defense contracting could be done as was at present on their books.

THE SURVEY revealed many typical instances of the difficulties of the industrial midgets, many of which have prospered in a peacetime economy and now wonder if they can carry on.

Typical was the experience of the Commar Products Corp., of Newark, N. J., which said it had laid off "400 or 500" of its 1,700 workers because of inability to get copper, mainly, but also nickel, silver and zinc, tools and machinery for replacement.

A company spokesman said:

"We believe the Government will keep us going, not so much for our particular sake but because of the effect on 20 or so other industries calling on us for slide fasteners."

The other industries, clothing, luggage and the like, the spokesman explained, had designed their articles for slide fasteners, and could not easily change.

Their machinery, like that of many small plants, it was explained, is specialized, and only "impractical machinery changes" would be likely to make it available for another type of work.

Toward Victory

By Barnet Nover

A Nail In Hitler's Coffin

THE POLICY which President Roosevelt expounded on September 11 reduces to the vanishing point all German hopes of victory.

NOVER

His speech was a nail driven hard into Hitler's coffin.

It has been clear for some time that no matter how many countries on the European continent the German armies might overrun, how many millions of people the Nazis might enslave, Germany could not win the war unless and until she had won the Battle of the Atlantic. As long as the supply line connecting Great Britain with the overseas world, particularly the United States, remained unbroken the British would fight on, no matter how seemingly great the odds against them, how grievous their plight.

THAT WAS PROVED when, after the fall of France, the British found themselves alone and sorely beset. It was proved again when Hitler tried to bring them to their knees by unleashing the full and unrestrained fury of his Luftwaffe against their cities.

Great Britain emerged from that fierce ordeal stronger than she had been and more determined than ever to fight the menace of Hitlerism to the bitter end. And having failed to storm the British bastion Hitler sought surcease from his disappointment by an attack on Russia that was to win new glories for German armies, new supplies for his voracious war machine.

We know how disillusioning is the experience the Fueher has had in the East during these past twelve weeks. Now he has been placed on notice that American warships will shoot on sight any Axis submarines or raiders that enter waters which, in the words of the President, "we deem necessary for our defense."

ALL OF HITLER'S careful calculations regarding America's role in the present crisis, all of his plans, have gone wrong.

For a long time he was able to leave the United States out of his reckoning altogether. We had sold our birthright for a mess of pottage. We had foresworn the great victory we had won in 1918 and had adopted a policy of wish-fulfilment miscalled neutrality. Insofar as our unheroic and unrealistic role during the years of Hitler's rise had any bearing on the world situation it was such as to give aid and comfort to the aggressors. For however much we deplored what Germany and Italy and Japan were doing there was for a long time no indication that we were prepared to oppose them with anything more than homilies.

It was really not until after the fall of France, 15 months ago, that the American people really began to awaken from the dream of peace self-induced by legislative hypnotics to find themselves living in a world of dangerous realities. It was at that juncture that Hitler played what he believed would be a trump card.

He bound Germany, Italy and Japan in a tripartite alliance whose chief purpose was to intimidate the United States into abandoning or at least limiting its aid to Britain. His lack of success in this particular is evident in the circumstance that the American supplies being sent to Germany's enemies are on the increase and that it is Hitler's ally, Japan, rather than the United States, which finds the tripartite alliance embarrassing.

Hitler now finds himself on the horns of a cruel dilemma. If he chooses to challenge the United States it means taking on a new and tremendously powerful opponent at a time when he already has his hands full in Russia. If, on the other hand, he orders his U-boats and surface raiders to stay out of reach of warships flying the American flag it will probably destroy all possibility of a German victory in the Battle of the Atlantic.

FOR TACTICAL reasons he may temporarily decide on a policy of discretion, postponing a showdown with the United States until after a victory over Russia has been achieved or until it becomes clear that such a victory cannot be achieved in time to make any real difference in his fight with Great Britain. But whatever course he takes his sands are running out.

It would be foolish to underestimate the power which Germany still possesses. The Third Reich will not easily or quickly be defeated. Yet the coalition of forces that Germany now faces and that she must master if she is to win the war is formidable.

Already from Narvik to Crete, throughout the vast area that Hitler has conquered the enslaved peoples are beginning to stir. The same spirit of rebellion is becoming evident even in countries, such as Rumania and Bulgaria, whose Quisling rulers tied their nations to Hitler's chariot.

The once widely prevalent belief in German invincibility is fading rapidly. The question now is not whether Germany will be defeated but when.

To no small extent the answer to the latter question depends on us. If we are timorous the war may be long. If we are bold the war will end much sooner than many expect. Only if we retreat from the course upon which we are embarked can Germany regain that hope of victory which loomed so close and inviting a year ago.

AFL Rolls Set Record Despite CIO Defections

Membership of the American Federation of Labor now stands at the all-time high of 4,569,056 dues payers, George Meany, secretary-treasurer announced last night.

Although this is a gain of 321,613 members in the last year, Meany emphasized that the figures include only membership on which national and international unions and local trade and Federal labor unions have paid per capita taxes to the A. F. of L. He said the total does not include unemployed or "floating members," estimated at more than 500,000.

"Within the past eight years," Meany said, "the membership of the A. F. of L. has more than doubled. In 1933 we had only 2,100,000 members. Since then our movement has grown rapidly in size despite the fact that a million members left us when their unions joined the C. I. O. in 1935. Our growth has been steady and healthy. We are setting new records every day.

"Naturally, Meany continued "the expansion of industry due to the national defense program has helped swell our membership totals during recent months, but for the most part, our gains are due entirely to unremitting organization work. The great bulk of our new members come from the ranks of working men and women who hitherto were unorganized in industries where unions could not get a foothold before.

"I wish to emphasize that the A. F. of L., reports only dues-paid membership, as shown by our books and official records. Ours is not a claimed membership; it is an official tax-paid membership.

"Within the coming year," Meany added, "we have every confidence that through organization and education we will be able to go over the five million mark with our paid-up membership total."

The Movie Probers

Q. You are a follower of pictures?

A. I go to them, but I have trouble following most of 'em.

Q. The committee thought it might be a good idea to get the viewpoint of the movie fan concerning the picture situation.

A. It's about time somebody thought of that.

Q. The charge is made that a monopoly controls pictures, that they are in the hands of a few men. What is your impression?

A. I don't know about a few men controlling the pictures, but from the pictures I've been seeing lately I think the same people must be writing the scripts.

Q. It is alleged that Hollywood is guilty of propaganda. Have you noticed this?

A. I haven't seen a picture in years that hasn't been guilty of propaganda.

Q. Propaganda for what?

A. For overfurnished boudoirs.

Q. Do you think Hollywood has been turning out pictures that would promote the American war spirit?

A. Well, some of the pictures make us pretty mad.

Q. Could you cite any specific instances where Hollywood has been guilty of incitement to war?

A. Yes, the casting of Spencer Tracy as Mr. Hyde.

Q. What is your view of newsreels?

A. I think they are escapist.

Q. In what way?

A. They give the audience a chance to escape from the regular films.

Q. Do you think the newsreels are doctored?

A. I don't know. But after seeing the ones the Roosevelt boy took of that conference at sea, I am in favor of plenty of doctoring.

Q. Do you think the newsreels are used to promote special causes?

A. Well, there must be some reason why they always show us those girls on surfboards.

Q. Are there any other phases of newsreel pictures that arouse your suspicions?

A. Definitely. I can't understand why I never see one that at some point doesn't show a turkey farm, a high school swimming meet or a ball game played ten days before.

Q. Is there one suggestion above all others that you as a picture fan would make to the newsreel men?

A. Yes. I would ask that when they show closeups of Congressmen they stop picking out the ones with the worst teeth.

Q. Is it your belief that foreign films incite war hysteria?

A. All I know is that the average foreign film is so bad it's enough to make everybody in that audience want to fight.

Q. One more question. Do you think the movies are in the control of too few men?

A. No. Too few women!

Q. How do you make that out?

A. I always see the same ones in most every picture.

Price Control

By Mark Sullivan

Mr. Baruch To Testify

THE COMING WEEK will see another instalment of light on the price control bill—in the form of hearings by the House Banking and Currency Committee. Already, during August, the Committee held hearings for some ten days and heard some 385,000 words of testimony. Most of the words were uttered by Mr. Leon Henderson, who hopes to be price administrator.

SULLIVAN

And most of Mr. Henderson's words were designed to show the committee that the bill was a good bill, and that Mr. Henderson would be a good price administrator. Apparently the committee was not fully satisfied. Hence the further hearings the coming week.

Meanwhile, Mr. Henderson's path to power has encountered a hurdle, in the form of accusation by Congressman Martin Dies that Mr. Henderson has been associated with organizations having a Communist tinge; and that some of his assistants have records suggesting a definitely collectivist line of thought.

This charge will weigh against Mr. Henderson. The committee is not engaged in doing abstract justice to an individual. It does not need to be satisfied by a preponderance of legally admissible evidence. It might be that a judicial body determining a detached question—whether Mr. Henderson or his assistants have or have not had Communist associations or leanings—might return a verdict of complete exculpation. (Though in fact the evidence Congressman Dies produced about one of Mr. Henderson's assistants seems rather convincing.)

THAT MIGHT happen, and still this House committee, acting under its obligation, might come to a conclusion unfavorable to Mr. Henderson and his staff taking over the power that would go with the office of price administrator under this bill as written. The authority granted in the bill amounts to power of life and death over businesses, big and little—corporations, partnerships, individually owned shops.

And the aggregate of power over all these is the power of life and death over the system of privately owned business. Almost any statutory control over prices, under this bill or another, could be administered in such a way as to destroy private ownership, or preserve it.

In this condition it is not merely necessary that the price administrator should wish to preserve private business—as many think Mr. Henderson would. There is a psychological factor involved. The business men who necessarily will be put under exactions by whoever is price administrator, and the whole public that will be affected, will need to be free from any faintest apprehension.

THE COUNTRY can safety leave it with the House Banking and Currency Committee. This is an able and conscientious body of men. This judgment is here expressed as an impression from reading, rather carefully, the hearings of the committee on the price control bill.

Concluding the reading, this column had a cheerful feeling of confidence in the functioning of a legislative group. At hearing after hearing, during those hot August days, Congress had been in session almost continuously for nearly two years, almost the whole committee were registered present, sometimes the whole 25, never less than 17. The questions asked were penetrating, the attitude of the committee patient and equable.

Price control, with the fields it overlaps, touches practically the whole area of economic and governmental practice. In the present situation, it is involved in the world-wide conflict between individualist and collectivist ideologies. By one committeeman or another, questions were asked which intelligently brought light upon every aspect of the subject.

To the taste of this column, one man on the committee stood out. It was obvious he had fine native intelligence, and had acquired sound intellectual discipline, either in schools, or self-imposed. One felt, too, that he had industry, that he must have prepared himself specially for the intricate work of these hearings. Looking him up in the Congressional Directory, I found that to his other appealing qualities he adds lack of egotism—all the biography he chose to record was "Fred L. Crawford, Republican, Saginaw, Mich."

ON PRICE-CONTROL, and war-time economic organization generally, the committee expects to hear this week Mr. Bernard M. Baruch. From him the committee can learn much practical wisdom. During the Great War, he was head of about all there was of industrial organization. His authority he got, not from any statute, but from President Wilson. It was one-man power, Mr. Baruch had it, partly because Wilson had confidence in him, partly because Mr. Baruch had had experience with the world that had taught him how to use power.

The men he got around him were like himself—worldly in the best sense, experienced, masters of their lines and hence sure of themselves, forceful yet tolerant, urbane and humorous. They depended less on law and ukase than on personality. They functioned largely as a barber-shop quartet sings, not so much by rule as by instinctive cooperation.

Better Thai Relations Expected As New U. S. Minister Arrives

Copyright by New York Times

Bangkok, Thailand, Sept. 14.—With Thailand at present the local point of rivalry between Anglo-American and Japanese-Axis interests in the Far East, the arrival here of Willys R. Peck from Washington to assume the post of United States Minister, succeeding Hugh Gladney Grant, is expected to signalize an important improvement in Thai-American relations.

Relations had been strained during the last year, a period that marked Thai hostilities with French Indo-China, Japanese mediation of the dispute to the advantage of Thailand and other acts of Japanese-Thai collaboration, such as the recent Thai recognition of Manchukuo, increased Japanese purchase of Thai tin, rubber, rice and wolframite and the elevation of the diplomatic missions of the two countries to the rank of embassies.

Imports Cut Off

However, recent Thai declarations of strict neutrality and of intentions to resist aggression from any quarter, made in the wake of Japanese occupation of southern Indo-China and the stationing of Japanese garrisons near the new Indo-Chinese-Thai frontier, has opened the way for normalization of Thai-United States relations, traditionally friendly and cooperative.

Cut off from former sources of imports and badly in need of oil, metals, motor cars, war supplies and general manufactures from the United States that she has been unable to obtain from any other country, including Japan, Thailand wants to make extensive purchases from the United States and would like to increase sales of her rubber, tin, teak and wolframite to the United States.

Thailand in recent months has become noticeably more wary of the Japanese and has displayed a desire for the most friendly neutral relations with the United States and Britain. Lately, criticisms of the Japanese have been appearing in the Bangkok press and among the general public. Peck said today that he had found in Washington "a desire to see economic relations between Thailand and the United States as nearly normal as the general unsettled condition of the world would permit."

Flies With Duff Cooper

Peck traveled across the Pacific to Singapore with Alfred Duff Cooper, with whom he said he had discussions regarding Pacific affairs en route. The new United States Minister was accompanied by Mrs. Peck. They were greeted by almost the entire American community here upon their arrival by plane. A representative of Premier Luang Bipul Songgram also was present at the airfield. Peck then called upon the foreign minister. The presentation of his credentials to the council of regents, at a colorful court ceremony, is scheduled for Tuesday.

Peck is a veteran of more than thirty years' service in China, where recently he was counselor of the embassy at Chungking.

Dutch to Resume Payment on Debt Not Held by Nazis

Copyright by New York Times

The Netherlands Legation in Washington announced yesterday that the exiled Netherlands government has made arrangements to resume payment of interest on that part of Holland's national debt which is "indisputably free of enemy control."

The total amount of the Netherlands national debt before the invasion of Holland was about 3500 million guilders. The great bulk of it was held in Holland itself and no interest, of course, will be paid on this.

The Netherland government, however, announces that arrangements have been made for payment at an early date of coupons dated later than May 15, 1940, to holders of bonds registered in accordance with government directions. Payments will be made in New York by J. P. Morgan & Co., Inc.; in London by R. W. Blydenstein & Co., and in the Netherlands East and West Indies by the Javasche Bank in Batavia, the Curacaosche Bank in Curacao and the Surinaamsche Bank in Paramaribo.

As far as the legation here knows, very few of the bonds are in American hands.

Guild's Revival Plan Should Ring That Bell!

Promising Indeed Is Its Popular-Priced Series With Stars in Celebrated Roles; Matters of Moment in the Local Theaters

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

FALL MAY SEEM CERTAINLY with you this mid-September pay day, but in the world of the theater this is the springtime of the year. Planting is under way, a few early growths already have appeared and hope for the harvest is good.

MARY BOLAND

Promising is indeed the word for the Theater Guild's double-barreled season. For besides its already announced series of American Theater Society plays at the National, the organization is definitely launched on its long-projected series of revivals. With Harry Carey playing the role created by George M. Cohan in the original Guild production, Eugene O'Neill's comedy "Ah, Wilderness!" is well into the rehearsal period under the guidance of Eva Le Gallienne. It opens a four-week run in New York October 2 and should arrive in E Street before Santa Claus. Immediately aftetr the O'Neill comedy is launched, Miss Le Gallienne will commence rehearsals on Sheridan's "The Rivals," with Mary Boland in the classic role of Mrs. Malaprop.

On the frankly tentative side of this revival plan are Andreyev's "He Who Gets Slapped," with Raymond Massey as "He;" Ibsen's "John Gabriel Bjorkman," with Charles Laughton, Elsa Lanchester and Miss Le Gallienne (whose production of it at her Civic Repertory was so memorable); and O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms" with Walter Huston in his original role. Both of the latter are slated for spring when film commitments of the stars should be ocmpleted.

All these revivals but one—Spencer Tracy in Bernard Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple"—are quite apart from the regular Guild season. Present subscribers to the A. T. S. season will get reduced rates and early pickings, but that's the only relationship. Best news of all is that the series will play at "popular prices"—.50 to $2. With the paucity of top-notch playrights (Robert E. Sherwood, for instance, is more interested in the National Defense movement than in any new creation), this means of taking the plays from the library shelves to the stage for which they were created serves two purposes. Even if the Guild should reap but a part of what it's sown in planning, the results still should be enough to set Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner patting each other on the back.

Who Was the Capitol's First Patron?

Who purchased the first ticket when the Fox Theater (now the Capitol) opened its doors 14 years ago this month? Hard as it probably will be to prove, the Capitol is out to uncover this first-nighter and reward him by making him guest of honor when the house celebrates its anniversary starting this Thursday. If you're the lucky one, phone ME. 5001. Just what proof you're supposed to have Loew's hasn't informed us and it's our guess that Mrs. Mac. will be working hard this morning.

Wednesday the Hiser out in Bethesda inaugurates a new notion. It's cornered five musical films in which stories or excerpts from the more popular operas have been screened. Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" opens the series Wednesday and Thursday with Maria Celbortari as Cho-Cho San. Friday, Jan Kiepura and his wife, Marta Eggerth, appear in "La Boheme." Saturday, Lilian Harvey and Louis Jouvet sing with the Paris Opera chorus in "Schubert's Serenade." Sunday and Monday Beniamino Gigli sings excerpts from "Aida," "Il Trovatore," "La Traviata" and "Rigoletto" in "The Life of Verdi." "Carnival in Venice," with music from Donizetti and Rossini, will be screened Tuesday week, with Toti del Monte and the La Scala Ballet. Naturally these are all prewar production. Have no fear of your admission money falling to some of the Axis yeggs. The films are all owned by American firms.

Artie Shaw's coming has the jitterfiends frothing. His dancing concert Thursday at Riverside Stadium is selling like the proverbial. One reason might well be that until tomorrow there's a reduction on the tickets. Then, at Jordan's, Kitt's, Hahn's and the Stadium, the tickets will revert to the scale originally planned.

TONIGHT'S OPENING at the National is "Separate Rooms," with film stars Alan Dinehart, Anna Sten and Lyle Talbot in the leads . . . The King-Smith Playhouse is offering full and partial scholarships for study in Theater Arts to young men and women who qualify according to the school's requirements. Contact the school for details. Pierce Hall Players have shifted "The Male Animal" into opening honors for their season. Howard Wentworth, who directed the thoroughly amusing Cross Roads production this summer, is holding tryouts tonight at 8 in the Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard Streets . . . Tonight begins the final stanza of the Roadside Theaer's season. "Davy Crockett's" the play and Bibi Osterwald's on deck for "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage."

President Is News Star At Trans-Lux

Showing the effects of his recent bereavement but with a determined jaw, President Roosevelt easily takes star position at the Trans-Lux Theater for the current week as he tells Hitler in no uncertain terms that he had better stay in his own backyard. What a sight those night flashes of a complete salvo from 16-inch guns are!

Other interesting news shots include the launching of the new Navy cruiser U. S. S. Atlanta; bullet-proof armor plate for aircraft tested at Elizabeth, N. In Australia, American sailors and marines stage a good-will parade; a tank show is given in England for factory workers; Nazi prisoners arrive in Australia; a freak September blizzard hits Denver while in Atlantic City "Miss America" is crowned.

The sports world is topped with football practice at University of Southern California, Washington, Navy, Stanford, U. C. L. A., and Notre Dame. A chimpanzee plays football at Buffalo; Byron Nelson wins the Tam o' Shanter Open golf event; national singles tennis matches at Forest Hills and the New York Giants-All-Star game.

Andre de la Varre brings a beautiful travelog through "Tunisia," and Anna Neagle, the British film actress, does a fine job as guest expert on "Information Please." Golf fans will be thrilled with the well-done film of Patty Berg, and just how she does the magic tricks with her golf clubs.

Hitchcock Mystery?

New York, Sept. 14.

ILLUSTRATED SECTION: Last week's drama pages announced that Patricia Hitchcock, the 12-year-old daughter of movie director Alfred Hitchcock, will make her stage debut in one of the principal parts in John Van Druten's new play . . .

KAY FRANCIS

Young Pat never suspected that she was being considered for the role. In Hollywood, last summer, she read the script for the author—after her father had told her it was a new movie story he was considering . . . Tuesday afternoon, Hitchcock decided to break the news to his young daughter. He also invited some Life photographers to record the event. The pictures they took will be a complete document of a young girl's reaction to news that she would act on Broadway . . . The photos recorded that Pat's first emotion was Surprise, then Disbelief, then Joy—and finally Tears.

SOCIAL NOTES: Bill Gaston, seated with two young ladies in Fefe's Monte Carlo Beach Club, saw a tall brunette entering . . . "Here's comes Kay Francis," said one of the ladies . . . Gaston turned to observe her, and said: "Oh, no. That's not Kay Francis" . . . "But she IS Kay Francis," the girl insisted . . . "I'll bet you anything, up to a million, that she's not Kay Francis," Gaston challenged . . . The wagers were made—and Gaston lost his bet. For the newcomer was Kay Francis, the screen star whose first husband was this same Bill Gaston.

BOOK DEPT.: Alexander Woollcott, who leaves for England this week, will go there armed with a letter of introduction to Winston Churchill. The letter was given to him by President Roosevelt . . . Woollcott wanted to be fully prepared for that first meeting with Churchill. Yesterday he remembered that he had read all of Churchill's writings—every book, except one, "The Duke of Marlboro" . . . To permit no slip-up, therefore, in his first meeting with the Prime Minister, Friday night Woollcott dispatched a courier to buy "The Duke of Marlboro," so that he could read it before he arrives in London. In due time, the courier returned with this biography Churchill had written—a set of eight long volumes.

DRAMA DEPT.: Vernon Duke and John LaTouche, the songwriters who are working with Eddie Cantor's new show, last night met Pat C. Flick—whose insurance play was to have opened next week . . . "Too bad," LaTouche consoled, "but there's always the brighter side. If it had opened and became a hit, you'd have made barrels of money. And then you'd have to go to a psychoanalyst—and where would that lead you?" . . . "Probably," sighed Flick, "to writing 'Lady in the Dark.'"

LETTERS DEPT.: "I've started to write many times," writes Beatrice Lillie, "but each time gave it up as I had so much to say. I didn't know how to begin. How I'd love to see your boys again. I'll bet Warren will have something to say, when he can say it, about that Pink! coat I brought him before he was born . . . Bobbie has been at sea for some time, so should be due for a spot of leave soon. You should see him in his Bell Bottoms. Looks marvelous, I say . . . I've been all over the country, troop concerts, etc. In fact, I've had only one Sunday free since the war. I may be over for six weeks or so. But of course we are expecting Rat again this winter, and I must be here for that. Best regards, and t'hell with Mr. Schickelgruber."

Salaam for Mr. Cowan

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 14. I'm making a low salaam for Lester Cowan for his picture "Ladies In Retirement." It holds you to your seat as though you were handcuffed bodily. If it's chills, thrills, and fever you're after, it won't miss. The cast is superb. Picture sends Ida Lupino's rating up another ten rungs. Best thing Louis Hayward has done.

IDA LUPINO

Edith Barrett's balmy portrait is a honey, and Else Lanchester never better. Isobel Elsom, who was done in, done grand. After seeing it I don't wonder Gilbert Miller has entrusted his plays to Lester Cowan, 'cause he'll bring home the bacon.

What a feast for the eye and your risibilities are the new Ice Follies of 1942. Fanchon and Marco outdid themselves in the way of costumes. They are but beautiful. And the young favorites like Bess Ehrhardt, Roy Shipstead, Harris Laye, Evelyn Chandler, Ruby and Bobby Maxon, are the easiest things on the eye in this town. It's the best yet, and if you miss it you'll be crying yourself silly in your own pillow. Incidentally two or three of the supporting skaters look like screen bets, and had the agents in the audiences going nerts.

A well-known astrologer told Maria Montez that black was her color so the big goose went and had her whole apartment done over in black. Even features those black Japanese goldfish. Wonder if that's why she's dyed her strawberry blond hair black for "White Savage?" . . . Alexis Smith, Warners newey, was picked for the American Magazine's "Interesting People of the Month" section, yet she says she's completely usual.

Mrs. Eddie Robinson has gotten so chummy with Mrs. Roosevelt that she lets slip casually in conversation, "You know when I talked with Eleanor at the White House, she said, 'Gladys, if I were you I'd do so and so.'" . . . And did you hear about the time Eddie Skolsky was invited to view the Robinsons' paintings? Now Sid is the ticklish type, and little Manny insisted upon torturing him. Finally Sid couldn't stand it and said, "If you do that once more, I'll kick you." He did, Sid, and that's the last time he'll ever look at anybody's etchings.

Looks as though Greer Garson would go over the hill, no not to the poorhouse but Warners to play in "The Constant Nymph." That fine painter Paul Clemens is doing Greer with her French poodles.

Entrains for the Old Home Town

On Board the Union Pacific Streamliner, Sept. 14 (INS).—Well, here we are on the way with all the Dixon travelers aboard. We left town with the railroad literally putting down the red velvet carpet for us. Just before I stepped on the train the news was rushed to me that Paul Muni will play Chopin for Columbia studios. I didn't have time to get details from Harry Cohn but I do know this is the picture they have had for a long time and for which many stars have been rumored to play both Chopin and George Sand.

BOB HOPE

I had to get this column off so fast I haven't had time to count noses but I assume everybody is on board—Ann Rutherford, George Montgomery and Dixon's own Ronald Reagan. Bob Hope gets in Dixon Sunday afternoon with Jerry Colonna. They go from Dixon on to Milwaukee for the American Legion convention. Joe E. Brown, who is due in Milwaukee Tuesday, remains for the banquet Monday night to act as master of ceremonies. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon arrive Sunday night and from the schedule given us we are going to have a busy time.

One of the last minute stories is word that David Selznick is bringing Dorothy McGuire to Hollywood to star in "Claudia," the role she created on the New York stage. David has signed her on a long term contract and it is natural to assume this currently disputed stage hit will be her first movie for him. "Claudia" is under fire right now as the property the late Adrianne Morrison sold. Her sister Nancy is demanding a legal accounting. She claims her sister's estate has money coming from the handling of the rights—stage play, radio and movie, amounting to $468,000. Adrienne Morrison was the mother of the Bennett girls, Joan, Constance and Barbara.

A year ago Alan Ladd's chief claim to fame was that the former college boy's delight, Sue Carol, was his agent. But now Para signed Alan for the top role in "This Gun for Hire" in the firm belief that it will do for him what "Four Daughters" did for John Garfield. In spite of the title, the picture is not a war story. On the contrary it is a murder melodrama. Ladd is 27 years old and a native of North Hollywood and the fact that this plum dropped in his lap after several better known actors were considered shows how keen the search is for new faces. Day by day the newcomers get better breaks: Elizabeth Frazer, Patricia Collinge, Teresa Wright, Richard Whorf, June Havoc and Van Johnson are just a few of the new recruits.

When one of M-G-M's talent scouts was traveling through the South, he told me the story I wrote about Marjorie Main which attracted more attention than any interview I have written in a long time. He told me he was asked many questions about her. At that time I thought she might be teamed exclusively with Wally Berry, but Marjorie is too good an actress to be typed, and so now she is going into Norma Shearer's picture "We Were Dancing."

Newcomer Stars at Gayety

Miss Stella Mills, a lass who made quite a reputation for herself in the Midwest burlesque houses, is the star of this week's bill at the Gayety Theater.

This is Stella's initial appearance here and from the reception she received at yesterday afternoon's performance, we have a strong feeling that she will make her future visits to Washington more frequent. Possessing a million-dollar smile and more curves than the Lincoln Highway, Miss Mills offered some unusually colorful musical specialties.

In the comedy team of Stinky Fields and Shorty McAllister, plus clever Billy "Scratch" Wallace, the production has a trio of veteran funsters who know what the customers like and perform accordingly. Most of their numbers are new, funny, and original with the formers' "Court Room" number tops in laughs, while Wallace is terrific in his "In the Army Now" "bit."

Bert Saunders, a favorite here, and Miss Dorothy De Haven, a charming "talking woman," give fine support to the lighter moments of the revue.

Leonie Thurston, Margie Dill and Cleo Florenz are a trio of young ladies we found very easy on the eyes. Miss Thurston's specialty numbers are nicely presented, while the dancing of Miss Florenz rates with anything of its kind seen here this season.

Completing the cast are Jack Lyons, a chap with songs you will enjoy; the Ballors, two lads who entertain with amazing gymnastic gyrations; and the best-trained and prettiest chorus we've seen yet this season.

ART JOHN.

Lindbergh's Name Booed at Forum

Reference to Charles A. Lindbergh last night during a radio debate over Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air raised a flood of boos in the audience at the Hotel Willard, and temporarily turned a quiet debate into a heated conflict.

Discussing the topic, "College Students View Our Foreign Policy," over a national network were Irene Murray, member of the Student Defenders of Democracy, Mount Holyoke College; Adam Yarmolinsky, member of the Harvard University Liberal Union; John W. Chapman, head of the Student League for Progressive Action, Swarthmore Chapter; George Baldwin, chairman, Princeton Chapter College Committee for Defense First; Miss Hilda Schweiker, member of the Youth Council Against War, Temple University, and Thomas Cavanagh New York University, representing the America First Committee.

Program Disrupted

Yarmolinsky asked Cavanagh if he agreed with Lindbergh's views on foreign policy, and when the latter replied that he did, the audience started to boo, and it was necessary for the announcer to quiet them before the program was continued.

"That is very interesting," Yarmolinsky answered. Do you agree with Lindbergh about the Jews, too?"

"I said I agreed with him on foreign policy," Cavanagh retorted. "His opinions about the Jews are his personal ideas, and I said nothing about it."

The subject changed then, and the audience at the broadcast settled back.

During the debate, Yarmolinsky stated that "the world crisis has become a domestic crisis, and our domestic safety demands that we as a Nation oppose Nazi aggression by all possible means wherever it manifests itself."

"A Wall of Guns"

In agreement were John Chapman and Miss Murray. "If Germany takes over the continent of Europe," Miss Murray said, "the United States will have to live behind a wall of guns. Eventually those guns will be used because a nation cannot go on arming indefintely, and because Nazi Germany is dedicated to war and world conquest."

Opposing the Administration's foreign policy, Cavanagh told the audience: "Our independence, our safety, and our general national well-being depend upon the traditional American will and determination to stand alone, ready and willing, at all times, to defend the liberties we enjoy under the American Constitution."

Faced With Dilemma

Miss Schweiker declared that "by staying out of the war, we can begin bravely to sow the seeds of a just order; we can begin to establish economic democracy, social fraternity and equality."

George Baldwin declared that "the whole country, not just the Government, is faced with the dilemma created by an Administration which sought to let us have our cake and eat it too."

Greek Church Extols Mother Of President

The late Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother, was extolled yesterday for her "wholehearted interest in religion" by the Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor of SS. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, Sixth and C Streets Southwest.

Preaching during the annual "Raising of the Cross" service, Father Daniels pointed out that Mrs. Roosevelt had bequeathed a large sum to St. James' Epicopal Church, Hyde Park, had contributed generously to the church during her lifetime, attended church regularly, and put her Christianity into practice.

God's greatest blessings are showered on those who seek spiritual things, said Father Daniels, and not to those whose only interest in life is "earning ten dollars a day."

The "Cross" service commemorated the time (312 A. D.) that Constantine I, first Christian Roman Emperor, had a vision of a flaming Cross in the sky during a battle between his army and that of rival Emperor Maxentius, at the Tiber River, near Rome. A sign, "By this conquer!" was said to have accompanied the vision.

From that event on, the Christian Emperor and his soldiers wore crosses on their breasts when going into battle.

Following the custom of the Eastern Church, a memorial mass was sung by Father Daniels and the choir for Demetrios Perdikares and Mrs. Helen Z. Polyzoi, of the local congregation, who died 40 days ago yesterday. After the services, the worshipers were given small bags of fruit and nuts. Eating of such is said to bless the souls of the departed.

Holy Name Meeting

The Holy Name Society of the Lady of Lourdes Church in Bethesda (Md.) will hold a business meeting tonight at 8:30, in the parish hall of the church.

Ceilings Urged For Wages, Profits, Too

The Foreign Policy Association said yesterday that the imposition of a ceiling on prices requires a similar limit on wages and profits.

In a study of defense economy in the United States, the private research organization said that the Government was striving "to control prices for consumers' goods, but its efforts are unlikely to succeed if consumer income derived from wages and business continue to rise."

The defense program, the report contended, "should not be considered simply in the light of opportunities for higher profits and wages. The country is now entering a stage in its preparations in which an increase in the output of war materials can be achieved only at the expense of civilian production."

The report also asserted that the solution of the labor problem in relation to the defense program "may prove impossible unless the Government clearly defines its policies relating to wages, hours, the closed shop, profits an dsimilar questions."

Both labor and management, the report said, "must be brought to a full realization of the stakes in this war."

Of proposals to curb strikes by legislation, the association said: "Industrial peace is likely to be more solid and permanent if obtained through voluntary cooperation of labor and management."

Although the report discounted some criticisms directed at the National Defense Mediation Board, the association said the agency "has in practice confused mediation and arbitration." Its recommendations in many cases "constitute compulsory arbitration, particularly since they may be enforced by Government seizure of the strike-bound plant," the association said. It added that it was difficult for parties in a labor dispute to be completely frank with "mediators who may later pronounce an arbitral judgment."

Coincidentally, the National Labor Relations Board announced a change in procedure which it said would "expedite consideration of cases" by eliminating an average ten-day interval between the date of issuance of an intermediate report by a trial examiner and its transfer to the board. Under previous procedure such reports were sent to regional offices first, now they will be handed to the board's chief trial examiner and copies mailed to the regional offices.

D. C. Swimming Classes End; 18,687 Complete Course

During a three-month "learn to swim" campaign in the District 18,687 men, women and children completed a course of 25 lessons, the District Chapter of the Red Cross announced yesterday as the swimming classes ended for the season.

Cooperating with the Red Cross in the campaign were the welfare and recreational associations and the District Community Playgrounds Department. Coordinating and directing the campaign was Max Farrington, athletic director at George Washington University and director of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club.

Forty-one instructors directed the swimming lessons for the more than 18,000 persons who attended 887 classes at local swimming pools. The classes included special instructions for crippled youngsters, for deaf mutes and for mothers.

Mary Stanley, Fiance Entertained in Laurel

Margheritta Sterling Is Feted Near McLean as Al Fresco Season Wanes

As the season for al fresco entertaining nears its close, Washington hostesses are preparing their last outdoor parties. Two of the outstanding ones yesterday were those given for the bride-to-be and her fiance and for a Capital debutante. Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley entertained at their home, The Lawn, in Laurel, Md., for Miss Mary Jane Stanley and her fiance, Cary McNab Euwer, while Mr. and Mrs. W. Thacher Winslow had some young people out to their home near McLean, Va., for Mrs. Winslow's young cousin, Miss Margheritta Sterling.

About 200 friends of the Stanleys arrived at The Lawn to congratulate the couple, whose engagement was made known yesterday. Since Mr. Euwer is also a Marylander—his home is in Laurel—there were many present from Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Of the 11 acres of the Stanley estate, 2 are rolling lawn, and there many of the guests gathered yesterday. Others sat in the small garden, with its lovely pool and flower beds. On the big side porch of the rambling house was set a table holding a champagne punch from which guests toasted Miss Stanley and her fiance.

The bride-to-be had chosen for her party a floor-length frock of black crepe fashioned in shirtwaist style with a belt and a wide front panel of jade green. She wore a green necklace and a cluster of gardenias. Mrs. Stanley was dressed in a long gown of powder blue crepe set off by a cluster of orchids.

A tea table in the dining room was centered with a large bowl of white astors and gladioli. Pouring were Mrs. Walter Euwer, of Upper Marlboro, mother of Mr. Euwer; Mrs. Stanley's sister, Mrs. William A. Raborg, and the host's sister, Mrs. James Boss, of Laurel. Mrs. Raborg, whose husband, Col. Raborg, is at Chapel Hill, N. C., is visiting the Stanleys.

Constance Collins Guest of Stanleys

Good old Southern ham with biscuits, and sandwiches were offered to the guests. Among those assisting was Miss Constance Collins, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. LeRoy Collins, of Fort Sill, Okla. She will come to Bethesda today to visit friends after a stay with Miss Stanley at The Lawn.

Miss Stanley's two cousins, the Misses Frances and Peggy Stanley, motored out from Washington to assist at the party. Others assisting were Miss Betty Mills, of Baltimore; Mrs. James Boss, jr., of Laurel; Miss Lina Little and Mrs. Roger Israel, of Laurel.

Among those invited from Washington were Homer S. Cummings, former Attorney General and now Mr. Stanley's law partner; Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burroughs, jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Potter Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Willcox, Mr. and Mrs. Max Truitt, Miss Elizabeth Donahue, the Misses Sylvia and Lucy Clagett, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sasscer and Miss Clara Sasscer. The Sasscers are cousins of the Stanleys.

Miss Stanley has not set the date for her wedding. She has no special plans for the autumn, other than assembling a trousseau and doing the million and one things preparatory to the wedding.

Winslow Guests Enjoy Swim

Miss Sterling, or "Mickey" as she is more often called, will be presented to society on Christmas Night at a dance to given by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. Calhoun Sterling. They will entertain at the elegant Larz Anderson House on Massachusetts Avenue, an ideal setting for the ball.

In line with the seriousness which debutantes of the new season are showing, Mickey Sterling will study art at the Corcoran School and also will enroll at George Washington University for courses in Spanish, history and psychology.

About 45 young people gathered yesterday for the party in Miss Sterling's honor. The Winslows entertained on the estate of Mrs. Winslow's mother, Mrs. Randolph Leigh, where they have a cottage. There was swimming in the spring-fed pool, and beer, soft drinks and sandwiches were set out under the trees. Mr. and Mrs. Winslow will move into Washington today while their cottage is being remodeled into a year-round house. They have leased the apartment of John Drier in Georgetown for six weeks.

Among the debutantes and their friends present at yesterday's party were the Misses Anne Bryan, Clare Snow, Elene Essary, Pat Baker, Ann Heard, Bella Hagner, Patsy Kyle, Hillis Morris, Mary Teresa, Marion and Laura May Norris, Margot and Mary Mink, Suzanne Slingluff, Phoebe Lewis, Nancy Mayo, Eileen Erwin, Ruth Bilaski, Ann Buchanan, Theodore Chandler and Delphine Colquitt.

Mrs. Harriman's Daughter Is Co-Author of Play

It's a safe bet that among the first nighters when the historical drama, Anne of England, opens in New York, October 1, will be Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former United States Minister to Norway. For co-author with Mary Cass Canfield, of the play is Mrs. Harriman's daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell.

The showing October 1 is a benefit preview for Mrs. Lytle Hull's Musicians Emergency Fund and will draw the cream of the New York smart set. One of the first big society premieres of the season, the benefit has Mrs. Walter Hoving as chairman of the arrangements committee.

Mrs. Russell, the former Ethel Harriman, formerly did scenarios in Hollywood. She and her mother spent the summer at Martha's Vineyard, where they took a house. Mrs. Harriman is expected on Washington shortly and will reopen her home on Foxhall Road, Uplands, which was leased until September to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey.

'Out of Town'

"Where did you go on vacation? . . . What . . . Not at HOME! . . . You don't mean to tell me you didn't get OUT OF TOWN all summer!

"Well, I simply don't see how you stood it! . . . Oh, yes, I know your home is very comfortable and all that, but—well, it's the idea of not getting A-W-A-Y!"

"Me? . . . Oh, yes! I was down at Barbecue Beach for two weeks and then Jim and I drove out to Denver and visited a lot of people on the way, and then over Labor Day we went down to Cape Herd. I've really been on the go all summer.

"The beach? . . . Oh, we visited the Arch Trotters and the Spencer Gadds. They have a cottage together down there—that is they did have . . . they've had a little trouble since . . . Oh, I don't think it was anything in particular, but—well, there was only one kitchen and you know how that is.

"And then, of course, a lot of the Gadds' relatives and the Trotters' friends kept coming down—why one weekend we were there 25 people slept in that cottage! Yes! And that was the week the maid quit! Say, did we cook! And wash dishes!

"Well, didn't you get terribly lonesome here all summer? . . . Well, but there was simply NOBODY here! I know the Flashers were down at the beach, and the Clymers and the Clacks—What? . . . Well, no, I didn't see them a whole lot. You see there was always somebody dropping in at the cottage for lunch or something and then part of the time I had an awful case of sunburn . . . Yes, from going out in a motor boat.

"Denver? . . . Oh, yes, we had a wonderful trip. Why we averaged around 700 miles a day. And once we drove for 24 hours straight! . . . Yes, we were so tired we slept for two days after we got there. Of course, we did get a little rest in Chicago. We stopped and stayed all night with the Roscoe Blinks. You remember them. Well, they have a darling bungalow and her sister Nellie was there with her children, and his mother was there, and so we all had a wonderful visit together.

"Oh, and we saw the Nitters in Cleveland—we stopped over there because Jim had an upset stomach—you know how hard it is to get decent food along the way, and he just will get those barbecue sandwiches and soda pop.

"The Rockies? . . . Yes, they were marvelous. We did all the Colorado Rockies in three days! Yes, we saw everything—Buffalo Bill's statue, and the railroad up Pike's Peak, and the Broadmoor Hotel. You know, you really owe it to yourself to get out and see things that way—you get so narrow just staying in town.

"Well, I just can't get over your having to sit at home all summer! And to think you didn't even get away for Labor Day! The whole town must have been away, for I never saw such traffic in my life as between here and Cape Herd, . . . And such crowds! We had to make our reservation weeks ago, and all we could get was a little back room over the kitchen. And the delivery people woke us at the crack of dawn . . . Hot? . . . Yes, it was rather hot—that is, when you got away from the beach. But we simply saw everybody from here down there—the Dizzards and the Husks and the Jitneys—simply everybody!

"Well, I do think it's too bad you haven't been anywhere—say, you know what you ought to do! you ought to run up to New York some weekend! Yes! They have some wonderful excursions! And Coney Island and everything up there is still open—what? . . . Yes, I know your place here is pleasant and all that, but—well, the whole think is you can at least say you've been OUT OF TOWN."

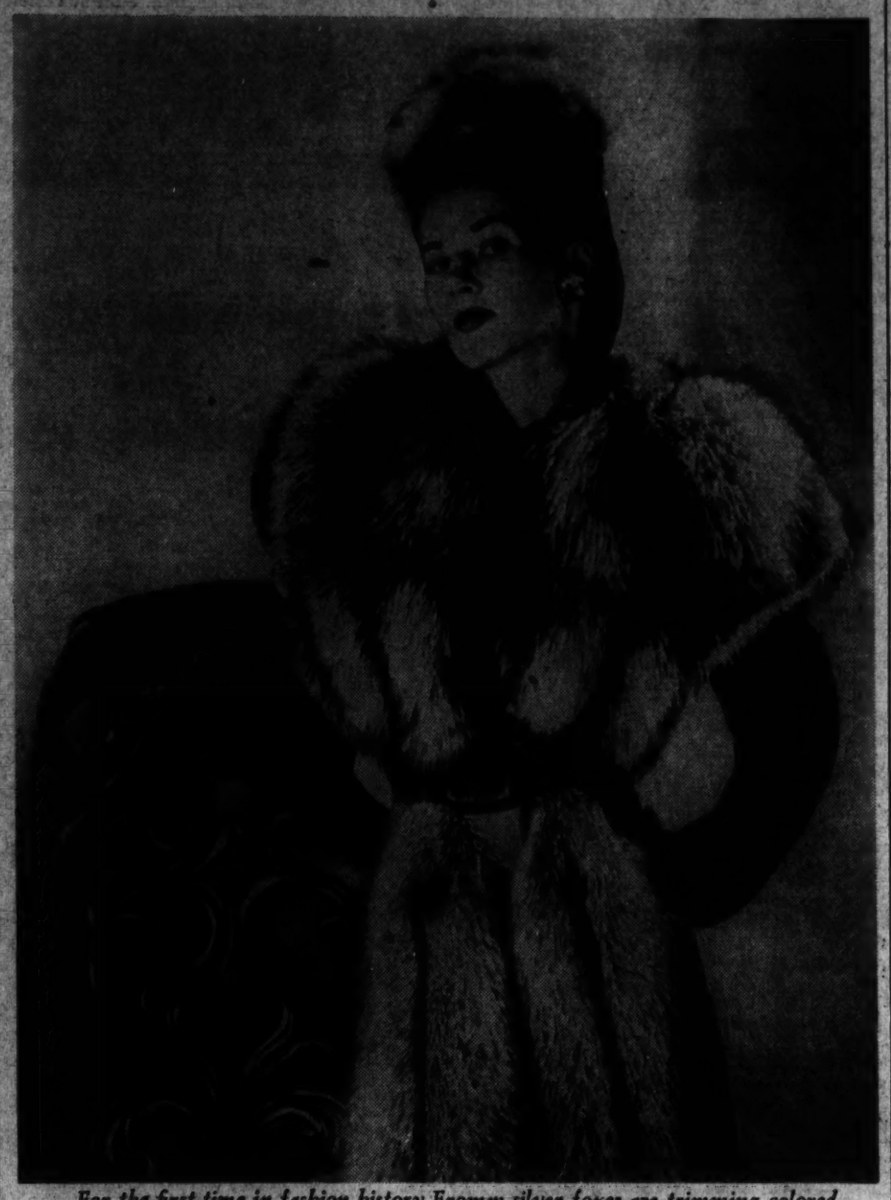
Silver Foxes Play New Role on Coats



For the first time in fashion history Fromm silver foxes are trimming colored cloth coats. These inimitable furs, as sought after as sterling silver is by the bride, reach a new high in perfection this season. Every cloth coat bearing a Fromm labeled fur carries with it the assurance that the fur has been produced in Fromm's own factory. With color so important this season, cloth coats in silver blue, fire engine red, as well as black, are seen with silver fox. As shown in the tuxedo line coat above, one has the illusion that the whole coat is made of silver. Note the vertical trim gives a long line, making a woman appear taller.

Silk Hose to Become 'Antiques' As Substitutes Are Developed

Women who believe that silk hose are essential to their personal appearance, more especially those who are hoarding silk stockings today because of a stoppage of raw silk imports, should take heart, advises Harold E. Reed, head of the textile school, International Correspondence Schools. American chemists and textile experts will succeed soon in replacing raw silk with a substitute just as attractive and wearable.

Reed said that raw silk likely will be as far removed from the fashion picture in a few years as are whalebone corsets and bustles today. Synthetic materials will be developed to take the place of 30 million tons of raw silk usually placed in stockings, but recently allocated to national defense industries.

Already 10 per cent of the rayon production is being mixed with cotton in the manufacture of stockings. A second large nylon plant now being built soon will be turning out this particular silk substitute at a rate whereby 40 per cent of all hosiery can be woven from the fiber.

Hard-spun cotton as sheer as silk will be added to the supply of service hose. And these stockings may prove aceptable for dress as well as for business and sports wear. Government experts have designed 150 new styles that can hardly be distinguished from silk. The stockings do not stretch out of shape when laundered.

If necessary, American manufacturers can make a fiber as attractive as silk from flax, straw, grass, or even seaweed, the school authority said.

Simple Clothes Fit the Times

Edith Head, Paramount designer, is a firm believer in simplicity in both personal and screen wardrobe. She was one of the first designers to adopt the use of "zipped-in" coat linings and has long been recommending greater use of reversible clothes, twin dresses, etc.

For Dorothy Lamour's personal wardrobe she designed a black crepe gown which may achieve three distinct changes through the tie-up peplum. Tied in front the peplum gives the ordinary effect; tied in back it makes a frock with an apron trim; tied at the neck it may be worn as a short shoulder cape. This dress definitely cuts down the number of changes in a wardrobe and still gives the effect of three distinct gowns.

For Paulette Goddard to wear in "Hold Back the Dawn" the designer created a smart black suit with a reversible jacket. One side of the coat was scarlet wool, the other black. Worn as an all-black costume, or as a red sport jacket and skirt, the one suit served for two outfits.

An Army Travels On Spices, Food Consultant Finds

By Associated Press Feature Service

Preparations of savory, tempting meals for the soldiers in the United States Army will consume about 1,000,000 pounds of spices this year.

That's the report from Mary I. Barber, food consultant in the office of the Quartermaster General in Washington.

A soldier eats about three-fourths of a pound of all kinds of seasoning a year. Here's the spice stock story from Miss Barber: The Army will put 360,000 pounds of black pepper in the eggs or stew in 1941; other seasonings in the Army pantry are 168,000 gallons of mustard, 84,000 pounds of cinnamon, 84,000 pounds of allspice, 84,000 pounds of nutmeg, 84,000 pounds of chili powder, 42,000 pounds of cloves, 42,000 pounds of mace, 42,000 pounds of ginger and 42,000 pounds of sage.

Rocking Chair An American Institution

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WE NOTICED a news dispatch describing the old rocker that Supreme Court Justice Jackson had just moved into his new office . . . seems that he likes to sit and rock while he reads his briefs. That proves that he's a wise man who knows a good thing when he sees it. The rocking chair was invented by Benjamin Franklin and beloved of many great Americans, including Abraham Lincoln, whose favorite rocker has been copied by modern manufacturers.

Though the rocker has been under a decorative cloud during recent sophisticated years, it remains one of the soundest of chair designs. For it provides more comfort for its size and weight than any chair we know about. It takes a great big upholstered chair, weighing a ton more or less and costing a pretty penny, to equal the rocker in comfort. Especially is the rocker a grand idea when you want a lot of good sitting in a small room where one or two overstuffed chairs would crowd things.

There are several types of rocking chairs still being manufactured—the Lincoln rocker, which is a wooden framed upholstered rocker; the Windsor type of rocker, which is a familiar Windsor chair with rockers added for comfort; the simple sewing rocker; the open arm upholstered chair with rockers, and last but not least, the porch rocker for whiling away leisure hours.

If you have one of those old-time wooden rockers with arms and spindles up the back and a broad piece of wood across the top, why not paint it and make a gay chintz cushion for the seat. You'd be surprised how pretty it would look—and how useful it would be!

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Spoon Bread

SPOON BREAD, the pride of the South, is a versatile dish, for it can be fitted into almost any menu. And if you want a dish that will smack of colonial days, with a dash of the modern, try topping the crispy crust of the bread with fresh corn straight from the cob. This is a dish to be served piping hot from the casserole in which it is baked. Here is the recipe:

Spoon Bread

Pour 2 cups boiling water over ¼ cup sifted yellow cornmeal and cook in a double boiler until thick, about 5 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons shortening and mix until smooth. Let cool. Beat 2 eggs, add 11-3 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt and stir into the cornmeal mixture. Beat well and add 1 teaspoon baking powder, beating again. Pour into well-greased baking dish, from which it is to be served. Bake 45 minutes in hot over, 425 degrees, or until of firm consistency, but still moist. Just before serving add 2 cups fresh-cooked corn to which 3 tablespoons butter has been added. Serves six.

Modern Clothing Aids in Keeping Children Neat

Soon it will be time to plan the children's school clothes. American parents almost always take pride in sending their boys and girls back to school neat and clean. They know that a tidy, attractive appearance is not only pleasant for the teacher but is good for the children; and the child who knows that he is properly clothed and clean is much more likely to get along well with his schoolmates and his studies.

Fortunately modern children's fashions make it easy to keep boys and girls neat. Styles for school boys and girls call for simple, sensible lines, and for fabrics that can go into the tub week after week. In most parts of the United States, wash cottons can be worn for the first month or six weeks of school, and when cooler weather comes, warmer clothing that can be washed should be chosen so that the wardrobe can always be kept soap-and-water clean.

Jumper dresses, to be worn with dainty white blouses, matchmaker skirts and sweaters, and zipper-front shirtwaist dresses head the school styles for girls between 8 and 16. Sports shirts of flannel or of knitwear are the choice of boys between the same ages.

Peggy Moran Eschews Sweets, Exercises Daily

By Ida Jean Kain

WANT A formula guaranteed to make you better looking year by year? Peggy Moran, one of the screen's prettiest and most promising newcomers, has cast an observant glance around and is sure that it consists of one part fierce competition and one part self-discipline—and that a good time to begin the self-discipline is in the teens.

In Hollywood, it is the rule to give up things for one's art and paycheck that might not strike a girl elsewhere as important. The youngsters soon discover they can't have all the ice cream sodas they would like and keep their figures, and at the same time they have to eat good meals or they won't look healthy.

Peggy has noticed that scarcely any of the established stars ever allow themselves to get too fat. "If they did, they'd probably get studio orders to reduce. Of course, there are a few who are too radical about keeping their weight down. They are the gaunt ones."

Outdoor Play

Since there are long stretches of picture-making when outdoor play is impossible, Peggy is inclined to believe screen people enjoy outdoor recreation more than the average. At any rate, they usually excel at some sport and spend a good deal of their spare time improving their game. Outdoor play doesn't require any discipline. It's an established Hollywood custom.

But the bi- or tri-weekly workouts at the studio gymnasium are not any more fun than your own set of calisthenics. The only reason they take exercise for granted is that there are so many perfect figures that the girl who didn't keep trim would get a terrible complex. To say nothing of endangering her job.

So Peggy knows enough about streamlining to pass along a compact set to trim the waist and slim the hips. She has tried dozens, but says, "You can't beat the old standbys in which you lie on the side on the floor and do the side-scissors, swinging legs back and forth, hard, from the hips, knees straight; and the one in which you lie back on the floor on your shoulders, legs hoisted in air, and pedal."

Strengthening Muscles

Her favorite for strengthening the stomach muscles is to sit on the floor, trunk perfectly straight, legs together and straight out in front, and to bend at the waist until the forehead touches the legs. Bending after you bend anywhere else along your spine doesn't count. A fourth waist and hip slimmer is to sit on floor, legs straight out, and raise alternate legs toward the head.

Young Peggy doesn't have to worry about the competition. She has a beautifully streamlined figure—bust, 34 inches; waist, 23¾ inches; hips, 35 inches.

Here are the weight-control, balanced menus she follows: For breakfast, a large glass of orange juice with the yolk of an egg beaten into it. For lunch, a sandwich made with whole wheat bread and not too much mayonnaise, a vegetable salad, a large glass of milk. She likes a regular dinner with meat and plenty of vegetables, but her standard dessert is fruit. She never eats pie or cake—and you ought to see her skin!

Flavor Combinations

Remember these flavoring combinations for cakes and cookies: Cover plain cake, vanilla flavored, with chocolate caramel, coconut or nut frosting; use mocha, white, chocolate or penoche frosting on chocolate-flavored cakes or cookies; put lemon, orange, almond or pineapple filling or frosting with spice, sponge, white or angel food cakes.

How to Get A Defense Job

AS AMERICA'S gigantic defense program gets into its stride more and more jobs open up. If you have a wanted skill, or if you can learn one, you have only to find your spot.

There's a national shortage of skilled workers in metal products, shipbuilding, aircraft. In many places defense has created a scarcity of nondefense workers, clerical and other types.

There are all sorts of aids—from training to free placement agencies—to get you and job together.

For instance, electrical workers are wanted, so if you have any experience in that line you may be eligible for a "refresher course," be Grade A for a job.

If you're young, without training, you may get it with the aid of Government agencies, industry, unions.

Typical is the training setup of one airplane manufacturer. Are you a citizen 18 or over, with a high school education or mechanical experience? You may take a two-to-six-weeks' course (free except for a few tools) get a 50-cents-an-hour job.

Trained men—from letterers to plumbers — can find openings everywhere. Our new 40-page booklet, "How to Get a Defense Job," lists 237 kinds of workers needed in defense. Tells how and where to get training, nearby places to register for jobs. Suggests chances for women, older men, nondefense workers.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "How to Get a Defense Job," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

'Captive' Mines Face Walkout Of 38,000

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14.—Patrick T. Fagan, a district president of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers, said tonight about 38,000 soft coal miners in six States would go on strike tomorrow at "captive" mines of seven steel corporations on the sole demand that the companies grant a union shop.

The steel corporations—among them the Nation's largest—are United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Wheeling, Crucible, Weirton, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, which are turning out defense vital steel at the highest production rate in history.

Fagan said the walkout, set for 6 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow, would affect mines in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Illinois.

Union Shop Is Issue.

Pittsburgh union leaders said they expected the National Defense Mediation Board would intervene, but there was no indication of that at Washington. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declined comment there.

The strike order climaxed three months of negotiations during which the mines have operated under verbal agreements. Wages, hours and working conditions were not involved.

"All we ask is a union shop," said Fagan. "It is unfortunate that the captive mines will close, as the commercial mines have union shop agreements."

"Captive" mines are those operated by steel companies or other concerns which use the entire output in their own operations.

United States Steel, the Nation's largest producer, declined comment tonight but said it might issue a statement tomorrow.

Fagan said the corporations would ordinarily have a three to four weeks' supply of coal on hand. If that were exhausted, he said, they would be able to buy some coal now going to commercial markets, "but they can't stand evry long unless they can't stand very long unless they close the blast furnaces."

Walkout Over Dues

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP).—Hugh V. Brown, president of District Seven of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers of America, said today that anthracite miners of the Hazleton area who left their jobs in revolt over increased union levies have decided to return to work Monday.

The Hazleton diggers also have decided, he said, that they "won't permit anyone to stop them."

At the same time, a group of the insurgents voted to continue the work stoppage and announced that hundreds of miners would march against the Hazleton collieries if an attempt is made to resume operations.

Machine Strike Ends

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Employes of the Foote Brothers Gear and Machine Co. voted at a mass meeting today to ratify an agreement ending a strike started last Friday.

The Conciliation Service announced a settlement tonight in the dispute between the A.F.L. International Union of Operating Engineers and the Union Electric Co. of St. Louis.

Terms of the settlement were not made public pending its submission to the union membership for ratification but it was reliably understood to call for wage increases, vacations and reclassification of jobs.

Conferees representing the company and the union had been meeting with conciliation officials here in 12-hour sessions daily since Thursday. The union, in voting a strike, had demanded 90 cents an hour for laborers now receiving 51½ cents, $1.25 for workers getting more than 51½ cents, and a 22-cent increase for welders receiving $1.15 an hour. The company offered a blanket 10 per cent raise.

Company Objects To Michigan Strike

Manning, Maxwell and Moore, Inc., said in a statement that a strike had been called yesterday at its Muskegon, Mich., plant in violation of a wage agreement between the company and its local union of the American Federation of Labor.

The company said it had written to this effect to Secretary of Labor Perkins and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The dispute involved, the company said, a union demand for a closed shop and wage increases. The union asked, the statement continued, that employes be classified into three divisions and union members not receiving wage increases under this classification would receive an increase of 40 cents a day and for an eight-hour day. Present wage rates were not disclosed.

The company asserted it had a valid contract with the union which had five months left to run and that it did not intend to be forced to accept the change asked. It said it had offered increases amounting to $97,000 during the next five months, but the union declined the offer.

Five Million Pounds of Salmon Deluge Northwest Canneries

All-Time Record Catch Taken in Columbia River

By the Associated Press

Astoria, Oreg., Sept. 14.—Columbia River fishermen deluged canning factories today with the largest catch of Chinook salmon in 30 years.

Packers considered calling a brief fishing recess in order to clean up more than five million pounds landed since the fall season opened three days ago.

There has been nothing like it in recent history, and some fishermen predicted it would be the last major run in the river.

Biggest previous catch was the 2,103,620 pounds of Chinook—the largest, highest grade salmon—hauled in during the first three days of the 1938 fall season.

Salmon began concentrating in the Columbia mouth late in August. Rains hit the Pacific Northwest at the same time. On September 10 freshets made themselves felt at the Columbia mouth, and the fish boiled upstream by thousands.

They ran smack into the nets of 1200 fishing boats, for the commercial season opened that morning. By nightfall between three and four million pounds had been landed.

Bank Hints Manufacturers' Ruse to Hoard Raw Materials

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Sept. 14.—The Cleveland Trust Co. studied manufacturers' inventory figures and suggested today "a considerable quantity of raw materials may have been put through one or more stages of manufacture and them accumulated as protection against a possible forced redistribution of raw materials."

American industry, the bank asserted in its monthly business review, is suffering from chronic protective purchasing which "pervades our whole society."

"Our flow of production has become like a long river with many tributaries across which we have built innumerable dams. Behind each of them the flow backs up in numberless pools. And down at the mouth only a reduced output has come all the way through. If we should continue the process long enough, the outflow of finished goods would ultimately be ample, but we do not have that much time to spare."

In both dollar and physical volume, manufacturers' inventories are the highest on record and the sharpest rise has occurred in goods in process of manufacture. They are now about 50 per cent above the level of a year ago, Cleveland Trust said, while raw materials owned by manufacturers are only 20 per cent higher and "finished goods in the hands of manufacturers are actually 5 per cent smaller than they were a year ago."

The prevailing "abnormally low interest rates" have made it "temptingly safe and inexpensive for producers to tie up capital, in the dead storage of stock piles of goods. This is one of the reasons why our economy has been sapping up huge volumes of materials and producing too few munitions. We have been stocking up too heavily, and producing defense goods too slowly."

2 Here Complete Clinic Internships

Miss Katherine A. Grammer, 2901 Sixteenth Street Northwest, and Walter F. Hendricks, jr., 2326 Thirty-seventh Street Northwest, have completed a three months' clinical intership at New Jersey State Hospital, Greystone Park, N. J., the Council for Clinical Training announced yesterday.

Miss Grammer is dean of women for the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Philadelphia. Hendricks, a graduate of Yale University, is a senior student at the General Theological Seminary in New York.

The two were among a group of 50 clergymen and theological students selected from the United States and Canada for advanced, intensive pastoral training in various mental hospitals, general hospitals and correctional institutions throughout the country.

Chicago Paper Planned by Field

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Marshall Field, publisher of New York's PM, said tonight he has been "working on plans" to establish a new morning newspaper in Chicago and expected to have a definite announcement within "a week or ten days."

Field said the paper would be organized by himself and friends, including Silliman Evans, president of the Tennessean in Nashville, Tenn. There would be no consolidation or purchase involved in the deal, he added.

56,011 Export Car Unloadings Set New Record

Export freight car unloadings other than grain at Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports reached a new high of 56,011 cars in August, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

It was the largest number of unloadings for any one month since the compilation of such statistics began in November, 1939, exceeding by 1029 the previous high in July of this year, and by 1758 the number for August, 1940.

The association survey showed that 3592 cars of grain for export were unloaded at the ports last month, compared with 2536 in August a year ago.

Movies Biased? Editor Asks If Inquiry Is

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 14.—Senators who have accused the movie industry of war-mongering were assailed tonight by Herbert Agar, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who asked:

"Do they want the motion picture industry to pretend that the Nazis are not cruelly assaulting our civilization, are not relentlessly destroying freedom and kindliness wherever their bloody rule extends?"

He declared in a talk prepared for broadcast over the C. B. S. network under the auspices of Fight for Freedom, Inc., that "the public knows that Hitler is the enemy of every decent man on earth and that he has got to be beaten."

Knows United States Must Act

"The public knows that he probably won't be beaten unless America takes a hand. So the public supports Mr. Roosevelt in all he has done—and the public will go on supporting him to the end."

Agar declared that "these amazing Senators accuse the movie industry of not being 'impartial.' They charge that many recent pictures tend to make people dislike and oppose Hitler. They seem to forget that Hitled tends to make people dislike Hitler."

A Senate Committee last week began a hearing in Washington to determine whether the movie industry should be investigated. Wendell L. Willkie is counsel for the industry.

Praises Willkie

"Thank Heaven," declared Agar, "that a powerful voice is raised to defend the motion picture industry. Wendell Willkie believes in civil liberties, believes with all his heart in the American idea. He is not being frightened by these odd Senators with their dubious subcommittee to investigate whether an investigation is in order. He is meeting the attack head-on. Meeting it the only way any attack can be met, by taking the offensive. He is taking the offensive in the name of the country he loves.

"It is not war-mongering to tell the truth—even if the truth, as Mr. Roosevelt says, is 'cruel and relentless.' It is not our fault that the truth is cruel. But it will certainly be our fault if we are too dull or too cowardly to face the cruel facts."

Isolationism Blamed For U. S. Position Today

Des Moines, Sept. 14 (AP).—The isolationists' contention that the United States is at the verge of war "proclaims the bankruptcy of their formula," W. W. Waymack, editor of the DesMoines Register and Tribune editorial pages, declared today.

Waymack, Pulitzer prize winner for editorial writing in 1938, said in a radio broadcast that an objective study of propaganda "would show that never has a nation had such a drenching with it as this Nation for 20 years—with the propaganda of isolationism," and asked:

"Are we at the gate of the very woes from which the isolationist propaganda said it would guarantee us?"

Waymack termed a contention by Charles A. Lindbergh at an America First Committee rally here last Friday night that the British, the Jews and the Roosevelt Administration are leading the Nation toward war "a species of intellectual blindness that I cannot comprehend."

Hitler, he said, "is the propagandist who really did the job" in establishing the American wish that Germany should not win the war.

Waymack said totalitarianism constitutes menace, and "wisdom dictates keeping the menace at a distance."

He spoke under the auspices of Fight for Freedom, Inc., of which he is not a member.

tracting on defense and lease-lend production.

But there was concern in Washington over expected word that American naval vessels had clashed with Axis ships of war in pursuance of the President's orders of last Thursday. News that at least one Axis raider was operating in the Pacific, apparently preying on ships bound for the Panama canal added to concern.

President Roosevelt is expected to meet this morning with his legislative leaders and there was renewed speculation last night on whether he would broach the possibility of revising or amending the Neutrality Act to permit arming of merchant ships and letting them enter combat zones. Capitol Hill leaders were insistent that the President to date has given no intimation that he contemplates such a proposal.

Senator Nye, noninterventionist leader, told International News Service last night that the shooting orders announced in Mr. Roosevelt's address of last Thursday night will lead rapidly to a "shooting war" and that once United States Fleet and air units are engaged with Germany another A. E. F. will eventually be sent to Europe.

Testifying to continued concern over the war's threats to this country, the American Legion's national defense committee, meeting at Milwaukee, yesterday urged the lifting of the restriction against sending American troops outside this hemisphere.

At the same time, Gen. Robert E. Wood, head of the America First Committee, announced that an "independent group" of 58 "prominent Americans" had united in a public condemnation of the President's address as a "grave threat to democratic principles of majority rule."

The Chief Executive is scheduled to send to Congress today his regular 90-day report on operaitons under the seven-billion-dollar lend-lease program, and it is generally expected that the report will be followed shortly by submission of a new program calling for five or six billion dollars of additional aid for nations fighting the Axis.

Possbility of a House fight over acceptance of its conferees' report on the three and one-half billion dollar tax bill remained.

Exemptions Are Crux

Some opposition is expected to the Senate provisions lowering income tax exemptions of single persons from $800 to $750 and of married persons from $2000 to $1500.

Informal agreement already has been reached on a compromise draft of the bill which would retain Senate exemption amendments, but the House has been operating under a "no business" agreement for three weeks, so no formal steps toward adjusting differences in drafts passed by the House and Senate can be taken until House conferees are appointed officially today.

The tentative agreement was reached by members of the Senate Finance and the House Ways and Means Committees, who met several times last week as unofficial conferees. They will meet again this afternoon in an official capacity and, presumably, will ratify their informal agreement.

Gone With the Pants

The attendant at the District Information Bureau in Post Square wants some information. Where are his pants? What's more, where is the $40 and his driving license which were in the pants? It seems he was sleeping at a friend's house last night, when a thief cut through the screen door, and grabbed the pants from a chair. They belonged to a new one-trouser suit.

Hundreds Refuse Profered U. S. Jobs

Shortages of qualified workers, unheard of here just a few months ago, are beginning to give Uncle Sam and his central recruiting agent, the Civil Service Commission, serious concern. Shortages, for example, have shown up recently among multilith operators, cameramen and platemakers. Both the War and Navy Departments are in urgent need of these types of employes but the commisison has been unable to suply their needs. Civil Service tests for these jobs have been held open since November, 1940.

The fact is that there are more than 300 eligibles on the registers—enough to supply the demand—but the plain truth is that most of these eligibles have refused to accept Federal jobs in Washington. The Commission last week sent wires to the more than 300 eligibles and less than a dozen indicated a willingness to accept jobs here that would pay $1440 for multilith operators and $1620 for multilith cameramen and platemakers.

Why? It's generally believed at the commission that stories published about "boom town" Washington, its high rents and other living costs, are keeping qualified and needed people from accepting jobs here. Personnel chiefs report the percentage of refusals to accept low-paying jobs here, such as messenger, clerk-typist, guard, machine operators and the like are running around 70 per cent. Ninety-seven per cent, a record, refused to accept jobs here as multilith operators, cameramen and platemakers.

With the number of refusals mounting daily and the need for qualified personnel ever increasing, the belief is growing here in official circles that Congress will have to increase the Federal employe salaries in order to attract competent personnel. The question will be brought before the Congress within the next few months and already bills are being drafted that would raise salaries.

Training Plan Started

The only other alternative is for Uncle Sam to train his own employes. This already is being done in some lines of work and the Civil Service Commission has set up a training division under Winston B. Stephens to assist the departments and agencies. When the Commerce Department couldn't get multilith operators, cameramen and pistemakers through the Civil Service Commisison, it set up a school to train people for the jobs. Incidentally, the commission is accepting applications now from persons who have completed the Chamberlain Vocational School course in this work, given at Roosevelt High School.

Bureau of Ships at the Navy Department needs materials engineers and technologists who have a knowledge of the manufacture of textiles and cordage. Experience in either manufacturing or in inspecting will be accepted. The bureau also is looking for engineers who have specialized in textile manufacturing. Qualified persons should file applications for these jobs with the Civil Service Commission.

Two of the most critical needs are for chemists and radio engineers. National Institute of Health at Bethesda needs a chemist who has had training in the toxicity of heavy metals. The job pays $3200. If interested, get announcement 58 from the Civil Service Commission. Edgewood Arsenal, near Baltimore, demands chemical engineers who have had experience in production. Applications will be rated as received for these jobs at the Civil Service Commission.

Bureau of Standards and the War Department both need radio and sound physicists. Another Civil Service test—Number 152 of 1940—will be kept open to fill these jobs until December 12. The commission also has a test open for radio-acoustic technicians, paying from $1440 to $2300, and it will be kept open until November 6. Moreover, men and women are needed for research work and testing in radio, explosives, chemistry, physics, metallurgy and fuels. These jobs pay from $1440 to $2600. Applicants will be graded on education and experience for these jobs.

Senate Movie Probe Jeered By Dr. Harris

With thinly-veiled sarcasm, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris yesterday ridiculed the Senatorial investigation of so-called movie "war propaganda."

Preaching at Foundry Methodist Church, sixteenth and P Streets Northwest, he made lengthy reference to A. J. Cronin's famous story of modern sainthood, "The Keys of the Kingdom," then said:

"If this splendid book is filmed, let us hope that no Senator will suggest an investigation of this glorious story of Christian love on the grounds that it is unfair to the devil and is really propaganda for the Kingdom of God."

The Rev. Edward O. Clark returned to his Chevy Chase Baptist pulpit yesterday, bringing sermon assurance that God has not abandoned the world, in spite of the present outlook.

Enlargement of spiritual sympathy and understanding among many Christian peoples, the continuation of Christian forces' work in spite of the war, and signs of Hitler's nemesis are three indications that God is still at work in the world, said Mr. Clark.

While admitting that "things looked very bad" a year ago, when Hitler was riding his crest, Mr. Clark said that no country would want to be in Hitler's shoes today, trying to fight on a 2000-mile battle line and hemmed in by revolt, God will be Hitler's nemesis, he said.

The bombing of London churches and other buildings, he stated, has caused people to cross denominational and interfaith lines to render spiritual and material aid. This, he said, was a very encouraging sign for Christianity and for the world in general.

Last of 29th Troops Due at A.P. Hill Today

By the Associated Press

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., Sept. 14.—Arrival of an Army 100-truck convoy from Fort George C. Meade, Md., today, brought to nearly half the Twenty-ninth Division's strength of 18,000 men, the number already encamped her for the division's two weeks of maneuvers in Caroline County.

A majority of the trucks returned immediately to Fort Meade, to transport the remainder of the division, approximately 10,000 men, in the final large troop movement tomorrow, Lieut. Col. Philip K. Molsand, special troops headquarters commandant, said.

En route to the Virginia reservation, the convoy made a 50-minute stop on the heavily wooded roadside of Highway 301, near Waldorf, Md., to allow the men to attend religious services conducted by First Lieut. Martin L. Shanner, chaplain of Special Troops Unit.

An acute shortage of trucks forced headquarters officers to revise their original plans and dispatch today's convoy 24 hours ahead of schedule.

Guy Mason, recently appointed District Commissioner, will be one of the principal speakers Thursday night at the Federation of Business Men's Association dinner at the Hay Adams House at 7.

A business meeting will follow the dinner.

Floor Finisher Dies From Burns

Robert A. Hankins, 36, of 514 Fifth Street Northwest, died at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday morning of third degree burns suffered Saturday while working on an apartment house at Fourteenth Street and Tewesbury Place Northwest.

Police said that Hankins had been finishing a floor in the new building with shellac and gasoline and smoking a cigarette as he worked. The gasoline fumes exploded setting fire to his clothing.

$22,000 Church Dedicated By the Arlington Baptists

Members of the Arlington (Va.) Baptist Church yesterday dedicated their new $22,000 edifice, and received an invitation for their congregation to join the District Baptist Convention.

Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the convention, said in his dedication address that Arlington was so much a part of the Washington Metropolitan area that he "hoped" it would soon be possible for the Baptist churches there to come under the District body.

The Rev. Walter F. Wolf, pastor of Arlington Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation at the afternoon program, while the Clarendon Baptist Church orchestra played at the evening service. The Rev. E. H. Puryear, pastor, who founded the Arlington Baptist Church 13 years ago, spoke during the morning.

Last night's speakers included Dr. W. O. Lewis, of Washington, executive secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, whose headquarters are now in sanctuary here from London, and James R. Bryant, associate secretary, Virginia Baptist State Mission Board.

Frederick Team Match Bridge Trophy Won by D. C. Foursome

By Marian H. Barre
The Post's Bridge Editor.

A District foursome, composed of Louis Newman, captain; Mrs. W. S. Athey, Leroy Thurtell and Paul Kibler, won the team match in the Cumberland Valley Bridge Tournament which was concluded last night in Frederick, Md. The winners had a lead of 4½ boards over the Baltimore lineup of Arthur Schlessinger, James Hunter, Col. Robert Gill and Claggett Bowle.

Another local team, comprising S. Garton Churchill, John Kunkel, Miss Mabel Tobin and J. Roorbach, finished third. The defenders, headed by former National Champions Oscar Brotman and Alvin Roth, failed to compete.

The team trophy was Newman's consolation for losing his open pair title the night before when he and Codefender Dr. A. J. Steinberg failed to capitalize on a 30-point lead in the first round. This was the biggest upset of the tournament, as an able and experienced team seldom loses so much ground.

Edward Pearson and E. J. Hyers, both of Baltimore, pulled up to win the game with 530 match points, while Schlessinger and Hunter managed to edge in second though their score was only 513½. The defenders limped in third with 496½. Other leaders included E. B. Conolly and James J. Stone, Washington, 494½, and Mrs. Athey and Thurtell, tying Irving Fisher and Dr. G. M. Bolling, of Baltimore, with 491.

The best personal record in the tournament was made by Mrs. Athey, member of the winning team, who also won the mixed title with her husband, besides showing in honor lineups of the remaining championships. Considered as a group Washington players gave an excellent performance, taking three out of four titles in a field which was made up of stars.

Improved National Park School For Women Opens Tomorrow

National Park College for Women, at Forest Glen, Md., with 360 students enrolled from 40 States and 6 foreign countries, will open tomorrow.

Seven instructors have been added to the staff. During the summer, new science laboratories have been added to the chemistry and home economics departments, the library enlarged, new electric fixtures placed in the dormitories and the dining hall and reception rooms redecorated.

Junior college transfer and terminal courses will be offered. A complete new homemakers' curriculum has been organized. Courses in this curriculum include foods and clothing, nutrition, home planning, marriage and the family, and home management.

Students will be taught the management of money through the use of expense account books issued to each student. The girls will use the account books to budget their personal funds throughout the year.

Classes begin next Monday but new students are required to be on the campus today. A period of guidance and sight-seeing for the new students begins tomorrow. Following morning tests and meetings throughout the week, the students will take short trips to points of interest in Washington.

St. Louis Banker Agrees to Head U.S. Chest Drive

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Tom K. Smith, president of the Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis, has accepted the chairmanship of the 1941 community mobilization for human needs, Robert Cutler, of Boston, president of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., announced today.

Cutler also announced these vice presidents: Charles Francis Adams, Boston; Dr. A. H. Giannini, Los Angeles; Sidney Hollander, Baltimore; Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Washington; Gerald Swope, New York, and Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati.

Cutler said the group headed by Smith would conduct a Nation-wide educational program from October 3 to October 25, urging backing of voluntary social agencies through local community chests. He said 95 million dollars would be sought by 697 chests to meet needs of 1942.

500 Negroes Protest 'Brutal' District Police

An estimated 500 Negro men, women and children chanted three times in unison that "police brutality must go," closing a protest meeting yesterday in the park at Tenth and U Streets Northwest.

One of the speakers, the Rev. Frank W. Alstork, pastor of Union Wesley A. M. E. Church, had cried the same words at close of his brief talk. He advocated peaceable approach to the question because "he who lives by the sword will perish by the sword."

Many of the 500 protesters marched to the park in parades led by flags and placards declaring that "Old Jim Crow Has Got to Go;" "Protect Our Civil Rights" and "Police Brutality is a Disgrace to the Nation's Capital."

Dr. Wilkerson Presides

Called on for cries of resolution by Dr. Doxey A. Wilkerson, of Howard University, who presided, the assemblage midly shouted that "Police Brutality Has Got to Go" and "Protect Our Civil Rights" but came out with the lung power on "Old Jim Crow Has Got to Go."

One of the placards demanded a Negro captain for the Second Police Precinct, the position now held by Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan. This is a thickly populated Negro residential area.

A Negro youth passed among the crowd at the meeitng, sponsored by the Citizens' Committee Against Police Brutality, passing handbills that urged all to help raise a $5000 "fighting fund against police brutality."

Among the crowd, listening interestedly, was the new police superintendent, Maj. Edward J. Kelly. Many policemen were there, mostly Negro policemen, who stood back on the sidelines, unobtrusively.

Hymns Played

Before the meeting started, and after it finished, a phonograph with amplification, played hymns and balads. And the crowd, in the interludes, talked to each other good-naturedly.

Some white men and women walked through the crowd, looking for buyers of the Sunday Worker.

Other speakers were Craig Vincent, of the C. I. O. Industrial Union Council; Frank Donner, chairman of the case committee of the sponsoring organization, and Dorothy Strange, its secretary. The shooting of two Negroes, Jasper and Edward Cobb, by Policeman Donald R. Webber the night of August 4 last precipitated the protests.

Couple Honored For Their Service To Congregation

For outstanding service to the congregation, Mr. and Mrs. David Zoslow, 5933 Sixteenth Street Northwest, last night were presented a bronze plaque at special ceremonies at Beth Sholom Synagogue, Eighth and Shepherd Streets Northwest.

In making the presentation, Congregation President Samuel Kolker explained that the couple was being honored for their symbolic "buying" of the privileges of laying the cornerstone of the present building three years ago and "opening" the door of the synagogue. "Purchase" of such privileges is a Jewish custom.

Another feature of last night's program was the presentation of a synagogue chandelier in memory of Mrs. Yetta Zarin by Mr. Zarin and family. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Liss presented six flourescent lights to the congregation. Rabbi M. H. Levinson presided.

Attorney King Named Aide for Seal Sale

Milton W. King, attorney, 4000 Cathedral Avenue, has been appointed vice chairman of the 1941 Christmas Seal Sale, to be conducted by the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, Paul D. Sleeper, seal sale chairman, reported yesterday. The sale opens November 24 and continues through Christmas. An unusually heavy demand for the seals is expected, Sleeper said.

Detective 'Specialists' Ruled Out

Men to Get All Types Of Investigation Experience Under Bureau Shake-up

Abolition of the "specialist" in the detective bureau, recommended recently by Commissioner John Russell Young, will be accomplished in the current reorganization of the bureau, it was declared yesterday by Chief of Detective Richard H. Mansfield.

Under the plans for the shake-up, 22 detective sergeants now assigned to various precincts will be transferred to the bureau for duty with various squads. The new centralization plan, however, will be coupled with a rotation of detectives on various squads from time to time, Mansfield explained.

For example, he said, a detective sergeant will be assigned to the homicide squad. He will work on this squad until he has had time to "prove his metal." As soon as the man becomes proficient in this work and indicates such proficiency by "cleaning-up" cases, he will be transferred to another squad.

There'll Be Exceptions

"Of course, if the man proves to be an expert in this particular field, it would be unwise to take him off this work, and it is even possible he will receive a promotion right then and there," Mansfield said.

However, as the detective chief now contemplates the setup, he will keep his 70 detectives busy all year round learning the work of the nine special squads. These squads are robbery, burglary (formerly clothing and jewelry), narcotics, pick-up, homicide, check, automobile, public relations (missing persons) and the special investigation (vice and subversive activities).

One of the very first things Young did upon entering office as chairman of the Board of Commissioners was to lash out against the so-called "specialist" within the Detective Bureau. He contended that every man on the staff should know equally well how to investigate a robbery, a murder or a petit larceny.

"I told my men," Mansfield said, "that I wanted them all to begin at scratch. I believe, and firmly, that under this rotation system I will be able to determine which members of the force are not suited to detective work."

Minor grumblings were heard yesterday at headquarters, where the detectives gathered for their Sunday noon roll-call. One sergeant, attached to an outlying precinct for the past ten years, said he would welcome a return to the uniform because of the new set-up. He said:

Sergeant Has a Complaint

"I have worked years building up my contacts in this section of the city, know all of its ins and outs and what is going on. We are brought into headquarters and will be assigned almost any place. And what happens to a detective who has been working in my section of the city and is placed on the other side of town? I doubt whether I'll even know the streets there."

Meanwhile, Lieut. Robert J. Barrett, ace investigator, will be sworn into office as Assistant Chief of Detectives today at 10 a. m. Although continuing his career with the rank of lieutenant, Barrett will receive a captain's pay. It is known he will assume active charge of all detective work, with Inspector Mansfield as supervisor and policy-maker.

Mansfield said his new system would not begin operation until later this week because of the work necessary in reassigning all members of the departemnt to the nine squads.

Kiwanis Plans eSt For Convention Here October 9-11

Committees to handle arrangements for the twenty-third annual district convention of the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Mayflower, October 9 through 11, were announced yesterday by Dr. Oscar R. Hunter, president, and Martin T. Wiegand, convention chairman.

About 1200 delegates from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District are expected to attend the gathering. The committeemen are:

Summer's End

Hottest Days Over, Says Weatherman

The old New England adage about "if you don't like the weather, wait a minute," seemed applicable to Washington yesterday, after a glance at the records of the past few days and the weatherman's forecast of things to come. Reassured by the Weather Bureau that the heat, in the best Washington sense of the word, had probably departed, the city's residents were left to speculate over the following meteorological data:

On Wednesday, Washingtonians sweltered in a record September 10 heat of 96 degrees. By 6 a. m. Saturday the mercury had plummeted to a shivery 49. Yesterday's daytime temperatures hovered in the comfortable high seventies. And for the coming week, warmer weather was predicted for the first few days, cooler days again at the end of the week, and probable showers somewhere in between. Take your pick.

The official maximum and minimum temperatures yesterday were 78 degrees, at 4:30 p. m., and 54, at 5:30 a. m. The forecast for today was mostly clear and slightly warmer, with a high temperature of 84 degrees, considered about normal for the date. Increasing cloudiness and moderately warm weather is predicted for Tuesday.

When the thermometer skidded out of the nineties Wednesday night, Washington bade farewell with some degree of certainty to one of her longest summers in some years. For the 90-degree heat that has blistered the Capital during the past months began, not in the middle of June, as respectable summers are supposed to, but on April 20, when the temperature reached a five-year record of 94. It bounced up to 97 in May, and has hit at least 93 degrees during each month since, with 100, on July 28, the highest.

Just to keep a balance for the year, however, the District saw a blizzard drive the mercury down to 15 on March 18, during one of the coldest and snowiest Marches in history.

Although the autumnal equinox will officially usher in the fall on September 23, weathermen yesterday would make no predictions over a longer range than a week. They did, however, remind householders speculatively eyeing blankets and fall clothing that the District usually has a warm spell in October, with customary 80 degrees temperatures.

They have as yet made no comment on the United States Weather Bureau report at the end of 1939 that the warmest decade in a century had passed, and that citizens could look forward to "a cooler, wetter phase" thereafter.

Alexandria Utility Plans Addition Soon

The Virginia Public Service Co. will begin work about October 1 on a new two million dollar addition to its Alexandria steam generating plant, according to announcement by John W. Howard, Northern Virginia division manager for the utility. The addition, which will step up the plant's capactiy from 30,000 kilowatts to 45,000 kilowatts, will require from 10 months to a year for completion.

With the city council having approved plans for the addition at its meeting last Tuesday night, a construction permit probably will be issued within the next ten days, according to Building Inspector A. R. Lush. The addition will be similar in design and equipment to a steam generating plant which was completed at the Alexandria station last year.

While company officials are proceeding with plans for the plant and are prepared to begin construction within the next 30 days, Howard said, the means of financing the project will depend on an application for a general refinancing of the utility which will be submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission in the near future. The Federal agency rejected an earlier V. P. S. refinancing plan several months ago, but SEC representatives are assisting officers of the utility in preparing a new plan which may prove acceptable.

Drug Store Is Looted Of Narcotics

Burglar Is Believed By Police to Be Drug Addict as Only Morphine Is Taken

A lone thief, believed by police to be a narcotic addict, early yesterday sawed bars from a basement window at People's Drug Store, 929 Seventh Street Northwest, and escaped with a quantity of morphine in one of several week-end burlaries.

The daring aspects of this job coupled with the fact that the thief stole nothing but the morphine led police to believe the man was an addict. Members of the narcotic squad declared yesterday that they believed peddlers of dope were having great difficulty obtaining illicit narcotics for sale to local addicts.

Detective Sergts. H. H. Carper and Robert Bryant of the narcotic squad disclosed yesterday that they had arrested a 27-year-old plumber and a 23-year-old waitress, both addicts, who had been rifling physician offices of prescription blanks and forging narcotic prescriptions. The woman, now at Gallinger Hospital for treatment, is held in connection with 10 cases of forgery and the man in connection with 17 cases.

Although the morphine taken from the drug store was valued by police at only $29.20, detectives said it was worth more than $500 to the addict.

William Ondrovich, watchman, reported that High's Ice Cream plant, 1324 Half Street Northeast, was entered by breaking the lock of the rear door. The looters, apparently frightened by Ondrovich, made an escape over the rear fence followed by a hail of bullets from the watchman's gun. They took with them a box of butter.

Arthur L. Meegam, 1613 Harvard Street Northwest, told police he was parking his car near his home early yesterday when approached by a white man who beat him over the head several times with a blackjack and stole his wallet. He was taken to Garfield Hospital for treatment of a possible fractured skull.

Harry F. Dean, of 77 U Street Northwest, reported a robber entered his house early yesterday by forcing a rear window on the first floor and ransacked the home. Missing was $43.

Eugene Ryter, 1704 Lanier Place Northwest, said his car was broken into, and that $20 worth of clothing was stolen. The car was parked in the 1100 block of Nineteenth Street Northwest.

Thomas C. Morris, 57, of 496 Maryland Avenue Southwest, told police he was attacked by four men on Seventh Street near Maryland Avenue Southwest last night and robbed of $5.60.

9 Ships Tied Up by Sailors' Bonus Strike

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 14.—A union official said today that nine ships have been tied up so far in a strike called by the Seafarer's International Union of North America (A. F. L.) over war bonus demands.

John Hawk, S. I. U. secretary, listed the Evangeline, Trader, Banner and Scout in New York; Carrier and Rambler, in Mobile, Ala., and Transport, in New Orleans, all of the Alcoa Steamship Co.; the Calmar Steamship Co.'s Oakmar, in New York, and the Waterman Steamship Co.'s Beauregard, in New Orleans.

He added that the strike is expected to spread to "scores" of other ships when they reach Atlantic and Gulf ports. Picket lines have been established at the piers where the nine vessels are docked, Hawk said.

Aluminum Output Hit, Company Says

New York, Sept. 14.—T. D. Jolly, director of purchases and chief engineer of the Aluminum Co. of America, which is producing 85 per cent of the new aluminum being made in the United States under high-speed conditions as part of the defense program, said today that the day-old seamen's strike against Alcoa Steamship Co. vessels already was having a serious effect on aluminum production.

Jolly said the company would be compelled to increase the amount of bauxite ore, the source of aluminum, which it is mining in Bauxite, Ark. He said that the company had been trying to avoid taking out any more of the Arkansas bauxite than was necessary, saving it against a day when it may be impossible to ship the material from Dutch Guiana.

"We only have so much bauxite in this country," he said at Pittsburgh, where the Aluminum Co.'s headquarters are maintained. "This will hurt our conservation program."

Two D. C. Selects Staying in Army

Despite provisions of the recently enacted Service Extension Act which enable selectees over 28 years old to be honorably discharged from the Army, two Washingtonians at Fort Riley, Kan., have elected to stay in service, Fort Riley authorities announced yesterday.

The men are Pvt. Joseph C. Burnett, 440 Kentucky Avenue Southeast, and Pvt. Ernest J. Prindle, 2012 P Street Northwest. At the Fort Riley Replacement Center, these men are now receiving basic instruction in weapons, combat work and horsemanship. When their training period of 13 weeks is completed, they will be sent to permanent cavalry garrisons.

Milwaukee's Troubles Are Legion

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Sept. 14.—Staid Milwaukee has been stripped of her dignity with a suddenness that has left her gasping.

If any shred remains, it must bow soon before the hilarious and slightly mad antics forthcoming from a fun-loving crowd of thousands of convention-gathered American Legionnaires.

It can safely be reported that the legionnaires have the city well in hand today. "Milwaukee's Finest" concede this, none more fervently than the downtown Wisconsin Avenue patrolman who committed the tactical error of chiding a gathering of buddies for their pranks.

After a brief scuffle, the arm of the law, sans his best blue serges, streaked away as quickly as his trouserless legs could carry him.

The legion funsters have firecrackers, blank pistols, canes which explode thunderously when a trigger is pulled, cruising jallopies which spray crowds with water—every kind of a devise you could imagine. Forty and Eight boxcars roam the streets. Cannon roar.

No lady was safe from a Rhode Island "squirt-gun" brigade. The girls screamed and giggled as streams of icy water struck their legs. A man from Connersville, Ind., manipulated a toy Scottie which nipped the heels of passing girls, usually for a half block or more, despite their frantic maneuvers.

There were those helpful gentlemen, too, who directed crosstown traffic into such snarls that it took perspiring traffic officers ages to straighten things out.

One chap found a way to endear himself to downtown motormen. He would flag down trolleys and proceed to clean the windows—with a greasy mixture. That usually delayed things somewhat—that and midstreet dice games and bonfires. The transit company finally gave up and rerouted Wisconsin Avenue streetcars late yesterday hours before the main downtown section was scheduled to be closed to traffic.

Occoquan Firemen Will Hold Carnival

The Occoquan, Va., Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a benefit carnival next week, beginning Monday night, at Morgan Park, near the Occoquan High School.

Fire Chief John E. Musselman is general chairman of the carnival committee, assisted by Elmer Reiley, Claude Green, Kermit Weakley and William Widner. Clarence B. Rail Executive Dies

St. Louis, Sept. 14 (AP).—John Cannon, 69, chief operating officer of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, died today at the company hospital where he underwent an operation last Monday. For several years he was a member and chairman of the operating-transportation section of the Association of American Railroads.

Registrants Urged to Make Selves Fit

William E. Leahy, District director of Selective Service, yesterday urged all registrants awaiting military call to consult their doctors and dentists to correct any remediable physical defects before being called for physical examination. At the same time, it was announced that the Selective Service reemployment office will open today.

Calling attention to the high rate of rejections of registrants for physical defects, Leahy asserted that registrants should seek to fit themselves for military service not only as a patriotic duty, but also in the interest of public health and their own well-being.

"It is not only a question of improving one's physical condition so that there will be a greater certainty of passing the local board and Army physical tests," he said. "Every man in the District will better his own way of living and contribute a real service to the public health if he will take definite measures to have his disabilities corrected now."

The Selective Service reemployment office will be located at the National Guard Armory, Pennsylvania and Sixth Street Northwest, to help discharged service men obtain civilian employment. Headed by Howard S. Fisk, the office will act as a liaison agency between local boards and the Federal Security Agency employment bureau. It will aid not only selectees but also returning National Guardsmen, and members of the Regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

The Selective Service Act provides that employers rehire selectees wherever circumstances permit.

"BUDS AND BUDDIES" PLUS PIANO ACE. The Neptune Room will present "Three Buds and Three Buddies," also pianist Walter Liberace, beginning next Saturday afternoon. Neptune seems to be starting its fall season with a "lucky seven." Most of this youthful group were "infant prodigies."

The three "Buds" are the Shaw Sisters, Pat, Sally and Gensie, notable in vaudeville. They've been singing and dancing in unison ever since they were 3 years old.

Shorty Allen, leader of the "Buds and Buddies," has had a band since he was 9 years old. Until recently he had a 12-piece band, none of whom were over 21. He's played New York's top spots and many theaters. Shorty leads from the piano, with "Buddies" Ricky Montrose and Frank Marcy playing guitar and bass.

Walter Liberance evinced a flair for the piano when 4 years old, has been playing professionally since he was 13. He has appeared with the Chicago and Wisconsin Symphonies as guest soloist.

P. S.: The "Talent Reunion Night" at Neptune tomorrow promises to be stupendous.

Maestro Dick Koons returns to the Mayflower Lounge bandstand this afternoon, will doubtless receive an enthusiastic welcome from his fans. He had a sort of postman's convalescence from his recent appendix operation, spending every afternoon listening to his own band.

THE SPEECHLESS MAGICIANS, Les Hunt and Juliet, will star in the new Lotus revue, opening today. Both are deaf and dumb, express those twin soundless arts, pantomime and magic, in concentrated perfection. Other Lotus attractions are dancers Barbara and Leslie, unicyclist Denny Dennis. Lotus' eight Dancettes will present hoop dance, a jitter-jive session and a musical comedy parade.

METRONOME PROSPECTS. Manager George Johnson, of the Wardman Park Hotel, has lined up a super-smooth "CA band for the Metronome Room. Can't tell you its name because the contracts aren't signed yet. Metronome will open before October 1.

WHEN THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS, Burt's Trans-Lux, under Radio Center, is always dotted with celebs due to comment on the Roosevelt utterances. The other eve we saw Kaltenborn, Sidney Hillman and Max Jordan, European journalist, waiting their turn to go on the air. Sports commentators Bill Stern and Sam Taub were also parked in Burt's. And all of the NBC production department were there celebraitng the birthday of Announcer Kenneth Banghart, who, according to John Gaunt, producer of NBC shows, "is thinking about becoming thirty."

"JIVIN' JACK" SCHAFFER, who today becomes full-time maestro at the Casino Royal. He's resigned from the Capitol Theater Band

EILEEN, THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBER. Singer Eileen George, of the Anchor Room, has currently dressed herself up like an Alpine climber. She's wearing knee-length wool hose, a green corduroy sleeveless jacket over a yellow chamois blouse and a brown wool shirt. All that she needs is an alpenstock and a St. Bernard.

PLYMOUTH IS FLUORESCENT. A new system of many-colored lights has been installed in the Plymouth, is especially eye-teasing at the supper hour, when all other lights are switched off. It's soft but rainbow-like.

A COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, as well as a hotel executive, is George J. Sharshing, assistant manager of the Shoreham. He has a model farm up near Warrenton, specializes in raising those tremendous Percheron draft horses that are becoming more valuable every day as defense agricultural production is intensified. Prize pigs and turkeys are also important on this farm. Sharshing devotes his weekends to a combination of farm management and entertaining his Washington friends.

Ida Clarke, of the Lounge Riviera, was slightly done in the other midnight. And no wonder. She'd played three radio programs early in the day, also the Riviera cocktail and supper sessions.

STRANGE STUNTS. Van Taylor, the "big boy" singer of Restaurant "223," is more comfortable if he sits on two chairs instead of one when he dines . . . Bob Roberts, of the Mayfair Senators, tells about the time he caught 250 pounds of fish in one day. But they were all inedible drum fish. "I sold 'em for 4 cents a pound," says Bob, "and I've never been able to find out what the buyer did with them" . . . El Patio has performed the miracle of adding a dance floor to their set-up and still gaining on seating space. They did it by removing the sidewall booths. . . . Guido, mental analyst of the Rainbow Room, tells people frankly about their failings. But he does it so tactfully that they enjoy hearing what their friends won't tell them. . . . Jimmy Summerville, leader of the Hi Hat's Four M's, has two major hobbies — supervising the training of his two race horses and teaching new tricks to his fox terrier, Shawnee.

OF CARMEN CAVALLARO, band leader in the Cosmos Room. He studied for a concert career in Italy, subsequently played in most of Europe's capitals. He came to America, bent on following his concert work, but was promptly kidnaped by leading dance music orchestras.

BEAUTIES AND BOWLING. First bowling alley to approximate a night spot atmosphere is Meyer Davis' new Hi-Skor, recently christened at a big press party, also attended by oodles of the show girls from Ed Wynn's "Boys and Girls Together. Everybody sipped, supped, chattered and bowled. Owner Meyer Davis, notable as New York society's favorite maestro, came to Washington for the party, renewed many old friendships . . . High point of the party, to us, came when Anne Hagner, of The Post, and Frances Kuhn, of the Star, set the Wynn showgirls an example of efficient bowling. The newsgirls took off their high-heeled shoes and bowled in their stocking feet. Champion bowler of the party, in reverse, was the Wynn beauty who rolled 'em down both gutters, impartially!

GOURMETS' CORNER. O'Donnell's Farmhouse will remain open for all of September, according to publicist Malcolm Lamborne. Don't even consider going on a diet until after the Farmhouse closes . . . When you get the urge to "get away from it all," go straight to the Hennington Tavern, where the waiters have rubber heels, there's no music and the food is irreproachable . . . Visiting relatives will never forgive you if you don't take them to Hogate's. Its seafood is famed from Albany to Oskaloosa.

Husband and Wife Paint Winning Mural for U. S. Cafeteria

A "TEAM" composed of husband and wife was announced yesterday as the winner of a national competition for the job of decorating the walls of the Social Security Building Cafeteria.

Jointly honored by the three-man jury's decision were Jerome Snyder and Gertrude Goodrich, of New York City—Mr. and Mrs. in nonprofessional life. Their designs were chosen as the best from among 70 sets submitted to the Section of Fine Arts, Public Buildings Administration.

SNYDER is 25, two years his wife's junior. He is self-taught, while Mrs. Snyder studied art at the National Academy of Design and the Leonardo da Vinci Art School. Their mural designs depict typical activities of contemporary American life.

Husband-wife teams also received first and second honorable mention. They are, respectively, Fred and Dorothy Farr, of New York City, and Jenne and Ethel Magafan, of Los Angeles. They have been invited to submit mural designs for the Social Security Building's recreation and board rooms.

JUDGES in the competition were Louis Bouche and William C. Palmer, of New York City, and Carlos Lopez, of Royal Oak, Mich.

New Church Chimes Ring Out

SINGING with the new chimes are Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Randall, choir directors, as William R. Bishop plays. The Petworth Baptist Church's chimes will be dedicated in December

WORSHIPERS at Petworth Baptist Church, Seventh and Randolph Streets Northwest, yesterday heard their new organ chimes played for the first time, with William R. Bishop at the console. The chimes will be formally dedicated in December.

Commenting on the addition to the church's musical program, the Rev. James P. Rodgers, pastor, said the chimes would greatly enhance the work of the young people's choir that was organized last year. He praised the Ladies' Aid Society and its president, Mrs. George A. Potter, for taking the lead in raising funds for them.

HARLAN RANDALL, who with Mrs. Randall, directs the choir, sang a hymn, "When They Ring Those Golden Bells." Randall is director of Maryland University's music department.

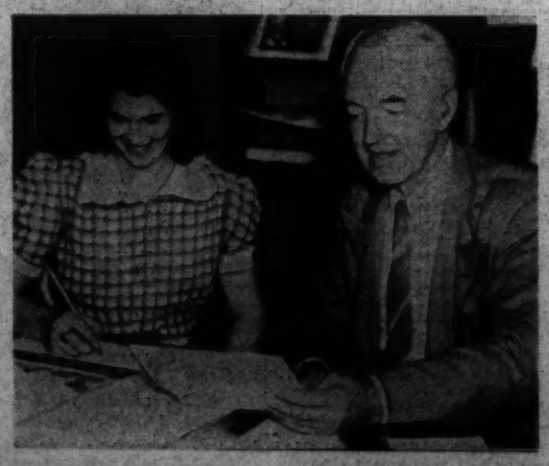
Going To College Here This Fall . . .?

Southeastern U. Offers Specialized Training

A full-fledged university on a busy street corner and with two floors of the Y. M. C. A. Building, Eighteenth and G Streets Northwest, for a "campus," Southeastern University will open its doors to about 1000 students on September 15 and 22.

No teen-age, jalopy-driving "college kids," Southeastern students average 28 years of age, come to the school with serious ideas about studying and primarily for advanced training in specialized fields. Available are schools of law, which opens on the later date; accountancy, modern languages and a new liberal arts junior college which will begin its first full term this fall.

The oldest of the university's branches, the school of accountancy, established in 1907, will be the only department to face a readjustment in the interest of national defense. This fall it is to offer a special nine-week course, covering a half year's work, which is designed not only to speed the training of accountants, but also to fit the needs of men expecting to be called into the services soon.



Cynthia Buchanan takes dictation from Dr. James A. Bell, the university's president

THE reason for this particular kind of addition is that accounting is becoming more and more important in the crisis operation of Government and industry, according to white-haired, dynamic Dr. James A. Bell, president of the university since 1922. There is a great need for trained accountants now, he asserts, especially because of the increasing complexities of taxation and finance in connection with the national defense program.

In this line, he adds, Southeastern is also offering a new and specialized course in Federal taxation, to be given by Prof. Jo V. Morgan, head of the District Board of Tax Appeals.

Tuition at the school averages a little over $100, ranging between $90 a year for the law school and $160 for the junior college course, with single courses, held in day and night sessions, also offered.

ALSO added to the university this fall are two new classrooms, 3000 volumes to the compact, well-equipped law library, and a new dean of the law school.

The new member of the staff of 75 is Arthur Anderson, who will head the division and teach contracts and sales at the same time.

"We're adding two full-time professors to the law faculty," he said, "but we won't be making many sudden changes in the organization. Changes should be a matter of development, and what we're starting on this year is a program of development and improvement."

Dodgers Beat Reds, 7-5; Cardinals Sweep Bill

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND, BUDDY?

BASEBALL?—Well, it's going to be a long time before you see or read about another series comparable to the one between the Dodgers and Cardinals. It packed more drama and Nation-wide interest than any series since the Yanks and Athletics battled it out in a Labor Day series in 1928. Probably more interest than that one, for the country at large probably feels keener about the Bums than it has felt about any team in a generation.

CONSIDINE

It would be hard to pack more into a three-game series than this one had: For instance, the job turned in by Fred Fitzsimmons in the first game—a touching piece of work by a blubbery 40-year-old bloke who was fired for incompetence by Bill Terry four years ago. And Dixie Walker's eleventh-inning hit that won the game for Fitz, after it appeared that Reese and Owen were going to break Fitz's heart a little more by kicking away another game. And the curious part of Walker's hit is that it probably didn't increase by one whit the disdain in which Larry MacPhail holds him. Yes, and Ernie Whit's stunt of striking out five of the first six Dodgers to face him.

Then there was that second game, with Young Howard Pollet pitching and the lead shifting and old Curt Davis walking off to a shower in numb despair. And then best game of all, the third game, with two almost matchless pitching performances: Morton Cooper with a no-hitter in the eighth inning, and Whit Wyatt keeping up with him. And finally one brief, violent eruption. Doubles by Walker and Billy Herman, and that was the game. And the elderly Dodgers piling into a train, kicking and slapping one another in their juvenile joy—the worst part of their season over.

The series made this observer, for one, decide that the Yanks are far from a lead pipe cinch over either the Dodgers or Cards.

RACING?—Looks as if Whirlaway needs a rest. Not that losing to War Relic is a disgrace. But losing to War Relic by 4¼ lengths in a race that was run two seconds back of Discovery's track record constitutes a sluggish performance on the part of the 3-year-old champ. He has been almost constantly in training since the beginning of his tough 2-year-old career. He raced during the winter in Florida and has been racing since. He had no excuses, such as running out on the turns. When he moved to within three lengths of War Relic at the head of the stretch, in Saturday's $25,000 Narragansett Special, Teddy Atkinson, who was up on War Relic, batted the son of Man o'War once or twice and Whirlaway couldn't gain another inch on him. In fact War Relic pulled away.

It must have done frosty old Sam Riddle a lot of good. Old Sam cackled indignantly a month ago when Whirlaway was given a disputed nod over War Relic in the Saranac Handicap at Saratoga. The Narragansett was the old guy's revenge, but the public isn't likely to start calling War Relic the new champ. Where was he when Whirly was knocking off the tough ones in the Derby, Preakness, Belmont, etc., etc., etc.? Anyway, Whirlaway blew a chance to jump from seventh place among the all-time money winners to third place, just behind Seabiscuit and Sun Beau—a leap which would have catapulted him past Equipoise, Gallant Fox, Challedon and Zev.

Whether he'll get the rest he seems to need is up to Ben Jones, who knows more about Whirlaway than Whirlaway himself. He is entered in the Lawrence Realization at Belmont, where he can pick up $23,500 for a mile and five furlongs, the longest distance he has been asked to race. The Realization looks like a soft touch. When Whirly was nominated for it as a weanling, on December 15, 1938, he was one of 188. For several thousand reasons, ranging from death to bowed tendons, only Whirly, Bushwhacker, Fairymant and Lord Kitchener will start in this rich and ancient test.

GOLF?—We asked Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the P. G. A., to explain why pro golf had gone so far ahead of amateur golf, in the quality of its top-notch players. He answered, "practice." The pros practice; the amateurs either won't or can't give the time to it. Ben Hogan will put on oilskins and go out into a driving rainstorm to practice certain shots, knowing that someday a storm might come up in the middle of a vital round, and he'll have to know how to play through it. I've seen pros shoot a tournament round in the 60's—and then go out on the practice range until dark, because they weren't satisfied.

One night at a tournament Hogan came downstairs to the lobby and his face was white with disgust. "I just 3-putted the rug in my room," he groaned. His wife was sitting nearby and tried to console him. "Don't forget, dear, you had 1-putt carpets all through the Statler chain during our trip," she soothed him.

FOOTBALL?—Back in 1869 . . . Oh, well, there isn't room enough.

Last-Inning Spurt Downs Champions

Herman's Homer, Two Doubles and A Single Account For Flock's Victory

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 14.—The fighting Brooklyn Dodgers, who won't be beaten until the last man is out, battled up and down today to a tense 7-to-5 victory over the World Champion Cincinnati Reds in the opening of a three-game crucial series.

The National League leaders took the lead, lost it, and took it again in the ninth inning on a burning home run by Billy Herman, followed by another run after two out on two doubles and a single.

They argued with the umpires whenever the occasion presented itself, but beneath it all they played the kind of ball that ought to take them to the World Series.

Walters Shelled

They beat down Bucky Walters, one of the gamest pitchers in the business, simply because they were in their swinging every minute.

The Brooks opened the scoring in the second inning on singles by Joe Medwick, who got a double and three singles in five tries, and Peewee Reese, a passed ball, and an infield play.

They rested on that until the Reds scored a pair in the fifth on Mike McCormick's triple, a single by Harry Craft, a sacrifice, and Bill Werber's single. Kirby Higbe looked for a time as if he wouldn't last.

So the Brooks went to town for three in the sixth on five straight singles and an error by Harry Craft. The singles ran from Reister to Reese in the line-up, but the break in the game was Lew Riggs' hit, the third of the inning. The hit and run was on and shortstop Eddie Joost moved over to thwart it, so Lew hit the ball right where Joost wasn't.

Reds Turn on Power

Then the Reds broke out with three in their seventh when Frank McCormick hit his fourteenth home run of the year, against the laundry building back of left field, with Lonnie Frey and Lloyd Waner on base. Waner had forced Walters after Bucky had singled to open the inning and Frey had walked.

Medwick who has well repaid Larry MacPhail whatever he laid out for him, opened the eighth with a double to left. He got to third on Reese's hopper, and scored on Cookie Lavagetto's pinch liner to Mike McCormick. It was anybody's ball game all over again.

Hugh Casey took over for Higbe, who had gone out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and the Reds were helpless on in.

But not the Brooks. They put on that ninth inning, and with the game won after Herman's homer and the rest of the final hits ringing around Walters' ears, the Dodgers characteristically ended their batting with an argument.

Durocher Loses Again

Medwick, trying to score from second on Reese's blooper double, was thrown out at the plate, but Manager Leo Durocher, Medwick and nobody faintly connected with the borough of Brooklyn thought so. Umpire Jocko Conlan, who does not live in Brooklyn, did think so and that was that, after a few minutes.

For Walters it was his fourteenth defeat against 17 victories. One contributing factor was the fact that the Reds blew scoring chances—or Higbe clamped down, depending on the viewpoint—time after time.

That's All for You, Rucker, Says Card Infielder

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Martin Marion, of the St. Louis Cardinals, gently tags the Giants' Johnny Rucker yesterday as he attempted a theft of second base in the first game of a double-header. A fast throw from Catcher Gus Mancuso made the put-out possible. The Cards took both games, 1-0 and 6-5.

St. Louis Reduces Brooklyn's Lead To 1½ Games With Double Victory

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 14.—The desperately fighting Cardinals stayed in the National League pennant race today by battling uphill to take both ends of a double-header from the New York Giants, 1 to 0 and 6 to 5, thereby gaining on Brooklyn.

After snatching victory in the tenth inning of the nightcap St. Louis was within 1½ games of the league-leading Dodgers, who won a single contest from last year's champion Cincinnati Reds. Except for the club's grim determination to win it could easily have lost ground.

In the first encounter the Cardinals were held to three hits by Veteran Carl Hubbell. An error, double and a high, foul fly combined to bring in that all-important counter in the second inning.

From then on the Cardinals strove to protect that lead and did so on the five-hit pitching of lean Lon Warneke, who was credited with his seventeenth victory against eight losses. Hubbell was charged with his ninth loss. He has 10 victories. The only extra base blow was Creepy Crespi's double that figured in the game-winning tally.

The play on that run figured like this: Nick Witek erred on Cooker Triplett's sharp grounder to second. Crespi then doubled down the left-field line, advancing Triplett to third. After Martin Marion was purposely walked, Gus Mancuso hit a high foul back of third and Triplett streaked for home after the catch. He made it standing up as Dick Bartell's throw was wide to Catcher Harry Danning.

The first game was a pitchers' battle, the second was a hitters' heaven.

Triplett Scores

New York scored a run in the first inning on consecutive singles by Mel Ott, Babe Young and Joe Moore. The Cardinals, who still have the smell of a world series in their nostrils, came right back with two runs in their half of the opening stanza. After one out Johnny Hopp crossed up the Giant infield with a bunt, stole second and sped home when Young mussed Witek's to first on Triplett's grounder. Triplett going on to second. He scored a moment later on Johnny Mize's single through second.

Gabby Hartnett evened the count for the Giants in the fourth when he lofted one into the leftfield stands for his fifth home run of the year.

Cardinals Call Up 2 Red Wing Stars

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP)—Third baseman George Kurowski and outfielder Stan Musial of the Rochester Red Wings today were ordered to report immediately to the Cardinals in St. Louis. The Cards last week purchased Kurowski, who led the International League in triples and hit .384, from the Wings, and Musial, .325 hitter owned by the Columbus Red Birds. Both will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow.

Yankees Split With Indians; Feller Beaten

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 14.—Beaten in the first game, 6 to 3, by George Selkirk's home run with two aboard in the eighth inning, the Cleveland Indians came back to put on a five-run uprising of their own in the last inning of the nightcap to beat the Yankees, 5 to 2, and gain an even break for the day.

Red Ruffing turned in his fifteenth victory in besting Bobby Feller in the opener, driving across two runs himself, with a double in the seventh. Feller was charged with his twelfth defeat against 23 wins. Ruffing gave up only three hits, two of them by Jeff Heath.

Ray Mack started the Indians big rally in the eighth round of the second game with a double. Up to that time Marv Breuer had allowed only one hit, but he cracked wide open after Mack's blow and gave up a walk, three singles and a double for five runs. The game was called at the end of the eighth because of darkness.

Packers Grind Lions Under 23-0 Score

16,734 See Canadeo, Hutson Star as Green Bay Stages Late Rush

By the Associated Press

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 14.—The Green Bay Packers opened their National Football League campaign today with a one-sided 23-to-0 victory over the Detroit Lions. The Packers added two touchdowns in the last seven minutes to three field goals scored previously.

Don Hutson and Tony Canadeo scored the Green Bay touchdowns, and field goals were kicked by Paul Engebretsen, Clark Hinkle and Eddie Jankowski.

The contest was played before a crowd of 16,734.

Instead of the expected offensive battle, the game started as a bitter defensive struggle, with the Packers holding the edge in ground gaining but being unable to score.

Missed Kick

A lashing ground attack paced by Clark Hinkle, Tony Canadeo and Joe Laws penetrated Detroit territory far enough for Hinkle to try—and miss—a field goal from the Lion 38-yard line. That was the only scoring threat of the first period.

Early in the second quarter a Packer air offensive sparked by Cecil Isbell reached the Detroit 8-yard line. A 15-yard penalty for throwing a pass to an ineligible receiver set the Packers back, and Paul (Tiny) Engebretsen kicked a field goal from the 36-yard line, giving the packers a 3 to 0 lead.

The Packers were back in Lion country a few minutes later, and on fourth down Engebretsen tried another, which failed.

The next Packer threat came shortly before the end of the half, when Detroit's Cotton Price fumbled while trying to throw a pass. Ernie Pannell of Green Bay scooped up the ball and raced 10 yards to the Detroit 20. A holding penalty chased the Packers back, and on fourth down Hinkle booted a 39-yard field goal, making the score 6 to 0.

Jankowski Scores

Early in the third period, after a forward passing campaign bogged down in Detroit territory, Fullback Eddie Jankowski booted another one from 40 yards out, raising the count to 9 to 0. Engebertsen missed a boot from the 46-yard line later in the quarter.

With seven minutes of playing time remaining in the fourth period, the Packers finally punched through for a touchdown. Isbell set the

Mangrum Wins Atlantic City Open Tourney

By the Associated Press

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 14.—Lloyd Mangrum, the Monterey Beach, Calif., slugger, carried off the $5000 greater Atlantic City open golf tournament today. The former Texan posted a final round score of 70. This added to his 54-hole score gave him a total of 275 and first prize money of $1200.

In winning, Mangrum scored his first major 72-hole tournament victory and ended a jinx which has followed him during the past couple years.

Mangrum was under par in the first three rounds and held the lead from the first day of the tourney when he came in with a sizzling 7-under par 65. He had 69 in his second round and a 69 in his third round.

Vic Ghezzi, national P. G. A. champion from Deal, N. J., and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., finished in a deadlock for second place with 281 each. Ghezzi had a 67 in his third round this morning and came in with a 75 in the afternoon. Hogan, who won prize money in his fifty-sixth straight tournament, posted a 72 in the morning round and a 70 in the afternoon.

Jack Grout, of Pittston, Pa., fired a 68, best score of the final round, to tie with big Lawson Little, of San Francisco, for fourth place with 282's. Three veteran tournament campaigners, Denny Shute, of Chicago, Horton Smith, of Pinehurst, N. C., and Tony Penna, of Dayton, Ohio, had 283's.

This group spread-eagled the rest of the field. The next best score was a 286 by Jack Patrone, of Manchester, Vt. James (Sonny) Fraser, of Atlantic City, led the amateurs with 291.

In winning first prize money and the $500 Frank P. Gravatt silver bowl, Mangrum knocked 13 strokes off par for the 72 holes. His six-stroke margin was the biggest edge a winner has held in any P. G. A. sponsored 72-hole tournament this year. The day before the tournament started, Mangrum predicted he would win and the other boys would be fighting for second place.

Ghezzi and Hogan did just that, entering the final 36 holes five strokes behind Mangrum. Hogan lost practically all of his chances of catching up when he took a par 72 on this morning's round and dropped eight strokes behind. Ghezzi came through with a brilliant 67 this morning, but blew his chance on the final round with a 75.

Bosox Sweep Chisox Bill, 9-2 and 5-2

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 14.—The Boston Red Sox swept a double-header from the Chicago White Sox today, 9-2, and 5-2, to increase their second-place lead over the pale hose to five full games.

Heber "Dick" Newsome hurled the first game, chalking up his eighteenth victory of the season as he continued his mastery over the Chisox, which has stretched to seven games without a defeat.

Nicked for two runs in the first, he was never in trouble after that inning for Jimmy Foxx connected for a grand-slam home run in the five-run Boston half. Ted Lyons was charged with his third defeat by Boston this season as he continued his futile quest for victory No. 13.

The Foxx homer boosted his runs batted in total for the season to 102, marking the thirteenth consecutive year of his big league career in which he has driven in 100 or more runs. The mark ties the record set by the late Lou Gehrig from 1926 Charlie Wanger and Thorny Lee tied up in a bitter hurling duel in the nightcap with the 1-1 deadlock unbroken until the seventh when Lee's own error on a Wagner roller allowed Bobby Doerr to score. The Sox put the game on ice in the eighth when Joe Cronin doubled, Ted Williams tripled and Jim Tabor parked his fifteenth home run in the leftfield screen.

Pounds Goes Hollywood

Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Boss,

Well, I'm sitting here in front of the typewriter tonight in conference with myself. I'm trying to make what may be a momentous decision. I have had some other little problems on this trip, such as whether I'll have steak, chicken or chops for dinner or whether I would take a whiskey sour, scotch and soda or an old fashioned. But now I'm pondering over something big.

HAIGHT

Here's the dope. A representative of the MGM studio phoned me just now and wants me to appear for a screen test tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Now that is the exact hour that Coach Ray Flaherty has set for football practice. I asked to be excused and he said nothing doing. I called off the signals frontward and backward, then I sang "Hail to the Redskins" three times but he just shook his head.

"Haight," said the coach, "you are trying to do too many things at once. I don't mind you writing for the newspaper and trying to play football, but I can't see how you are going to act in the movies out here and play against the Bears in Chicago."

Well, Boss, it was really fine to know that Flaherty really cared about me. He says the nicest things, but then he won't let me scrimmage, and I'm just dying to ram my headgear in that Willie Wilkin's stomach. But there's something fascinating about that picture business. I couldn't use the money, of course, but it is the kind of work I like. Instead of just slaying a few of the boys at the office, I can tell my stories once and then have the whole country howling.

I wish I had you here to make up my mind for me, like you did that night when I said I wasn't a copy boy and I wouldn't take that photograph up to the library. But let's not talk about that.

I was just thinking, if I become a star I'm going to make three pictures a year. What's the use of being in that big money if you can't have time to enjoy it? I've already picked out a play for myself. I think it would be a good idea for them to remake "Mutiny on the Bounty" and let

Nats Whip Tigers, 2-0; Hudson Gives 4 Hits

Spectacular Triple Play Astonishes 7,000 as Washington Leaves Cellar

The Nats shook off the shackles of the cellar yesterday like a club that didn't belong there. They produced a four-hit pitcher in Sid Hudson, who shut out the Tigers, 2 to 0; they tossed a spectacular triple play into the proceedings, and altogether they pleased 7,000 customers at Griffith Stadium.

They bequeathed eighth place to the Philadelphia Athletics who, coincidentally, were taking a double beating from the Browns.

Washington's strange mastery of the Tigers was in evidence for the fourteenth time this season in 20 games between the two clubs, and Hudson's private streak against the Detroit club was extended to six straight games. The tall young right hander, now horrible nemesis to the Tigers, has won only 11 games this season but a half dozen have been at the expense of the Detroits.

Hudson was a potent guy for the Nats yesterday. He not only served up an unbroken succession of zeroes to the Tigers, allowing only one man to reach third base, but he won his own game by the simple expedient of scoring both of Washington's runs.

Triple Play

In the only inning in which Hudson was encountering trouble, the Nats' infield, notably Mickey Vernon, rescued him with that big league rarity, the triple play. The rapidity of its execution stunned the customers.

Hudson found himself in deep trouble in the second inning when he walked York and Campbell in succession before getting anybody out, and then it happened. Higgins lined a drive into Vernon's mitt and it was the perfect setting for a triple killing.

Vernon, after taking Higgins' liner, pranced two steps to the bag to retire the surprised Campbell for the second out, and then rifled a throw to Travis at second to beat York back to that bag by a whisker, and there was your triple play.

Tommy Bridges was the losing pitcher, and it was a painful sort of defeat for the veteran right-hander who allowed the Nats only six hits and was the victim of poor support which figured in both of the Nats' runs.

No Hits Till Fourth

Shortstop Frank Croucher's muff of a ground ball put Hudson on base in the fifth inning, and thus the winning run was set in motion with none out. Case, content chiefly on sacrificing, laid a bunt down the third base line and beat it out, moving Hudson to second. Both runners advanced. When Cramer grounded out to York, and after Lewis walked to fill the bases, Travis got Hudson home with a fly to Radcliff in left-field.

The Nats got no more runs out of the inning, because Case, on second when Travis flied out, tried to take third after the catch and was thrown out.

In the seventh, Hudson again launched a run for the Nats with a single that went through Croucher's legs and was generally scored as a hit. On a hit and run play, Case missed the pitch but Hudson

Roger Peacock Has 65 as Indian Spring Golf Team Triumphs

Steele and Ritter Win Club Medals

Three Baltimore Teams Enter State Semifinals; Houghton Beats Molloy

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Roger Peacock, back on his stick again after a letdown in the District Amateur, played the par 72 Indian Spring course in 65 strokes yesterday, a new unofficial course record, as the Four Corners Club swamped Hillendale, 12½ to 5½, to enter the semifinal round of the Maryland State team championship.

Peacock had six birdies and an eagle and holed out every putt. He was so good that his partner, Buddy Sharkey, was two under par himself and was not able to help on a single hole. Their victims were John Quinn and Tom Kendrick, of the Baltimoreans.

Meanwhile the other round of four berths was being filled by Baltimore teams. Kenwood was upset by Bonnie View, 10½ to 7½, over the latter's course while Beaver Dam won 4½ points in the first two brackets from the C. C. of Maryland but stopped there and lost, 12½ to 5½, over the old Terra Marise layout.

Baltimore Country Club's defending champions lose nine points in the first three brackets and were dethroned by Rolling Road, 11 to 7, over the winner's course. Indian Spring will meet C. C. of Maryland and Rolling Road will battle for a final berth with Bonnie View next week.

Peacock, with five birdies in nine holes, had an out nine of 31 strokes, dropping a 15-footer, a 20-footer and two short putts. Coming back he birdied the twelfth, went over on the fifteenth but wrapped a two-iron 6 feet from the pin on the sixteenth and holed the putt for an eagle.

Jock Olmsted and Claude Rippy won three points for Indian Spring, taking each nine seven up and the 18-hole match, 9 and 7. Charley Malone and Mel Shorey had a best ball 67 in sweeping all three points in the top match.

For the second straight week Ralph Bogart and Dick Melvin were upset victims, losing all three points, this time to Eddie Semmler and Bob Wilkie.

C. C. of Md., 12½; Beaver Dam, 5½

D. C. Pros Win American Golf Test by 13 Up

American Golf was introduced to a scattering of spectators yesterday on W. R. Stone's demonstration course near Rockville with the 12-hole match between Washington and Baltimore pros being called at the eighth—darkness.

At the time the District professionals were 13 up out of a possible 24 on the six visiting pros from Baltimore with low scoring honors divided between Wiffy Cox and Al Jamison with 29 strokes each.

The turnout for the initial test was disappointing to Stone—but with a 75-cent admission charge to an untried sport little could be expected. The competing professionals were unanimous, however, in regards to potentialities of the game once it gets underway.

Scoring was on a total score-per-hole basis. Ralph Beach and John Bass put the Baltimoreans one up with a pair of fours on the first hole to a four for Wiffy Cox and a five for Lewis Worsham, but Cliff Spencer and Al Jamison evened the count by outscoring Bill Schreiner and Frank Invernizzi on the first hole and when Al Treder and Leo Walper won the first over Leo Kernan and Jimmy Roche the Washingtonians were ahead to stay.

Everything went off smoothly except the players ran out of time. As soon as they holed out on the green the playerz got in one chauffered car and the caddies in another and were transported back to the tee.

Farkas Plays In Saturday 'Skins Game

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Sept. 14.—Peace, wonderful peace, has settled over Andy Farkas, the Redskin fullback. The bottle-legged boy, who ripped his way to an all time league record for scoring in the National Pro League in 1939, went into a huddle with Coach Ray Flaherty and Trainer Doc Mauro and came out with a smile on his face. Both Flaherty and Farkas announced that the fullback will be in action next Saturday night when the Redskins stage their second intrasquad game at Colorado Springs.

Farkas, who injured his right knee so badly that an operation was necessary last fall, came to training camp after three weeks of conditioning on his own and at San Diego he worked like a Trojan. In the intrasquad game there, Farkas injured both his knees and it was apparent the following week that the club officials believed he was "dogging it."

During this period, Farkas insisted that he was not in condition to play and Flaherty cracked down on him. However, the coach relented and allowed Farkas to sit out the battle last Friday night with the Pacific Coast All-Stars. Since that game, Trainer Mauro has installed an expensive radio therm machine which has worked wonders on Farkas by heating internally the sore parts of his knees.

While Farkas still is a question mark as far as value to the team is concerned, he appears determined to make or break both legs now that he has come to an understanding with his superiors.

With two days of rest en route to Colorado Springs, the Redskin cripples are coming around. Cecil Hare is recovering from having two teeth extracted and Wilbur Moore's smashed mouth is on the mend.

President's Regatta Ends Dull '41 Stand

'Motorless' Cup Races Marked by Flurry Of Protests, Little Fan Interest

By Bill Burnett

The 1941 President's Cup Regatta breathed its last with two series of sail boat races yesterday, ending the fifteenth annual splash party on the Potomac.

The "end," however, was far from painless. Minus the motorboat events which have been its very heartbeat, the '41 version of the Regatta wound up as it started—enjoying the tremendous disinterest of D. C. citizens. Completing the woeful picture of a once-brilliant event were row upon row of unused seats for specators and a storm of skipper protests which were about all that marked the Regatta's passing.

A fine wind developed for the second day of sailing yesterday. Participants had no objections to that, but they found plenty about their rivals to protest. The most expansive came in the third and final series for 20-foot chine bottom boats.

After things were over George Palmer, a local enthusiast, boarded the committee ship and claimed that all five other boats in the event had sailed off the course. His claim was upheld by the captain of the Coast Guard cutter stationed at the point in question.

Under the rules Palmer, sailing the Iris, should have been awarded first place and everyone else disqualified on the spot, but at a late hour last night committee members had not changed the original results.

Sally S Wins

Another protest in the same class was filed by Arthur Strong, sailing the Sally S which eventually won the title. Strong complained of being rammed by the Lady Avon, owned by Judge P. Edrington.

In the Penguin class a protest by Paul Morris, Seattle radio announcer who handled Mike Fright, was upheld. Morris' plea was that Potlatch, sailed by Washington's Walter Lawson, did not carry the required 275 pounds. Though Lawson and a friend—Dorothy Beibel—had won 14 of the last 16 races they had entered, including all three Cup Regatta races, Lawson's effort was thrown out. The Mike Fright took second place behind Cats Paw, operated by George Dankers.

Ernie Covert, a Washington architect, captured the featured comet class in his Scandal. He was third in Saturday's opening race, first yesterday morning and second yesterday afternoon. Strung out behind him were a business and boating rival, Clarke Daniel in the Robert E. Lee; and two former national Champions, Alton O'Brien in the Aquila II and Phil Somervell in the Double Scotch. Browns Take Bill From A's, 7 to 2 and 5 to 1

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—The St. Louis Browns today thumped Philadelphia in both ends of a double-headed, 7 to 2 and 5 to 1, and slapped the Athletics into the American League cellar.

The A's, battered Bob Muncrief for a dozen hits in the first game, but he kept them so scattered that the Browns hauled in an easy decision with just half as many base knocks off Ferrick and Harris.

Muncrief held the A's runless after the first inning. The Browns took the lead with a four-run splurge in the third that sent Ferrick to the showers.

Failure to make hits count also deprived the homelings of the nightcap. The Browns slashed out hits for four runs in the first inning and added their other run in the third, after which Vaughn held them at bay. The A's, scored in the ninth. Vaughn and the Browns' Denny Galehouse each surrendered nine hits, but Vaughn was victim of three Philadelphia errors.

Del Rios Beaten By Baltimorean

Herb Sach's Del Rios were beaten in a warmup match at Lafayette last night by the Franklin Bowling Center All-Stars from Baltimore.

The opening match was a singles event with new Del Rio Fred Murphy rolling against Ray Fiorentino, the Baltimorean, nosing out Murphy 384 to 381.

The team match brought out some superior bowling and the visitors posted a 1973 set to 1816 for the local boys. Lee Seim topped the invaders with a 162 single, which he turned into a 438 set, while Art Felter was close with 154-410. Ray Fiorentino contributed 398, while Schocher and Stitz added 387 and 340, respectively. Ed Blakeney's 394 set led the Del Rios with Fred Murphy tossing in high single of 143 and a 361 set. Tony Santini had 356 with Astor Clarke totaling 345 for the two games he rolled.

The Del Rios also dropped the doubles match, Smith, Blakeney and Santini totaling 684 to 785 for Lee Seim and Art Felter.

Salem Ties Up Virginia Series

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—Salem deadlocked the Virginia President's Cup playoff here this afternoon before a crowd of more than 2500, taking advantage of seven Lynchburg errors to score an 11-to-6 victory.

The teams meet in Salem tomorrow night in the deciding game of the series, with Junior Beard expected to hurl for Lynchburg. Jenkins or Henechecj is expected to pitch for Salem.

Cantrell Takes MotorboatRace For NewRecord

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Sept. 14.—"Wild Bill" Cantrell of Louisville, Ky., skimmed along the Ohio River today at 99.8 miles an hour—an unofficial world's record—to win the featured mile dash of the Ohio Valley Motorboat Racing Association's twenty-third annual regatta.

Piloting his speedy motorboat "Why Worry," Cantrell made a down river run of well over 100-miles an hour, but an upstream run was coupled with it to bring the average under the century but ahead of the 98.5 miles an hour record Cantrell set in the Washington Gold Cup Regatta last year.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 saw the American Power Boat Association sanctioned races.

The class E event for (home-made) racing runabouts was won by Charles Hanley of Muscatine, Iowa, in "Ethel XVI."

Turf Wiseacres Blame Hard Campaign for Whirly's Defeat

Experts Call War Relic Better Horse

Alsab Vs. Requested May Be Juvenile Championship Tilt; Shot Put Favored

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 14.—Horse-racing's Monday morning quarterbacks were jumping on Trainer Ben Jones today for Whirlaway's latest defeat, but the smart guys around the race tracks told you that Ben's tactics had nothing to do with it.

The second guessers insisted Plain Ben's been overworking Whirly this spring and summer, and that was why he didn't have his stuff to nail War Relic to the eighth pole and gallop home in yesterday's Narragansett Special.

"That's jes' the amateurs talkin'," one old-timer countered today. "If that was the case, Whirly woulda been a lot less than four and a half lengths away yesterday. He hadn't slipped any before that from the tough season Ben's given him, so if he was startin' to weaken now, he'd ha' come rushin' at War Relic and then slowed down.

"You can write it down in your little book—it was just one day when War Relic was the better hoss. Say, didn't a thing called Upset beat War Relic's daddy (Man o' War), and even Jim Dandy whipped Gallant Fox. It happens to the best of 'em."

Realization Next

From a strictly business standpoint, young Alf Vanderbilt looks like the whole works in racing from now till the snow flies. The Lawrence Realization at his Belmont track next Saturday looks like a horse race, now that Whirly's been beaten again.

The same fall meeting which he opens this Thursday, also headlines a bargain counter match race between Requested, the $1300 buy Texas Ben Whitaker picked up at Saratoga last summer, and Alsab, the not-so-fashionably bred youngster who went over the counter to Mrs. Al Sabath, of Chicago, for $700.

After that, young Alf has the $50,000-added New York Handicap 2¼-mile grind. Since Mrs. Marie Evans' endurance champ, Shot Put, looked like he's ready to hang onto his crown the way he won the Hawthorne Handicap at Chicago yesterday, here is another one that should bring a crowd to Alf's Long Island park.

Special Looks Good

After Belmont, Vanderbilt opens his Pimlico plant, and the only crowd-lure he'll have there is the Pimlico Special October 30, in which Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention and Sam Riddle's War Relic, the only two who have knocked off Whirly since the Kentucky Derby, will have a chance to make it stick. You can just imagine how the fans will miss that one.

Both Alsab and Requested came through in yesterday's campaigning. Requested grabbed the $10,000-added Cowdin Stakes at Aqueduct with something to spare and boosted his earnings for the year to just under the $50,000-mark. Alsab ran a dead heat with Colchis in the Eastern Shore Handicap opening Havre de Grace's meeting to push his bankroll to $78,055. Those who saw the race said the son of Good Goods was lengths best but got quite a bumping around.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

Racing Secretary Charlie McLennan has received word from Trainer George W. Carroll that he would ship Market Wise, owned by Louis Tufano, here from New York to fulfill his engagement in the $10,000 Added Potomac Handicap, mile and one-sixteenth feature to be run next Saturday. Market Wise, which was third in the Kentucky Derby, has won three stakes during the course of this year. His most recent winning effort was on September 6 when he shouldered 112 pounds and beat such good ones as Royal Man, Fenelon, Your Chance and others in the Edgemere Handicap at New York. The clever apprentice, Jack Breen, who is under contract to George D. Widener, will arrive today to accept mounts during the meeting. Breen rode with fair success during the New York season and is expected to be one of the leading "bug" riders here. The W. L. Brann horses, headed by Pictor, winner of the Bay Shore Handicap last week at New York, are stabled here and expect to swing into action this week. Pictor is being pointed for the $15,000 Havre de Grace Handicap, to be run on the closing day of the meeting. L. L. Haggin's Air Current, after performing in the Eastern Shore Handicap, was shipped back to New York. Another rider arriving today to accept mounts for the remainder of the meeting is Willie Garner. Vince Mara, trainer for R. Sterling Clark, announces that Hyperion Comet, a promising three-year-old filly, has been put back in training. This is the last reminder that nomination for the 1943 Maryland Futurity, annually a two-year-old feature at Laurel, close today. Other stakes that close today are Exterminator Handicap, Janney Handicap, Battleship Handicap, Riggs Handicap, Lady Baltimore Handicap, Heiser Handicap, Sagamore Handicap, Grayson Stakes, Manly Steeplechase Handicap, Ritchie Handicap, Walden Stakes and the Governor Bowie Handicap, all to be run at Pimlico. J. Weir, who rode the first winner of his career when he was hoisted aboard Shailleen at Timonium Thursday, has moved his tack over here and swung right into action opening day. Other half-milers performing on the opening day card were Scocca, Acosta, Cardoza, Weber, Gysin, Hacker and Haber. They won't get the mounts they had around the smaller circuit but they manage to pick one up now and then. One of the real Maryland favorites goes in the outstanding race today. The old boy is the Brandywine Stable's Masked General. He's accounted for many a stake in his time.—BILL.

First Race—Pony Ballet was a stake winner at Delaware and has been racing well since then. Not only appears the winner but the best bet of the day. Malvois raced at Timonium but has plenty of speed and may be a factor in this field of Maryland-bred. Recognize has trained well here.

Second Race—Joanny's recent races were not so hot but this track has always been her favorite. Crack Favor could be dangerous if started but is pretty far down on the reserve list. Proc is in good shape but prefers a little more distance.

Third Race—Off those New York races I'm forced to put Curious Roman on top in this 2-year-old sprint. All races are good and will likely be the public choice. Baruna has trained well since changing hands and cannot be overlooked. War Glenn is well bred and might be a sleeper.

Fourth Race—Russia is an honest sort but would rather have a mile and a half. With this kind it still looks like brackets. Jacsteal is as good as ever and may even take the top one. Ice Water has gone way back.

Fifth Race—Masked General can beat plenty of handicap horses when fit and his works say that this is the case at present. Meets the cheapest field ever and should make no mistake. Abbie Pierre won impressively in New York and may be clase at a long price. Boston Man is a possibility.

Sixth Race—In Memory will never find a softer spot than this so I will try to get him home. Has enough speed to stay out of trouble and should go the route. Speed Ship is a half miler but is fairly consistent. Triphammer may be a factor under the feather weight.

Seventh Race—Connie Plaut has been going very well since shifting back to her old stable. They may know her hole card so I'm striking along. Indomitable is the class of this field but like the old mare has gone way back. Blockader may take a share.

Eighth Race—John Adam showed a bad race at Bel Air but before that he was fairly consistent at New York. May be the right one in a cheap field like this. Peppery was as good as anything at Timonium and she may be close. Hot Man's race at Timonium was the best of the meeting. Best bet— tgrfF-).E the meeting.

Best Bet—Pony Ballet.

JACK BELL

As we approach the fall season, anglers who tie their own flies are beginning to think of feathers and fur. That means prevailing upon hunting pals to save game bird feathers and animal tails to replenish dwindled and moth-eaten stocks. Just as soon as our evenings get cooler and longer many pleasant hours shall be spent working over a fly-tying vice.

We have wondered how many realize that they may have the feathers of game birds taken away from them . . . yes, your pet flies also.

Last April, Governor Lehman of New York, signed the Wild Bird Plumage Bill prohibiting the use of any feathers of wild birds in the making of fishing flies or for use by the millinery trade. It was with great surprise that anglers discovered this bill had been passed, and just what it means. It is now beginning to pinch anglers of the Empire State.

It is true that under the law passed in New York State the feathers of any game birds can be used for fly-tying purposes, provided they are not put on the market. Anglers wanting their favorite flies tied, for instance, with golden pheasant feathers must have a golden pheasant in his back yard or his favorite fly-tier must have one.

The National Audubon Society, which was responsible for pushing the bill through contends that it is aimed at the millinery trade, in order to prevent the use of feathers of wild birds for trimmings on hats. Is it necessary to punish the fly-fishermen who love their hobbies of fly-tying and fishing?

However, no other state has so far had a bill of this nature put before it.

The Audubon Society also has been instrumental in urging in Congress an amendment to the Tariff Act which will bar the importation of all plumage of wild birds. However, no bill has yet been introduced for this purpose.

The existing Tariff Act forbids the importation of the plumage of all wild birds, "provided that any prohibition of the importation of feathers in this act shall not be construed as applying to artificial flies for fishing or to feathers used for the manufacture of such flies." The Audubon Society desires the deletion of this section of the Tariff Act.

There is no question that many importers of feathers for the restricted use have no desire to connive in the violation of the law forbidding the use of bird feathers for millinery purposes.

However, it is noteworthy the extensive use of feathers lately. The society claims that retail purchases of fishing flies has not been coincident with the unusual spurt of feather use beginning about three years ago.

It may be true that retail purchase of finished flies may not show a corresponding increase. But, certainly the sale of feathers to amateur fly-tiers and anglers who make fly-tying their hobby should show a corresponding increase, and evidently has not been taken into consideration. In the past three years more and more anglers have been making their own flies.

Why should the use of feathers of wild birds, which are shot legally, be made unlawful for use by the angler? There are thousands of wild ducks shot every season, the feathers of which are highly desirable for artificial flies. What good can be gained by throwing them away? Even if one were permitted to use feathers so obtained, it is not possible to get locally all the varieties one needs. The amateur and professional fly-tier must make purchases from some source. Can anyone believe that it will be a simple matter to enforce such a law?

If this bill is permitted to become law throughout America it will curtail one of the highest scientific phases of sport angling, and hobbies . . . fly-tying.

The National Audubon Society has and will continue to do a lot of good toward safeguarding our wild birds, protecting song and insectivorous birds. Every angler is behind the society in this good work, but resent the ban on the use of feathers for fly-tying, when such feathers are taken from birds legally killed as game.

Cards Take Twin Bill From Giants

the bases were loaded Brown scored when Estel Crabtree was walked to force the run across the plate.

In that big eighth inning, with one man out, Ott singled to right field. Brilliant fielding of the ball by Terry Moore, playing today for the first time since he was hit on the head by a pitched ball at Boston August 20, held Ott on first. Babe Young then tripled to score Ott. Joe Moore was out second to first while Young held third. Hartnett worked for a walk and got it. Burgess Whitehead was sent in to run for the old veteran and John McCarthy, utility infielder, was selected to bat for Jurges. He also walked to fill the bases. This brought up Witek and he delivered with a sharp bingle to left field which scored Young and Whitehead and advanced McCarthy to second. The Cards gave up on Gumbert, who gave up 12 of the Giants' hits, and Max Lanier promptly struck out Cliff Melton to stop the carnage with the score standing 5 to 3 favor New York.

Miss Singles

And so it stood until the last half of the ninth. Triplett came through with a mighty triple and continued on home when Witek's relay of the throw to third was wide. Mize kept the rally going with a single to right field and it was curtains for Melton.

Bob Bowman replaced him and Eddie Lake ran for Mize. The strategy worked as Lake reached home on Walker Cooper's double to tie the score.

The Giants fizzled out in the tenth on Relief Hurler Howard Krist's pitching. The Cards' winning run came in as Bartell threw wild to first on Terry Moore's gounder with the bases filled.

was credited with a stolen base when Croucher was tardy in covering second on the catcher's throw. When the ball rolled into center field, Hudson scurried to third. He remained there while Case was grounding out to Croucher, but Cramer fetched him home wih a fly to McCosky.

Hudson had a no-hit game in his possession until two were out in the fourth when McCosky banged a soft liner over Travis' head for a single of which nothing came.

In the sixth, Croucher led off with a Texas League single to center and Bridges sacrificed him to second, but Hudson fanned Meyer and ultimately got the side out on McCosky's fly to Case. In the seventh, York singled and took second on Higgins' sacrifice, but Hudson extricated himself nicely, and in the eighth, the Tigers finally got a man to third.

Charley Gehringer, pinch-hitting for Croucher, singled to right to start that eighth and took second as Sullivan, batting for Bridges, bounced out to Hudson. Gehringer secahed third on a passed ball with only one out, but he held his base on Meyer's short fly to Ortiz. The throw from Ortiz to the plate was wide but Hudson was cacking up the play and saved his shutout. Ultimately, he disposed of Radcliff for the third out.

Hudson was pretty good.

Dogs . . .

By George Berner

We mentioned a week or so ago that we could tell easily when seasons were about to change by our queries. They tell us now that summer is going very fast and that sloppy cold weather is just around the corner. It seems that many readers are confronted by the problem of what to do with their dogs during the cold weather. Some of them can't keep the mutts in the house and want to know what to do. Others want to know about bathing the dogs during the cold weather. So, here goes on cold weather care.

BERNER

First and most important, don't keep your dog outside part of the time and in the house part of the time, that in-and-out business is courting pneumonia and no fooling. Either keep him in the house all the time or outside all the time. Now this doesn't mean that if you keep your dog outside you can't allow him in the house for a few minutes or hours. Neither do we mean to infer that the dog kept in the house can't be allowed out occasionally. We do mean sleeping in or sleeping out. Make up your mind which it's to be and stick to it for your dog's sake.

If he is to be housed outside, make or have made a house which is just large enough for him to get in and stretch out comfortably and just high enough for him to sit up if he so desires. The reason for keeping the house as small as practical is that the dog's body heat will keep the small house comfortably warm, but is dissipated in the oversize abode. The house must be free of drafts. The dog can stand intense cold and still be comfortable but he cannot stand drafts without getting the sniffles or pneumonia.

A very serviceable house can be made for a dollar or so out of a stout wooden packing box and several layers of tar paper (roofing paper). When you've made absolutely sure that the house is tight, set it on a couple of bricks or anything else to raise it a few inches off the ground, hang a piece of carpet so it completely covers the door and he's all set.

Now the bath business. Don't bathe your dog any more than necessary during cold weather. There isn't much danger if you do it right but there always is the chance of colds. There are several dry-baths on the market and procurable at all pet shops which will eliminate a great many baths. In bathing the dog use tepid water, not hot and not cold but above all, not hot. Rub him dry to the skin with clothes or towels. With long haired breeds this will take nearly an hour's rubbing. Then don't allow the dog out until at least three or four hours later. Never under any circumstances wash a dog, that is to sleep outside, any later than 9 o'clock in the morning.

When taking the dog out after a bath, keep him moving as fast as you can. Throw a ball for him to chase or chase him yourself or anything else that will keep him moving to increase his circulation and in turn, his body heat. Never allow him to lie about after a bath or you may be throwing dirt in his face very shortly.

Dirty feet and how to keep them from tracking all over the orientals seems to be a major problem. It shouldn't be, as dogs should be taught to go to their corners and stay there. That's too much to expect so here's the next best thing. First, make up your mind where you want the dog to lie when he comes in. Put his bed there or something for him to lie on. Then screw a small screw-eye into the wall or floor into which you can snap his leash. This spot, we have learned from sad experience, will undoubtedly be in the kitchen so insist on the dog using the back door exclusively. The way to teach him this is, of course, refrain from letting him in any other door. When he wants to come or when you want him to come in (if you can find him) meet him at the door with his leash. Block the door with your feet and legs (if the feet are too small or the legs too skinny, use a broom) and snap the leash to his collar, escort him to his "place" and snap the other end of the lead in the screw-eye. Now the only tracks you have to clean up are those from the back door to his bed. If that is a considerable distance, move into a smaller house, wipe his feet off at the door or just leave him outside. Anyway it's better than his getting all over the divan. We know.

When he failed to cross the finish line, though well in front, in the third series, Billy Cox, of Norfolk, forfeited the Hampton Class crown. Another point leader, Lloyd Emory, made the same mistake as the Lucille II, belonging to W. J. Hurst, jr., eventually won out.

Closest point battle of the day was turned in during the 16-foot class, in which Washington's Joe O'Donald, sailing the Chic, nosed out R. Ray and his Duchess in the final standings by one-fourth of a point. O'Donald's total was 26½.

Contract Bridge

This question concerns your play of the South cards of today's hand at a six-heart contract. West leads the nine of clubs; make your plan from this point, then check with the solution given.

Technique Described

South makes his slam contract by giving up a trick he need not lose in order to perform an end play on West. Technically, this play is called "throwing a loser on a loser."

After the first trick is won in dummy, a small spade is led and ruffed in the closed hand. The king of hearts is returned and overtaken by the ace in dummy, felling the adverse trumps. A second spade is ruffed by declarer and the board again entered with a club honor.

Declarer cashes North's last club and then leads the spade king. East follows suit and South discards a losing diamond. West wins the ace of spades but he is forced to give declarer the balance of the tricks. If West plays another spade, South will ruff in dummy and throw off his diamond queen. A diamond lead gives him both the ace and queen.

Six hearts is made with the loss of the spade ace. Note that it is important for declarer to clear the clubs and to ruff two spades in his hand before playing the king so that a return of either suit by West would give him a ruff on the board and a diamond discard in his hand.

WHEN CLARK AND LOIS ENTERED SLAG'S HIDEAWAY, SLAG, BEFORE IMPRISONING CLARK, UNWITTINGLY SUBJECTED HIM TO A REVERSE TREATMENT WHICH FREED HIM FROM HIS HYPNOTIC STATE. THUS, WHEN SUPERMAN BURST IN AS SLAG AND ROLAND WERE ABOUT TO HARM LOIS, HE WAS ABLE TO DEFY THE EVIL DWARF'S COMMAND TO SLAY HER!

Listen! with Glynn

This is the night that Orson Welles begins his new dramatic-variety series over WJSV and the Columbia network at 9.

And the peculiar part of it is, in view of the fanfare given most new radio shows, that you know just about as much about what is going to happen as anyone else does—with the possible exception, of course, of Mr. Welles, a few assorted actors and other persons immediately connected.

For that astute showman, Mr. Welles, has rather blandly informed C. B. S.'s publicity department: "If I knew what was going into even the opening program, I'd be glad to tell you. But I don't know yet. I've accumulated a tremendous amount of material that I'd like to use on one program or another, but I haven't decided just where to start." This statement being given a couple of days ago in response to some plaintive requests.

In launching his new series, Mr. Welles even prefers to leave the names of his guest players a mystery until the audience hears them over the air.

This we do know. That Mr. Welles has been given carte blanche by his sponsor to do exactly as he pleases, that Mr. Welles has a pretty high reputation as an actor, writer, producer and director on radio, stage and screen; and that musical accompaniments for the series will be done by a large orchestra, directed by Bernard Herrmann.

So, don't say we didn't tell you!

Must Be Kept Two Years, Wage-Hour Division Decrees

The Wage-Hour Administration directed yesterday that employers save orders and invoices, shipping and delivery records, bills of lading and billings to customers (other than "cash") for at least two years.

Officials said this new requirement was being put into effect so that the agency's inspectors might use such records to determine instances when the wage-hour law applied to employes and when it did not apply. Business establishments engaged in interstate commerce come under the law.

The rule was made a part of revised wage-hour regulations regarding record-keeping which are applicable to some 350,000 employers. They are effective September 15.

Exceptions Made

Another new regulation will permit employers paying on a semimonthly basis to keep a record only of daily, instead of weekly, earnings. Some employers who petitioned for this change said the recording of weekly as well as daily and semimonthly earnings was a costly bookkeeping burden.

In addition, provision is made to allow employers with special problems to keep their records in any manner found satisfactory to the administrator. Those wishing to deviate from the general rules must petition the administrator and receive authority from him.

Although executive, administrative and professional employes, and outside salesmen, are not under the wage-hour law, the new regulations require that a record be kept of the total wages or salaries paid them each pay period and show the basis on which such wages or salaries were paid. Current regulations require only recording of the name, address and occupation of such employes.

Explaining still another new regulation, the administration said:

"Packing and canning establishments claiming the two 14-week exemptions from the 40-hour week available to them must post a notice at the end of each day period showing which type of exemption they were operating under for the period. Reason for this is that while one type of exemption is an unlimited release from the 40-hour week, the other calls for payment of time and a half after 12 hours a day and 56 hours a week.

Fleming Gives Reasons

"Further, workers employed when neither of the exemptions are in effect are entitled to time and a half after 40 hours. Such notice also must be posted to show certain interested employes when an exemption from the 40-hour week is claimed by establishments handling, slaughtering or dressing poultry or livestock."

As in the past, records of wage payments must be preserved for four years.

In issuing the new regulations, Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, said in a statement:

"Our requirements in the matter of payroll records are very simple. No special order or form of records has been required or is required in the new regulations. However, we must have accurate information on the number of hours employes have worked.

Nazi Catapult Plane Fleet Worries U. S.

By W. W. Chaplin

International News Service Staff Writer

National defense planners—and particularly Mayor Lauardia's Office of Civilian Defense which has bluntly warned of "token bombings" in America—have a permanent headache in the continued disappearance of Germany's Atlantic catapult air fleet.

Before the war an "experimental" airline between Germany and America was operated by the Reich with the catapult mother ships Schwabenland and Friesenland and the big, long-range "katapulten flugschiffs" Nordwind, Nordmere and Nordstern. The whole kit and kaboodle vanished behind the smoke of battle after completing thorough surveys of the air approaches to America.

The German story, as relayed by the last Lufthansa man to visit America, is that they are on duty in the far South Atlantic "scouting for the whaling fleet."

He said it was worthwhile to withhold this potential long-distance bombing fleet from the war effort because the whaling industry furnishes Germany with badly needed butter. When objection was raised that butter is not made from whale oil and that the mammals couldn't conceivably be milked unless they were alive in drydocks, the Lufthansa man only replied: 'If the Fuehrer says it is for butter, it is for butter."

Note to A. Hitler: We know why whale oil is particularly valuable. There's a special lubricant made from it that is indispensable for oiling intricate mechanisms on such wartime devices as bombsights.

One-piece warplanes: Inventors dream of planes you can stamp out in one piece or pour into a mold, planes as simple as a bathing beauty's business suit. But the manufacturers are traveling another road. The Bell Airocobra, cannon-toting bullyboy of the skies, carries only one man but it has 9,000 parts, buttoned up with 54,000 rivets.

School for boots: What's the mouse on a battleship? It's the machine that measures the depth of water under the keel; so called because it squeaks every time the revolving dial hand passes the figure giving the depth at that second. (Stage whisper to land-lubbers: A "boots" in the Navy is the same as a "rookie" in the Army.)

Wardrobe: The American Army is probably the best-dressed armed force in the world. Today's United States soldier has so many uniforms available for his use he'd need a valet if the quartermaster corps didn't attend to such matters for him. In the 10-month period recently ended the QMC bought 40,000,000 items of clothing. There are four different uniforms just for cold climes, one made out of fur.
